- In one of our Newton churches the other Sunday the minister told the congre-

Holmes of Newton Centre, Rev. Francis B.
Hornbrooke, and Mr. Geo. C. Travis.
Many patriotic pieces were well rendered by the school.

- The dwelling house, No. 25 Morse street, in the Morse field district, will be offered for sale on Saturday at 3 p. m., by Lewis J. Bird & Co. The owner is a gentleman of property, who has moved to New York, and wants to get rid of the house. It is a chance for some one to secure a home very cheap, and probably in a few years Morse field will be annexed, and then the estate will be a valuable one.

- There is good deal of complaint of the waste paper that litter the streets. Everything will be cleaned up by the section men, and in a few hours the streets in the business section will be disfigured by old paper bags, newspapers, banana and orange peels, and other matter which has no business in the streets. It is impossible to keep the streets clean unless there is concerted action, and as a matter of local pride, citizens ought to have interest enough in the matter to aid the section men. It is said that some of the waste paper is swept out from some of the stores, and there is an unusual amount of paper in front of some stores. A little more care would improve the appearance of this part of Newton, and make it not impossible for our section men to get a prize. The good effects of the new system are perceptible all over the city, but there is evident need of educating some citizens up to an appreciation of clean streets.

CITY GOVERNMENT.

THE WALNUT STREET RAILWAY AGAIN COMES UP.

The board of aldermen met Monday evening, all the members being present and Mayor Hibbard presiding. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Mayor Hibbard appointed Martin J. Nagle as police officer, he having served the probationary term; Jeremiah R. Downey was appointed special policeman to serve without pay.

RAILROAD ON WALNUT STREET.

Alderman Fenno asked that President Morse of the Newton Central Street Railway be allowed to address the board, in regard to having a date set for a hearing on their petition for a location on Walnut street, and the request was granted.

President Morse said that last year there were two petitions, for a location for a street railway from Newtonville to Newton Centre, one from the company which he represented, for the trolley system, and another from a company represented by Mr. Mitchell, for the storage battery system. He had notified Mr. Mitchell of his intention to ask for a hearing. If the board wanted to pass on it without a hearing he should not object, as it had been very fully discussed last year. If the Garden City company were willing to accept of the same conditions as his company he should not object to their being favored, but he thought the conditions should be made that the work of construction should begin at once, and the cars be running this fall. The people generally are very anxious for the road and he received an average of ten petitions a day for him to start such a road at once.

Alderman Fenno said that the members of last year's board were familiar with the subject, but the new members might want to hear about it, and he moved that Monday evening, June 15th, be set for a hearing, and that the city clerk notify both companies, and publish notices of the hearing in the Newton papers. The motion was passed.

Business from the Common Council was disposed of in concurrence, including the order referring the question of permits for temporary buildings on city land, to the city solicitor.

THE SEWERAGE ORDINANCE.

City Solicitor Slocum gave his opinion on points raised at the sewerage hearing by Moorfield Storey, as follows:

First, that the exemptions named in Section 5 of the ordinance relating to corner lots are not lawful; second, the ordinance recites that the whole average cost of the system of sewers is already determined and found to be $2.50 per running foot. The assessment prescribed by the ordinance will yield $3.38 per running foot. Mr. Storey is of the opinion that it is illegal to tax upon abutments a sum in excess of the declared cost; third, Mr. Storey has grave doubts as to the constitutionality of the act.

Upon the first of these questions, while it would seem to be equitable to make the exemptions made in the ordinance, there is so much doubt as to their validity, that in my opinion it would not be safe to do so, and I should recommend that the ordinance be amended to conform to this opinion.

Upon the second of these questions, I should certainly agree with Mr. Storey that the city cannot make a profit by these assessments, and cannot tax upon abutments a sum in excess of the cost. If such is the case, it would in this respect also be illegal. I am informed, however, that no such profit is made and that the opinion of Mr. Storey in this particular is based upon a misapprehension of the facts.

Upon the third question, I am of the opinion that, section 7 of chapter 10 of the Public Statutes is constitutional. I am aware that in other states somewhat similar statutes have been declared unconstitutional, but those statutes have defects which are not contained in section 7 above referred to, and the weight of authority seems to me to be in favor of the constitutionality of such a method of assessment.

A communication from the school board was received asking that the vacant room in the Thompsonville school-house be finished.

On recommendation of the city marshal, the junk license of Louis Einstein, convicted of larceny, was revoked. The jury list of '91 and '92 was presented, also those exempt from militia duty.

Alderman Luke presented the petition of L. G. Pratt, for the acceptance of Sylvan avenue, a new street 670 feet in length. Also from L. G. Pratt and others, for the acceptance of Highland street from Lenox to Forest street.

Notice of intention to build house on Franklin street, 32 by 52, was received from H. M. Beal; also from Dr. Utley, house 40 by 40 on Centre street; Rev. G. E. Merrill, house 36.6 by 56.6 on Centre street.

On motion of Alderman Coffin license was granted to Dr. Utley to build stable 50 by 38, for four horses, on Centre street, and to J. E. Lawrence, to build stable for one horse, 22 by 28, on Maple avenue.

L. B. Gay and others asked for concrete sidewalk on the south side of Church street, from Kenrick park to Eldridge street.

E. C. Dudley called attention to the culvert at Grant avenue and Beacon street and asked that the grade of the brook be established.

L. Loring Brooks, for the Newton Centre Improvement Association, was granted license for the discharge of fireworks from raft on Crystal Lake, the evening of the Fourth.

THE NEW ALMSHOUSE.

Alderman Luke reported from the finance committee, recommending that $23,000 be appropriated for the building of an almshouse on Winchester street.

Alderman Hyde said the almshouse could not be built for $23,000. He intended to present an order later for the appropriation of $27,500, and was satisfied that it could not be built for less. The public property committee had voted to re-advertise for bids. He did not know what the finance committee had to do with buildings, the order had been referred to them merely to have them make a recommendation about notes to pay for the building.

Alderman Luke said the whole order had been referred to his committee, and they had visited architects, and also visited other almshouses, that had been built for $23,000.

Alderman Hyde said perhaps it would be better to let the public property committee resign and have the finance committee do the building.

Alderman Luke said the finance committee had simply taken action on the order referred to them, and they believed the public property committee were able to attend to their own business.

Alderman Hyde said his memory was fairly good, and the matter of the notes only had been referred to them.

Alderman Fenno said the finance committee had taken the trouble to go and visit almshouses that had been built for $23,000. The one in Waltham cost that amount, and is a handsome building. It was designed by Hartwell & Richardson, and accommodated 66 patients. The sum included cellar, piping and heating apparatus.

Alderman Hyde said perhaps the finance committee could learn in two weeks as much as the public property committee in six months. There were strong objections to the Waltham Almshouse, and the City Almoner, who knew something about the matter said it would not answer for Newton. Kendall & Stevens were quite as capable architects as any that could be named, and they had studied the soil, the lay of the land, and knew what was required.

Alderman Luke said that Hartwell & Richardson had built a building, and built it for much less money than the other firm said it could be built for. He was not willing to vote $33,000 or even $27,000, when a building could be built for less. The City Almoner's objection was that the dining room was in the basement, and some of the inmates could not go down so many flights, but those could be placed on the first floor so they would only have one flight to go down. It was no trouble to find architects to build an almshouse for $23,000.

Alderman Hyde moved that the report be laid on the table. The motion failed and the report was accepted.

Alderman Luke presented an order appropriating $23,000 for an almshouse, the sum to be expended by the public property committee, and to be raised by two notes, one for $13,000 and one for $10,000, payable Oct. 1, 1895, with interest at 4 per cent. per annum.

Alderman Hyde said the amount was not sufficient, and he did not think it was the custom of the finance committee to introduce orders for the public property committee.

Alderman Luke said the City Almoner had a plan but that would cost $25,000.

Alderman Hyde asked how many hours the finance committee had spent in looking up this matter.

Alderman Luke—All the time that was necessary.

Alderman Sheppard—It seems to me unwise to pass the order without any reference to the public property committee. I move to lay it on the table, until the public property committee have come to some definite understanding. They will look into the matter and they should be given time to do it. The order was then laid on the table.

Alderman Hyde said the public property committee had voted to re-advertise for bids, and if the finance committee were willing they would like to do so. An order to that effect was then passed.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Alderman Crehore reported that it was inexpedient to locate the chemical or steamer 2 at Nonantum.

An order was then passed that steamer 2 be put in commission, according to the petitions of West Newton residents.

Alderman Crehore presented an order authorizing the public property committee to advertise for proposals for the enlargement of steamer house No. 2.

Alderman Harbach said he hoped the order would not be adopted. The house was large enough as it was.

Alderman Hyde said the proper thing would be to refer the matter to the finance committee.

Alderman Crehore said it was the most convenient point to have two pieces of fire apparatus, a sort of half way house for the north side of the city. The committee did not wish to dictate, but they wished to establish the headquarters of the City Marshal in the house.

The order was then passed 4 to 3.

STREET LIGHTS.

Alderman Fenno reported in favor of granting petitions for street lights as follows: Two on Auburn street, two on Charles street, two on Kempton place, one each on Davis avenue, Clinton place, Harrison, Hillside, Lincoln, Kenrick and Peabody streets, and Lincoln court, and four on Hunnewell avenue and Hunnewell terrace.

An order was passed for the aforesaid lights.

On motion of Alderman Harbach, 4 inch water mains were ordered, 150 feet on Greenwood avenue, $127; and 320 feet on Centre street, $324; total $451.

An order was passed granting leave to citizens to set off fireworks on their own premises, on the day and evening of the Fourth, and also authorizing the granting of licenses for the sale of fireworks.

On motion of Alderman Coffin an order was passed for a select committee on bath houses, composed of two aldermen and members of the common council.

Alderman Sheppard said he had several amendments to the sewer ordinance, and on motion of Alderman Harbach they were referred to the ordinance committee.

On motion of Alderman Fenno, the committee on fuel and street lights were authorized to advertise for proposals to supply the city with 2,000 tons of coal, and to contract for the same.

On motion of Alderman Luke, $340.53, was transferred from the sewerage construction account to the miscellaneous, to meet the expenses of advertising for bids.

The petition of Susan H. Page and others for street lamp on South street was referred to street light committee.

The flags were ordered displayed on June 17th and the City Hall closed.

SCHOOL APPROPRIATION.

Alderman Luke reported in favor of granting the school board's request for $2100 additional appropriation, and an order was passed to that effect.

Alderman Luke said the amount was needed to run the schools the balance of the year, including coal for the coming year.

Alderman Hyde said he was happy to say "I told you so," as he had said when the appropriations were made up, that the school appropriation would come short, and he was glad it had. The order passed, 6 to 1.

The board then adjourned.

The keeper of Bear Island Light House is the owner of an intelligent dog. When a steamer passes the light, it whistles its salute, and in response the light-keeper rings his bell, or rather did ring before the dog took the job out of his hands. Seeing that the passing of a boat and the ringing of the bell were two things that went together, the dog took it into his own hands—or mouth—to ring the bell, and when a boat comes along, without waiting for him to whistle, seizes the bell rope with his teeth and rings a vigorous salute.—Rockland, Me., Free Press.

Have Always Paid Rent.

For a house to live in. This year I have half paid for a cottage, with money which, before I used Sulphur Bitters in my family, was paid to the doctor and the druggist. They cured my wife Female Weakness.—W. F. Sampson, Salem, Mass.

FAIR STUDENTS DRILL.

ANNUAL PRIZE COMPETITION OF THE LASSELL SEMINARY BATTALION.

The annual prize drill of the Lassel Seminary battalion, an event always looked forward to with anticipations of much pleasure by the friends of the fair students, took place last Friday afternoon in the gymnasium of the seminary at Auburndale.

The exercises commenced shortly after 3 o'clock, drill by companies being the first feature. Two companies participated in the customary marching movements and drill in the manual—company A, commanded by Capt. Peabody, and company B by Capt. Milliken.

The girls made a charming picture in their pretty uniforms and military caps, and marched with the precision of veterans.

Following the company drill, a picked squad of commissioned and non-commissioned officers gave an exhibition of the cuts and guards common to sabre practice. It was one of the prettiest features of the exercises, and was so thoroughly well done as to fully merit the generous applause received. Maj. George H. Benyon, 5th regiment, M. V. M., the successful military instructor at Lassel, commanded the squad.

A competitive drill in the manual by a squad of 11 young ladies was the next feature of the exercises, in which the first prize was taken by Priv. Buzzell, and the second by 1st Sergt. Whitney. The prizes were silver medals, appropriately engraved and were presented to a nee expected by Capt. Charles W. Knapp, formerly quartermaster 2d brigade M. V. M.

The first prize for proficiency in gymnastic exercises, a silver souvenir spoon, was presented to Miss Taft by Miss Ransom, instructor of gymnastics and calisthenics.

The judges in the military exercises were Maj. Tyler of the Newton high school battalion, Maj. Price, M. I. T., and Capt. Tarbell, N. H. S.

The following is the roster of the battalion: Company A, Capt. Peabody, Lieut. Medsker, Sergt. Whitney; company B, Capt. Milliken, Lieut. Richards, Sergt. Shepard. In the dress parade which closed the exercises, Lieut. Capt. Peabody, acting as major, commanded the battalion.

The students, faculty and invited guests enjoyed an elaborate fish dinner in the large dining hall of the seminary at the conclusion of the exercises. The menu was very artistic, the design being executed by Mr. William T. Shepherd, general superintendent of the seminary.

High School Notes.

The last meeting for this year of the lyceum, under the present organization, will take place at the school building next Wednesday evening, June 10, at 7:30. It is expected that Rev. Francis B. Hornbrooke will make an address. The Newton Centre Mandolin and Guitar Club, and the Newtonville orchestra, which is composed of alumni and members of the school, will provide music.

Mr. J. C. Walworth gave a senior class party at his residence, Newton Centre, last Monday evening. Progressive games were the first event, and was much enjoyed. Mr. Thomas and Miss Tyler receiving the prizes. After the games came dancing.

The Review appeared yesterday, full of school matter. This issue will be the last while the school is in session.

The annual drill of the battalion will occur a week from to-morrow, on the school grounds. Tickets have been issued and may be obtained of the members of the battalion.

At the last meeting of the school board, Mr. Hornbrooke offered an order providing for the admission to the High school of eighth grade grammar school pupils, who have attained in the eighth grade course an average of not less than 75 per cent. in scholarship. This was done at the beginning of the present school year and has proved quite a success.

A meeting of the Athletic Association was held last Friday at recess. The receipts for the year are $150.00, all of which, with the exception of $43.03 was expended for prizes, apparatus, meet expenses and other causes. A constitution and by-laws were presented and accepted, without reading, having received the sanction of some of the executive committee.

ASSOCIATION.

OBJECT.

THE object of this association is to furnish homes to its members on an instalment plan at the very lowest cost. According to the lapses on old line insurance and one to five year orders for the past five years, fifty per cent. of all have lapsed. We find by careful investigation, a homestead costing Three Thousand Dollars can be obtained at a cost of about Eighteen Hundred Dollars to all members of this association. Our plan is this; All members pay five Dollars to join this association and as soon as this fund reaches the amount of Three Thousand Dollars, certificate holder No. 1 can buy or build a house, select his own location, and make his own contract for building, plans and specifications to be approved by the association. The members shall first give a mortgage for Three Thousand Dollars without interest, less the amount paid in by said member, and shall continue to pay his weekly instalment until his mortgage is paid up in full.

SOURCES OF PROFIT.

THE lapse element. It is impossible to hold any considerable number of persons together in any kind of an association without change; old members drop out and new ones come in, change in condition, alteration of mind, death, etc., all contribute to exemplify this principle, and constitute an inevitable law by which the persistent members realize a large profit. All members stand equal, as each one has to pay in full for his homestead, less the lapses, which, according to past five years' experience, place the lapses at fifty per cent. This will reduce the cost of each member's Three Thousand Dollar house to Eighteen Hundred Dollars, or less. Ninety per cent. of all instalments go to the building fund, ten per cent. to the general fund to pay the expenses of the association.

NEWTON TARIFF REFORM CLUB.
The Tariff is a Tax.

Every person interested in the subject of the Tariff, is cordially invited to take part in the discussions carried on in this column. Respectful consideration will be given to all inquiries, criticisms, and communications of every kind, whether coming from Tariff Reformers, Free Traders or High Protectionists. Address Secretary of the Tariff Reform Club, Newton Centre, Mass.

"PROTECTION OR FREE TRADE."

A VALUABLE BOOK WHICH IS OBTAINING AN IMMENSE CIRCULATION.

The Hand-to-Hand Club, 42 University Place, New York, is circulating a cheap special edition of "Protection or Free Trade," Henry George's great work on tariff taxation. The officers of the club are: Logan Carlisle, Washington, D. C. president; Wm. Lloyd Garrison, Boston, Mass.; Sidney W. Owens, Minneapolis, Minn.; and Jesse F. Murphy, Olympia, State of Washington, vice presidents; W. J. Atkinson, Haddenfield, N. J., secretary and M. W. Casey, Kansas City, Mo., local assistant secretary.

The book is sent to any address in the United States, postage paid, for 25 cents and if ten or more copies are ordered, either to one address or more, the price is 10 cents per copy.

Mr. Carlisle says of the purposes and work of the club: "It has been demonstrated that twelve millions of voters cannot be educated upon the tariff question in thirty days. Thousands and thousands of dollars are wasted within a month of elections in sending out tracts and documents that are either never read or not believed. These documents are usually filled with uninteresting and often meaningless figures, and serve only to confuse their readers. Their purpose is to create the impression that a two or three per cent. reduction of taxation is the crying need of the hour. The reasons for a reduction are rarely stated, and when they are the half-hearted way in which the statement is made leaves the people in doubt as to whether or not there is really any relief to be hoped for from such tariff reform. The purpose of the Hand-to-Hand Club is to give the reasons in full and in a manner that will make an impression upon the intelligent voters of the country. The tariff tax is not merely a fiscal arrangement, affecting the income of the country; it is an economic policy as well, and as such it is essentially vicious. 'Protection or Free Trade' treats it in its economic aspects. There are no confusing statistics in the work. It tells in a very pleasant and readable way how and why tariff taxation is a burden on production and prevents accumulation. It demonstrates its propositions concerning the tariff tax, and until these propositions are thoroughly comprehended by the people it will be useless to expect a permanent policy of low tariff. If the propositions are not true, all this hubbub that has been raised about tariff reform is the most arrant nonsense, which will have no permanent effect.

"A tariff for revenue is a mere concession made by free trade to the fiscal necessities of the Government, and the Hand-to-Hand Club wants to be instrumental in educating the voters to a understanding of this truth. No man can be a tariff reformer in anything but a partisan sense unless he knows the reasons for free trade. When he thoroughly appreciates these he may be willing to concede some part of the application of such economic principles for the sake of old prejudices in force of a particular way of raising revenue. Whether a man is a free trader or a tariff reformer, limited, he should be able to give the reasons for his faith, and this book will provide him with them.

"The club has sent out about a hundred thousand copies of the work and hopes to circulate at least a million. In this time of political upheaval no Reformer can afford to ruin his opportunity to preach the gospel of tariff reform, and a spare dime, quarter, or dollar cannot be invested to better advantage than in this work. The book can be read and then handed to some benighted protectionist. This will be an act of charity and good citizenship.

"The farmers, whom the reformers have heretofore been unable to reach, are now trying to find out what it is that keeps them poor, and it is the duty of Reformers to help them in their investigation. A dollar spent now on these earnest men will do more good than a hundred dollars paid to some heeler or ward bummer on the day of election, and this expenditure will have the merit of honesty, instead of savoring of corruption. An educated honest man is more valuable to the party and the country than any block of five political thugs that ever voted any ticket.

"We have a long list of names of persons to whom it is desirable to send the book, and all money sent to the club to be used at its discretion is applied to this purpose. We find that it is a common practice for some one person to collect small sums from his acquaintances and then to order ten or more books. This is an easy method and we encourage it."

A note addressed to the club will bring circulars and subscription blanks.

Ripe Fruit.

The New York Tribune of May 16, contained an editorial entitled "Fruits of the New Tariff," but one of the ripest and most perfect specimens of that fruit appears in the same paper, but in another column. It is a dispatch from Providence, May 15, and is as follows:

The American Screw Company, of Providence, is about to build a factory in Leeds, England. It will cover an acre and a half of ground. In this factory the company will place a large quantity of its machinery now idle in this city. President Angell assigns as the principal reason for the step the onerous conditions requisite to securing drawbacks on the export of the company's product imposed by the present tariff law.

More McKinley Blessings.

The McKinley tariff has driven four large smelting establishments to Mexico, begun to divert Mexican ore from the United States to Germany, driven an iron foundry from Maine to Nova Scotia, reduced the wages in the rolling mill in New Haven, and caused or permitted the reduction of wages in a couple of hundred other industries or individual establishments.

Among its other effects has been the announcement that the American Screw Company would remove a considerable part of its machinery to England to make screws for the foreign trade because our duties on raw material render it impossible to make screws for the foreign trade here, and the drawback clauses of the McKinley law have been found impracticable.

While the new tariff has not yet established the manufacture of tin-plat in this country it has driven a dinner pail factory over into Canada.

A Hearty Indorsement.

Rev. William R. Clark of the Methodist church at Newton Centre finds the election of Dr. Phillips Brooks a source of congratulation, and believes that the Methodist denomination will so regard it. He says:

Dr. Brooks very clearly and ably symbolizes the progressive element of the Christian church; and his election to the bishopric, representing the broad church faction, cannot fail of most pleasant recognition and felicitation by our people.

We esteem him as a man of most eminent talent and broad catholicity. It is true that for the city of Boston, his voice is a new voice, and his attention to the routine and details of his office, there may be a discounting of his value and usefulness; but there will be a more than compensation in his intercourse with and teachings to the clergy of the diocese. His words and example to the state and to the country will have an added influence and control impossible in the rectorship.

I regard the action of the convention as most wise and thoughtful, and that it will serve to heal the variances existing in the Episcopal church, so much to be lamented by its true friends. The criticism and opposition to Dr. Brooks within his own denomination is a strange spectacle, and it seems to me that a schism in the Episcopal church that will antagonize Rev. Phillips Brooks at a time when he is to render to it the best possible service, and after 20 years of such devotion and usefulness as he is just closing, is as unthinking as it is bold.

The Christian churches in the country most highly appreciate the minister who stands without peer in his own sect, and perhaps in any other.

The Boston Canoe Club.

The Boston Canoe Club held the seventh opening of their clubhouse on Charles river at Riverside, Saturday, and it was one of the most successful openings the club has experienced. Most of the club members were at the clubhouse early in the day and at the arrival of the noon train by which most of the invited guests arrived, everybody was in readiness for their reception. The house stands picturesquely on a high bluff on the Weston side of the river and is surrounded by oak trees which partially screen it from view, and a winding path leads down to the float where the canoes lay in the water. From the tall flag staff floated a cream pennant with "B. C. C." in orange, and the club members wore their colors, orange and black. The officers of the club are: A. R. De Groot, commodore; W. H. King, vice-commodore; C. S. Le Baron, secretary; F. R. Sawyer, treasurer; F. A. Pierce, Captain. The club was organized April 30, 1885, by a number of Boston gentlemen who wished for some quiet retreat within easy reach of the city, and it includes among its members several Newton gentlemen. It differs from the regular club, the object being mainly quiet recreation as the members desire during the summer, and it is used by the members or their families for camp, or for weeks at a time, enjoying the seclusion which it affords and the canoeing on the Charles. The membership of the club is limited to 85 and there are at present members as follows: J. P. Corlies, Tru. N. Y.; D. S. Waite, Lewiston, Me.; C. C. Briggs, Jr., P. F. Good-brode, C. E. Damon, W. E. Sleeper, L. H. Howe, G. F. Thurston, A. A. Mills, A. J. Philpot, J. P. Curtis, George M. Fera, Boston; C. P. Graves, W. E. Worcester, Brighton; A. S. Mitchell, Lexington; A. E. Berry, Charlestown; C. H. Sprague, Auburndale; Grand Thomas, Melrose. Mr. James S. Burdett of New York, the most successful humorist in the country was a guest of the club and frequently gave numbers during the day. His great power and depth of expression was wonderful and the humor was greatly enjoyed.

"How Winning Cup Won the Race" a portrayal of a race with a human life as the stake, brought tears to the eyes of several in the room, and his original poem was full of hits on members of the club and called out great applause. Dudley H. Prescott of Boston, the well known impersonator, and J. S. Reynolds were present and gave many fine imitations and impersonations which called out hearty applause. Mr. Frank Young well known in Boston as a prominent church singer gave some excellent numbers with his even, powerful intonation and Mr. Harry Young also sang. The day was spent in meeting old friends and in canoe trips on the river and at 3 o'clock Commodore De Groot announced dinner and all enjoyed lobster salad, chicken, salmon, lettuce, ice cream, sherbet and strawberries and cream although seats of any kind were tabooed. Supper was enjoyed early in the evening, and then nearly all joined in a trip down the river to Malden and returned. From the river in the evening the club house presented a fine appearance, Japanese lanterns adorning every available hanging place. Among the guests were noticed: Mr. Arthur J. Kenyon, Mr. W. M. Leveson, Mr. J. D. Brant, Mr. Alex. B. Robinson of New York; Mr. John A. Corliss, Mr. W. S. Pachard of Troy, N. Y.; Mr. C. E. Neil, Mr. Charles Nell, Mr. Shear of Lynn; Mr. E. M. Whitney of Newtonville; Mr. A. H. Bailey, Mr. E. W. Keyes and Mr. Charles H. Sprague of Auburndale; Mr. C. E. Foster, Mr. Fred Hall, Mr. Fred Burns, Mr. Charles Merrill, Mr. F. H. Appleton, Mr. Leopold Wolfson, Mr. E. R. Smith, Mr. C. E. Richmond, Mr. Charles P. Comer, Mr. E. G. Earrar, Mr. F. S. Young, Mr. C. H. Whitten, Mr. W. F. Hall, Mr. F. W. Noyes, Mr. O. Allen of Boston.

I suffered for more than ten years with that dreadful disease, catarrh, and used every available medicine which was recommended to me. I cannot thank you enough for the relief which Ely's Cream Balm has afforded me.—Emanuel Meyers, Winfield, L. I., N. Y.

A Real Balsam is Kemp's Balsam. The dictionary says, "A balsam is a thick, pure, aromatic substance flowing from trees." Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs is the only cough medicine that is the real balsam. Many thin, watery cough remedies are called balsams, but such are not. Look through a bottle of Kemp's Balsam and notice what a pure thick preparation it is. If you could use Kemp's Balsam, "At all druggists." Large bottles 60c. and $1.

NEWTON TRANSCRIPT HAS BEEN CONSOLIDATED WITH THE GRAPHIC

THE NEW ALMSHOUSE.

There was quite a discussion over the new almshouse appropriation Monday night, especially as the finance committee appeared to have taken the matter out of the hands of the public property committee, where it properly belonged. But the whole order was referred to them, which should not have been done, as the finance committee has properly only to do with the way of raising the money. The former committee has spent months in consideration of the subject, and naturally did not relish having all their labors thrown aside.

If the public property committee had understood that a cheap building was desired, they could have had plans made accordingly, but no one has heretofore suggested such a thing. Newton could not without doubt build a cheap almshouse as Waltham has built, if such a building was desired. But the Waltham building has what are regarded as serious defects by our city almoner, the overseers of the poor, and other citizens who have inspected it, and it has one thing that would seem foolish in the locality of Winchester street, and that is a dining room in the basement. Such a feature might pass in a thickly settled community, but where land is cheap, more regard should be paid to the comfort of the inmates than to compel them to take their meals in a basement, which could not fail to be gloomy and unfavorable to health.

What is wanted is a plain, substantial building, that will answer all requirements for the next half century at least. As the city will make a profit anyway, by the sale of the present almshouse farm, there is no need of looking too closely to the cost, and if the plan proposed by the public property committee is the most suitable one, and better adapted for the purpose, then the city would not grudge the three or four thousand extra cost. An unsuitable building would be dear at any price, and as the majority of the inmates will be old and feeble, many of them confined to their rooms, there is the greater necessity of having a building that is carefully constructed, so that it can be properly heated and arranged with a view to the greatest comfort of the inmates. Nevertheless there is no need of a Hotel Brunswick in which to lodge the paupers, or of providing them with fresh cucumbers and other costly luxuries every month in the year, but there is a judicious medium between useless extravagance and grudging parsimony, and the committee in charge is abundantly qualified to choose that happy medium.

FIRE DEPARTMENT EXPENSES.

Now that the aerial ladder truck has been purchased it would seem to be a good time to halt on any further enlargement of the fire department. A new truck had to be bought, and it was perhaps as well to get the latest pattern, as it will last for a good many years. A new engine house has been built and equipped at Newton Highlands, and a new hose house talked about for Nonantum. The expense of maintaining the fire department has been very largely increased by these additions, and quite as much added to the tax list as is wise. We can not have any very extensive fires in Newton, with our detached buildings, and none of any importance have occurred in recent years. It is well to have protection against fire, but in moderation. It is not wise to have a fire department that costs more than the property it is designed to protect.

The insurance companies expect to have some losses, and if our protection is too perfect, not only will the companies be disappointed, but people will feel so secure that they will neglect to insure their buildings and property, and the insurance companies would be ruined. The city council should begin to let their moderation be known to the citizens, especially in regard to fire department expenses.

Alderman Harbach's remonstrance against further increase of expenditures was timely, and his position is supported by public sentiment. The city council has so far this year been extremely liberal in regard to the fire department, and any further increase of expenditures could wisely be postponed to another year.

THE WALNUT STREET RAILWAY.

The great majority of the citizens will be glad to hear that the project of a street railway on Walnut street, from Newtonville to Newton Centre, has been revived and that a hearing is to be given on Monday evening, June 15th. The need of such a means of conveyance between the two sides of the city has long been apparent, and the great convenience of the electric cars on Washington street has created a popular demand for a line connecting the two sides of the city.

The circuit railroad exists of course, but its fares are so high as to be almost prohibitory to the great majority, and hence a cheaper mode of conveyance is demanded. President Morse, representing the trolley system company, appears to talk business, and says he is willing to accept a location on the condition that the road shall be in operation this fall. What the other company will do has not been stated, but it may be assumed with safety that the public do not care what system of propelling the cars is used, so long as cars are run. The Newton Street Railway is giving very satisfactory service, and possibly having both lines under substantially one company would be a distinct advantage in the matter of transfers and fares.

At the coming hearing the people who have been bewailing the lack of communication with the south side of the city should make it a point to be present, and convince the board of aldermen that the road is a necessity, and this we do not think will be a difficult task this year. The road would certainly be a great thing for Newton, in the opening up of hitherto inaccessible land, so that it could be built upon by persons of moderate means.

AN EXCELLENT SHOWING.

The Highway department has finished the reconstruction of Woodland avenue, for which $4,300 was appropriated, and so well has the work been managed by the Highway committee and the efficient superintendent of streets, Mr. Ross, that the work has cost only $2,532, a saving of 41 per cent. The items on which savings were made were $500 on crushed stone, and $128 on labor and teams. Superintendent Ross is getting a good reputation as a hustler, in the highway department, and part of the saving was due to the use of city teams and carts on the work.

The Highway committee have an appropriation of $25,000 for widening and reconstruction of streets, and they hope to make the same saving on the other streets on which work was planned under this appropriation, which will save the city about $10,000, if they are successful, as they probably will be. The committee is a thorough business body, and is doing excellent work under Chairman Fenn. The work is pushed forward, instead of being allowed to drag, and those who drive over the streets of the city are more than pleased at the improvements.

When Mr. Ross was elected superintendent much was expected of him, from the excellent record he had made at the Newton cemetery, and the anticipations are being realized in a very satisfactory manner. His team is becoming well known from its daily appearance all over the city, and the good effects of his constant oversight are evident. Like all able managers he is popular with his men, and it looks as though the difficult problem of caring for the streets was in a fair way of being solved under his management. With our many miles of streets, many of which are subjected to heavy travel, the street department is almost as expensive as the city schools, and it calls for the wisest and most economical management to keep the streets in fair condition, and the departments seems to be in very capable hands.

THE HOSPITAL NEEDS MONEY.

The Newton Hospital needs help now to meet its debts. A large number of bills are unpaid. The controversy over the management has had a bad effect upon the finances of the hospital, but now that both sides have accepted a compromise the time has come to square off the indebtedness.

It has been suggested that a special relief fund be started at once. Checks from $5 to $100 and over can be sent to the treasurer, Mr. G. S. Bullens, Waverley avenue, Newton; mark "Special Relief" and make payable to "George S. Bullens, treasurer."

Now that this hospital has become so well known all over the country for its excellence, and now that it enters upon a new era of success—it will not do to let it be crippled for the few thousands which can be contributed so easily by Newton people.

The committee's plan for redistricting the state passed the house, yesterday, 117 to 100, after one of the hottest political contests ever fought in the legislature. This is a great victory for honest politics, and shows that Massachusetts has lost her ancient characteristics. There were enough Republicans to make too much independence and respect to wear the Lodge collar, among whom were Messrs. Chester and Howard of Newton, who deserve well of their constituents. They will have the approval of the people, who do not believe in petty politics or "peanut" politicians. The men who have served as Mr. Lodge's subversive lieutenants have not benefited themselves, and have gone down into the depths for nothing. In the long run it pays in politics to be fair and honorable, as in anything else, and in the matter of redistricting Massachusetts has set a worthy example to the other states.

The trim appearance of the Newton streets is in part due to the care of the abutters in keeping the strip of grass between the sidewalk and the road closely cut, as well as the lawns. If neglected, this strip gives a very unkempt appearance to the streets, and it spoils the effect of the handsome lawn. By frequent cutting the grass is also kept in much better condition.

THE MILFORD JOURNAL trots out John D. Long as its candidate for governor, and thinks he should sweep the state so thoroughly as to have a magic effect on the presidential election in 1892. The Journal does not dissimble its lack of any love for Speaker Barrett, who, it claims, is hustling for the nomination.

REFORM does not seem to be popular in the Senate, as it defeated the bill to compel the publication of campaign expenses. Senator Gilman favored the bill and it was a step in the right direction. Honest politics will have been promoted by the measure.

Newton C. E. Union.

The Lowery Society of Christian Endeavor, of Nonantum, will have the privilege of welcoming the Newton Christian Endeavor Union at the North Evangelical church, next Monday evening, June 8th, at 7:45 o'clock. This will be the closing meeting of the season, the next regular meeting coming in October, and it is hoped there will be a large attendance of all the societies of the Union.

A service of praise and thanksgiving has been planned by the executive committee and pains taken to make the praise service attractive and inspiring, and those who love good music will doubtless feel well repaid for attendance. Vocal selection will be rendered by members of the Union.

All are cordially invited to attend, both old and young.

Mr. Thomas F. Anderson of the Boston Globe, has been appointed press agent of the Yarmouth Steamship Company, which maintains such a fast and popular service between Boston and Yarmouth, Nova Scotia. This picturesque province has become the Mecca of summer tourists, and the company's elegant steamers, Boston and Yarmouth, the quickest and finest on the coast, are now running four trips a week, each way, making close connections with all parts of the province. A cheaper or more delightful vacation could not be had.

Auction.
On Morse street, Saturday 3 p. m., the house and lot numbered 26 will be sold without reserve.

The Newton Pomroy Home.

After nine years faithful and efficient service Miss Anna L. Boyden has resigned her position as superintendent of the Home. The condition of her health called for this resignation. The warm regards and best wishes of the board of directors accompany Miss Boyden. Those friends who have known the Home and its inmates, since its foundation in 1872, by the late noble Mrs. Rebecca Pomroy, Miss Mary C. Shannon and Mrs. Daniel L. Furber will rejoice to learn that by the unanimous vote of the directors, Miss Elizabeth J. Robbins has been appointed superintendent. Miss Robbins was an inmate of the Home under Auntie Pomroy, whose sweet spirit she largely inherits. She has filled the office and discharged the duties of assistant superintendent the past six years, most devotedly on her part and satisfactorily to the directors. As assistant superintendent the directors have been fortunate in securing the service of Miss E. Orcutt, late of the Boston Female Asylum. The Home with its eighteen inmates is thus continued under most favorable auspices.

Sale of Land in Ward One.

Messrs. F. G. Barnes & Son, Real Estate agents have, this week sold for the account of James Simpson about 200,000 square feet of land situated on Newtonville avenue, Mt. Ida, to a syndicate of four Newton gentlemen who propose to immediately build a 40 foot street from Bellevue street into their land, making an attractive terrace to be called Bellevue Terrace, opening up building lots of about 9000 square feet each, from each of which a beautiful and extended view will be obtained. These lots will be modern in plan, reasonably restricted, and very convenient of access, being within three minutes walk of the electric cars. Surveys and plans are now being made.

Give Johnson's Anodyne Linctum a fair chance, and it always "gets there" when needed.

They were the guests in the evening at the Crane-Sage wedding and upon returning home called upon Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Chaffee, Otis street, where they were agreeably surprised by a company of friends. The many happy and happy social features were the order of the occasion.
—As early as 5 o'clock on Decoration Day morning, a band of warriors, members of the Crane-Sage wedding, were seen in the distance wending their way apparently toward the new flag staff which, as a matter of fact, proved to be their destination. Soon after the reveille was sounded by Dr. Drummer Blue and Beyerly, Wiley and Atwood, a patriotic speech was made by Past Commander Sylvester of Charles Ward Post and the flag was unfurled on the new staff for the first time. About 1000 graduates of the post participated in the exercises and the early risers formed a small group of spectators.
—The Newton Club nine played a game with the Newtonvilles on the Magnolia grounds Saturday morning, and one man made a remarkable slide for the home plate. The Newton Club men had a "single" for several innings, Hamilton's peculiar delivery proving a puzzle to the opposing batsmen. The lights, however, never, Dearborn went in to pitch for the Newton Club and was batted hard, the game being lost by a score of 16 to 12. The Newton Club possesses the material for a good nine, and it is probable that the boys will soon put up a pretty stiff game of ball.
—At a special communication of Dalhousie lodge, F. & A. M., held Wednesday evening, work in the craft degree was the order of the occasion. But as an incidental feature the GRAPHIC man learned of an evidence of the spirit of fraternity and sympathy which is felt by true masons for a suffering or needy brother. The sum of $52.75 was raised for a man who had been injured and was in need of assistance. The exercises after the lodge meeting were of a very pleasant character. A collection was first taken of and at its conclusion, the Dalhousie male quartet rendered acceptably several numbers and Mr. T. E. Stutson gave some amusing recitations.
—The Clafin school contained a merry company of pupils last Friday afternoon when Ex-Gov. William Clafin presented the school with a flag and staff. During the afternoon memorial exercises were held in the upper class rooms. Subsequently all the classes in both buildings assembled in the hall of the new annex to take part in the closing exercises of the day. Each scholar carried a flag. The closing exercises were made by Ex-Governor Clafin. He alluded to the significance of the national emblem and said that all true American boys and girls loved the "stars and stripes." Mr. Chas. A. Drew received the gift representing the school board, the teachers, scholars and residents. He said that the flag was a symbol of sacrifice, patriotic love, and loyalty to country and duty. Mr. E. Bradshaw made a few closing remarks, a speaker, he said, should begin quick, leave off soon, and be short in the middle. While the school was singing "America" the flag was unfurled and thrown to the breeze. At the close of the exercises Mrs. William Clafin stated she would give a prize of $10 to the boy or girl who wrote the best composition on the flag.

The floral decorations were arranged by the flower committee of the Newell Society of Christian Endeavor, Clarence West and William Folsom having charge of the work.

—Arthur W. Porter, who is obtaining fame as a bicycle rider, brought laurels to Newton this week won in a race at Newark, N. J., last Saturday. Porter broke all former records at that place, making a 25 mile record of 1 hour, 27 minutes, 11 seconds. Porter made the track heavy and the record made is considered remarkable. For prizes he has received a very valuable silver cup and handsome marble clock.
—Memorial Day was a great day for Newton pedestrians. Captain F. Wilson of the Newton Bicycle Club commanded over 250 wheelmen at the Worcester meet. Mr. A. K. Pressy of this city entered in the one mile open scratch ordinary race, time limit, three minutes. Pressy came in second but the race was declared off as it was not finished in the allowed time. Mr. Pressy was third in the one mile state race of the enlargement and he also took part in the one mile handicap.
—Memorial services were held in the Baptist church last Sunday morning. The auditorium was decorated with flags and bunting and a large variety of tropical plants were massed upon the pulpit platform. A delegation of members of Charles Ward post and J. Wiley Edmunds camp, S. V., occupied reserved seats in front of the pulpit and there was a large attendance of regular parishioners. The musical selections were furnished by the quartet choir, several patriotic hymns being rendered including "To Thee O Country" and "America" in which the congregation joined. Rev. D. W. Faunce, D. D., delivered an impressive discourse.
—The annual meeting of the Newton Woman Suffrage League was held at the residence of Mrs. H. F. King, Temple street, Tuesday evening. The former board of officers was elected with a few exceptions. Knapp of Watertown, Mrs. E. N. L. Walton and Mr. S. R. Urbino. Mrs. Sampson of Newton spoke of the late Judge Pitman, of his interest in the woman suffrage movement and of the many characteristics which had endeared him to a wide circle of friends and by which he had gained the respect and honor of the public.
—As the GRAPHIC intimated last week it seems probable that the chemical engine as steamer will be run from the same house. At the meeting of the aldermen Monday evening, the public property committee was authorized to procure plans for an enlargement of the West Newton engine house and Alderman Gregory, chairman of the fire committee, stated that it was proposed to provide apartments and offices for the chief of the department by the enlargement of the house and that the fire committee would probably recommend both pieces of apparatus be run from the same building. The idea didn't take particularly well, although it was passed in favor of the enlargement by a vote of 4 to 3. The matter will be next considered by the common council.
—The 25th anniversary of the Baptist Sunday school last Sunday was attended by a crowded house, who thoroughly enjoyed the interesting program arranged for the occasion. The Chalk Talk by N. S. Greet held the closest attention of the children and also the older people, but the singing by the "Bella I. Choir" of the anthem "Mighty Jehovah" was a genuine surprise to the large congregation present. This choir of six boys from one of the public schools of the village has been in training but a very short time and was their first appearance in public, and their sweet, pure voices and correct tones, with fine expression and clear enunciation of words gave evidence of their careful and skilful training. Their leader, Miss Jessie G. Stickel, a student of the New England Conservatory, and a pupil of Mrs. Clara Tourgee Nelson, justly entitled to great credit for the manner in which such difficult music was rendered by such young voices. The members of the choir took parts in the following order: Harold W. Burton, Fred Bates, first soprano; Woodbury L. Woodbury, Willie F. Chase, 2nd soprano; Paul Waters, A. Harry Mallon, altos. The report of the secretary showed a school membership of 192, a loss of 11 from last year. There were no deaths and 3 conversions. The average attendance was 119. From the financial statement these figures are gleaned: Amount in birthday box, $28.07; total receipts Sunday School department, $428.14; expenditures, $411.67; unexpended balance, $76.47.

—Mr. J. J. Ray, a well known Boston business man, while making an attempt to board the 7:30 inward bound passenger train on the Boston & Albany railroad, at the Auburndale station, Wednesday morning, slipped and was thrown between the rails and the depot platform, the wheels of the car grazing his foot and slicing off the back of one heel. In fact, he struck his head, receiving an ugly scalp wound. The injured man was taken to the Woodland Park Hotel, where he is stopping with his family. Dr. Clark, who is attending to him, stated that his injuries are not of a very serious character, but that he will be laid up several days as a result of the accident.
—The girls of Lasell Seminary were given a surprise party Monday morning. It was such a surprise that of those present at the time few, if any, will ever forget the occasion. Just after prayers who should walk into the chapel but the principal, Prof. Bragdon. Prof. Bragdon has often walked into the chapel. The girls have seen him walk into the chapel when they wished he wouldn't. But on this particular occasion he was supposed to be in Europe; yet there he stood before them. The professor thoroughly enjoyed it. Some laughed. Some were too surprised to laugh. One of the teachers was so completely taken back that she contented herself with sitting down and looking blankly into space. The girls continue to giggle every time they recall Monday morning's episode. Last October Prof. Bragdon, accompanied by his wife, two children and a party, started for a trip around the world. He was expected to have sailed from Liverpool for Boston later this week. He sailed earlier. The name of Bragdon did not appear on the passenger list for he had not been there. There was no Prof. Bragdon, but a plain Mr. C.—and family. It was that the surprise might be complete. Only one at the time knew of the professor's change of plan and that one was a young woman. Mirabile dictu! She kept the secret! Everybody at Lasell is happy, and not the least happy are the pilgrims who have found that "there's no place like home."

—Catarth of the Bladder.
I had been troubled since 1869 with Gravel and Catarth of the Bladder. Tried several doctors, but got no relief. Finally, at the advice of E. D. W. Parsons, I was prevailed upon to try Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. The result was marvelous. After using a few bottles, was entirely cured. S. N. Arnold, No. 663 Plymouth avenue, Rochester, N. I had severe attacks of kidney disease. My stomach also troubled me very much. I was prevailed upon to try Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. After using five or six bottles, I was cured. I consider it an invaluable remedy for kidney disease, Gravel, Strach trouble, and all diseases of the blood.—John Vander-slice, No. 1 Gregory st., Rochester, N. Y.

Lasell Notes.

After the drill on Friday, May 29, the annual fish dinner was served with its usual variety beginning with oysters on the half shell, then clam chowder, brook trout, frogs' legs, mackerel, blue fish, lobster salad, soft shell crabs and black bass. The vegetables were green peas, lettuce, radishes, potatoes and tomatoes. The dessert was ice cream, fancy cakes, bon bons and coffee. The menu was like all prepared by Mr. W. T. Shepherd, original and artistic.
Saturday evening occurred in the gymnasium the strawberry festival spoken of last week. It was under the auspices of the Missionary Society of the school. Miss Spiker, teacher of elocution, gave several recitations. The music of the evening was largely vocal and furnished by Miss Kingsman of Linn, Miss Snyder played the guitar. Miss Farrell's studio pupils combined with the society and exhibited a very creditable display of beautiful china of their own handwork, together with charcoal drawings and paintings in oil and water colors. The evening was very entertaining and furnished substantial pecuniary profits for the work of the Missionary Society.
Monday, June 1st, the principal, Mr. C. C. Bragdon and his family presented themselves at the Seminary to the immense surprise and delight of everybody. The matter of their return two weeks earlier than was generally expected had been a carefully guarded secret from all but one person, so that they stole in quite unawares. When everybody supposed them to be on the other side of the world Principal Bragdon suddenly appeared before the assembled school at the chapel morning service. The friends of Lasell will mourn with its inmates the sudden demise of one of its oldest inhabitants whose position in the main hall near the chapel door made him an object of attention. We allude to the aligator who has grown up with the household and claimed daily notice from his post of honor. An unhappy accident put an end to his existence on Tuesday, June 2. There is talk of appropriate funeral ceremonies when the post and orator of the occasion shall be found, and the body will probably be preserved in the usual fashion.
I have been a great sufferer from dry catarrh for many years, and I have tried many remedies, but none did me so much benefit as Ed's Cream Balm. It completely cured me. M. J. Lally, 39 Woodward Ave., Boston Highlands, Mass.

AERIAL LADDER TRUCK AND CHEMICAL.

SATISFACTORY TEST OF THE NEW FIRE APPARATUS AT NEWTONVILLE.

The Newton fire department is happy in the acquisition of two new pieces of fire apparatus. A Babcock aerial turntable ladder truck and a chemical engine of the "champion" pattern, furnished by the Fire Extinguisher Manufacturing Company of Chicago, Ill., through its eastern agents, Messrs. S. F. Hayward & Co., of New York City.

A formal test of the apparatus was made Tuesday. The aerial ladder truck was tried first in Newtonville square. The main ladder was extended 35 feet, and 10 hoemen ascended it while in vertical position, the great weight being put upon the upper section in order to determine its strength. Subsequently the ladder was run up vertically in the rear of Clavin's block, Newtonville; five men soon after mounted to the top with two hose lines, from which two streams of water were played by hydrant pressure. The main ladder and the splicing was also run to the roof of Clavin's block, to which point several firemen ascended. The chemical engine was then thoroughly tried, and the test of both pieces of apparatus proved satisfactory to the fire committee and other members of the city government present, including Mayor Hibbard, Aldermen Luke, Grebore, Hyde and Fenn, Councilmen Churchill, Forknall, Grace, Moulton, Dutch, Merchant and Richardson.

Besides Newton city officials, quite a number of out-of-town firemen witnessed the trial, among others Chief T. J. Casey of Cambridge, Chief J. K. Hopkins of Somerville, Chief C. H. Parks of Waltham, Chief W. O. Arnold and Assistant Chief J. A. Lord of Salem, and ex-Chief G. F. Fayerweather of Westboro. Others present were ex-Aldermen George Pettie, Messrs.

William I. Whiting and A. H. Spear, representing S. F. Hayward & Co., of New York; R. H. Abbott, representing H. K. Barnes of Boston; G. W. Clapp, representing J. Hinman and W. H. Mendell of the Gamewell Fire Alarm and Police Signal Company.

The aerial ladder truck cost $3200, and the chemical engine $2000. The main ladder of the aerial truck is 67 feet in length. Beside the aerial ladder, the truck is supplied with a 50-foot Bangor ladder and six other ladders, ranging from a 35-foot to a 14-foot ladder. It is supplied with the usual complement of hooks, axes, crow-bars, Babcock extinguishers, Detroit door openers, lanterns and other necessary fixtures. The main aerial ladder is trussed both ways and is raised by two vertical screws, operated by lever cranks. It works on a turntable and can be put up in any desired position or direction. The turntable is made of solid steel and the frame of channel steel, and the truck weighs nearly 7,000 lbs.

The running gear and frame-work is painted red with gold ornamentation and nickel trimmings.

The chemical engine has two tanks of 50 gallons capacity each. The frame-work of the machine is iron. The driver's seat accommodates two men and two more can find standing room on the footboard. The extinguishing fluid used is carbonic acid gas, which has an extinguishing power of 40 to 1 as compared with water. The engine is equipped with a patent door opener, ladders that splice and other useful appurtenances.

The new truck will be located at Newtonville, and the chemical will find a home in the new engine house at Newton Highlands.

The above cut shows the new truck "at rest" and also in position for use.

FLOWERS STREWN UPON THE GRAVES OF DECEASED SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

Memorial Day was observed with interesting exercises in this city.

In the morning details of Charles Ward post 62, G. A. R., decorated graves in the cemeteries at Newton Centre, West Newton and Newton Highlands.

More formal exercises were held at St. Mary's cemetery. Lower Falls, there being a large attendance by the post, a procession forming at the hose house, headed by the band, the boys from Pine Farm school, in uniform, doing escort duty. At the cemetery a song was given by the Pine Farm boys, prayer was offered by Chaplain Morse, and brief, but very appropriate remarks were made by Rev. Mr. Munro, after which the sixteen graves were decorated simultaneously.

J. Wiley Edmonds camp 100, S. V. decorated the graves of the late Hon. J. Wiley Edmonds and Col. J. C. Edmonds at Mt. Auburn.

The principal features of the day, including the parade, occurred during the afternoon, when the graves of 80 soldiers and sailors in the Newton cemetery were decorated by comrades of Charles Ward Post.

The post and military organizations met in Newtonville square shortly after 1 o'clock, and soon after the line was formed on Walnut street, the right resting on Watertown street. The column moved promptly at 2 o'clock, marching in the following order:

Platoon of police, 17 men, City Marshal Richardson commanding.

Chief Marshal H. W. Downs.

Acting Adjutant Gen. W. W. Montgomery.

Maj. G. H. Benyon, Chief of Staff, and the following aids:

Maj. S. A. Hamlett, Capt. G. W. Morse, Capt. R. D. Moorehouse, Capt. J. Q. Bird, Capt. W. H. Stearns, Capt. B. S. Hatch, Messrs. E. L. Collins, J. F. Allen, Frank Edmonds, J. D. Kelley, F. L. Cook.

Crescent band, Waltham, 24 pieces, F. J. Smiley leader.

Clavin Guard, company C, 5th regiment, M. V. M., 34 men, Capt. G. C. Applein commander.

Past commanders of Charles Ward post, escorting Commodore Joseph Pyffe, 10 S. V., and Representative S. E. Howard.

Charles Ward post 62, G. A. R., 110 men, C. W. Sweetland commander.

J. Wiley Edmonds camp 100, S. V., 20 men, Capt. A. M. Kimball.

Disabled comrades in barges.

Newtown High school band, drum and bugle corps, 30 men, J. G. Holmes drum major.

Newtown High school battalion, 150 men, Maj. Samuel Tyler commanding.

Mayor Hibbard.

Members of the city government and guests in carriages.

The route of the procession was through Walnut and Washington streets to the City Hall, West Newton, receiving the mayor and city government; thence via Chestnut, Valentine and Walnut streets to the Newton cemetery.

After the exercises at the cemetery, where brief remarks were made by Rev. H. J. Patrick and prayer offered by Chaplain Morse, the line reformed and marched via Walnut and Beacon streets and Lake avenue to Newton Highlands where a dress parade was held and the command dismissed. The members of the several military organizations, the city officials and guests repaired to the new engine house at the Highlands after the parade was dismissed, and partook of a substantial repast provided by gentlemen of Newton.

The several military organizations marched in platoons to the Newton cemetery and after reforming proceeded in solid ranks to Newton Highlands. The general marching and appearance of the several organizations was excellent, the veterans, especially, coming in for the applause of interested spectators along the route of procession. The High school boys were in it too and received many compliments for their fine wheels and steady marching. Many houses along the marching route decorated with flags and bunting and the grounds of the numerous estates were clad with the verdure of spring and relieved with beautiful flowering beds and tasteful shrubbery. It was an ideal day for marching in many respects, although the rain of the preceding day had left the streets somewhat muddy. When the procession was reviewed by the city fathers at West Newton, the square was thronged with spectators and everybody seemed to be impressed with the significance of the ceremonies, recalling to mind the record of sacrifice and devotion for country's sake.

The music this year was quite a congenial feature, the Crescent Band making quite a favorable impression, and the High school band, drum and bugle corps jumping, at once, into popular favor.

The dress parade was witnessed by a large number of spectators and the various interesting features generously applauded. The marching movements were cleverly executed and the officers gave evidence of a thorough familiarity with the details. The music was furnished by the Crescent Band and High school band and drum corps, under command of Drum Major J. G. Holmes. The High school boys and the members of Co. C, 5th Regiment made a creditable showing in the manual and received many compliments for their good work.

Public memorial services were held in the Second Congregational church, Sunday afternoon. The pulpit platform and gallery were decorated with flags and bunting, and the pulpit was enwrapped in the folds of the stars and stripes. Every seat in the spacious auditorium was occupied and many were obliged to stand during the services. The seats on either side of the broad aisle were occupied by Chas. Ward Post 62, F. P. H. Rogers Post 29, Waltham, J. Wiley Edmonds camp 100, S. V., and the Newton High school battalion. The visiting post from Waltham was represented by 75 of its members and nearly 100 members of the local post attended the services.

The order of services was as follows: Organ voluntary, J. E. Trowbridge; anthem, "To Thee O Country"; invocation, Rev. H. J. Patrick; response, choir; address of welcome, Rev. H. J. Patrick, D.D.; prayer, Chaplain S. E. Morse of Chas. Ward Post; response, Amphion male quartet; congregational singing, "Onward Christian Soldiers"; Scripture reading, congregation, and response by the choir; singing, Amphion male quartet; solo and chorus, all uniting, "Mine Eyes Have Seen the Coming of the Glory of the Lord," Miss Emma C. Upham, soloist; address, Gen. John L. Swift; singing, Amphion male quartet.

Gen. Swift spoke of the significance of Memorial Day. It is, he said, an anniversary in recognition of national valor and patriotism, a tribute to the men who went to the front from '61 to '65 and brought back the American flag with every star shining in its field of blue, an emblem of an unconquered nationality. [Applause.]

It was after the organization of the Grand Army of the Republic, May 30, 1888, continued the speaker, that the first general order from the national headquarters was issued by Gen. Logan, for the observance of Memorial Day and its observance has been kept up every year since. The man who signed that original order has passed away and loving comrades will decorate his grave. He was one of the most gallant and loyal generals of the Union Army. [Applause.]

We hear an occasional spattering and muttering that there is too much of gush and sentiment in the Memorial Day observances, but I believe that the citizens of our country should be reminded, at least once a year, of the awful price paid for the civil privileges that we now enjoy. Is it not worth while, also, to repeat to the living soldiers the story of their deeds and sacrifices, and to recall the sympathy and consecrated devotion of the women during the war of the rebellion. Is it not well to picture to the people the sufferings of the loyal armies in their efforts to save the country from destruction? Let us remember then the fearful experiences in the prison pens, the sad scenes in the hospitals, the maimed and battle-scarred veterans, the victims of disease and starvation, the unknown dead and the desolated homes.

Why did the nation pile up this colossal debt and terrible suffering? The question was fully answered in the words of the lamented Lincoln—"That a government of the people, by the people and for the people might not perish from off the earth." Through the bloody war of the rebellion, the principles of freedom and equality were sustained and the American flag and the American nation established forever and forever. [Applause.]

Memorial Day, then should be devoted to the soldier and the war that he fought. Gush and sentiment some say, but the American has the right to gush for the American soldier did something worth talking about. Most loyal Americans are inclined to stand before the dear old flag with uncovered heads. There may be a few stolid natures who look upon the stars and stripes with as much indifference as though gazing at a striped awning. In fact, there is no greater opinion of the American eagle, or any other bird, in such that can't be fattened for the market. [Applause.]

But you would not look to these men for the judicious, large hearted counsel in the interests of the future welfare and prosperity of our country. Such narrow minded men could hardly be expected to map out the policy of a country striving on toward an ideal future. Don't be afraid of gush and sentiment. The soldier business, as it is sometimes termed, cannot be overdone. Our country was worth fighting for in '61, and it is worth loving and talking about in 1891, with all the fervor of language that can be used. Gladstone in 1878, said in speaking of the American republic, "In one century of freedom its population has jumped from two millions to forty-five millions, and in 1880 America will probably be the richest nation in the world." If Gladstone can find such words of laudation in speaking of America, can we not find words of laudation in speaking of the American eagle? I believe that the American eagle is a proud citizen? [Applause.]

All over the world, we have the records of man's fidelity to flag and country, but in no tale of courage or human conquest before the war of the rebellion, did one race risk its all for the liberation of another race. The patriotic heart, there, throbbing with love and devotion, waged a war which vindicated the manhood of American freemen, unfettered the chains of an enslaved race and secured the preservation and perpetuation of the union. [Applause.]

AN OUTLINE OF THE PLANS FOR ASSOCIATION WORK.

Rooms have been leased in Bacon's block, 277 Washington street, which, attractively furnished and provided with games, etc., are intended as a social resort for young men.

In them will be given such parlor talks and other entertainments as are adapted to their needs.

At suitable times various meetings and Bible classes will be conducted for such young men as may desire to attend.

It is proposed to develop other lines of association work, adapting them to the wants of the young men of Newton, as rapidly as such wants are recognized and the citizens of Newton supply the facilities to meet them.

It is not exclusively a work of the board of trustees, a president or a general secretary. It is distinctly a work of young men, with young men, for young men.

It needs the co-operation of ladies to make its rooms attractive; of men of affairs to manage its business; of young men to do the detail work and enjoy its privileges, and the hearty moral and financial support of all classes to enable it to accomplish the great work it has undertaken.

The Newton association is now sending out its subscription books soliciting of the ladies a special fund of some $800 to complete the furnishing of its rooms. A few ladies have already responded, and have already assumed the expense of the painting and papering which has been done.

The expenditure of this fund will be in charge of the following named ladies and the rooms committee of the Association: Mrs. J. W. Brigham, Mrs. H. Campbell, Mrs. G. S. Harwood, Mrs. H. S. Leonard, Mrs. A. S. March, Mrs. E. M. Springer and Mrs. J. H. Wheelock; rooms committee, B. L. Goodwin, S. W. Moore, H. Campbell and C. F. Bacon.

The suggestion is also made that donations of pictures, easy chairs, parlor tables, table books of interest to young men, a clock, easel or other articles of use or ornament would be thankfully received.

The Spring Medicine.

The popularity which Hood's Sarsaparilla has gained as a spring medicine is wonderful. It possesses just those elements of health-giving, blood-purifying and appetite-restoring which everybody seems to need at this season. Do not continue in a dull, tired, unsatisfactory condition when you may be so much benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood and makes the weak strong.

I Don't Want a Doctor

I have tried them, and they have only cost me. I have figured up what they cost me for the last four years, it was just $24.31. If I had it now it would be a fortune for me. This year my bill for medicine was only five dollars, for which I purchased a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. They cured me of Scrofula after suffering four years.—P. J. Cummings, Troy, N.Y.

It won't cost you one-half as much. Do not delay. Send these two cents stamps for postage, and we will send you Dr. Kauffmann's great work, fine colored plates from life, on disease, its causes and home cure. Address, A. P. Ordway & Co., Boston, Mass.

The last pen work by Gen. Sherman is to appear in the June Century in the shape of a transcript of manuscript of his Press Club speech on "The Old Army." It was not reported at the time. To illustrate this article the magazine will contain a picture of a bust of the General by Augustus St. Gaudens, who made the model in about eighteen sittings of about two hours each. St. Gaudens avoided all use of photographs in the work.

Be Sure

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me to buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me they would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other."

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and felt, for some time like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." Mrs. ELLA A. GOFF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

All women desiring to be assessed for a poll tax should have their written request for such assessment in the form required by the act of 1889, ready for delivery to the Assessors when they shall visit the house where they dwell. Each request shall be upon a separate sheet signed by the applicant with her name in full. Persons holding estates in trust, whether for minors or otherwise, are particularly requested to furnish the Assessors with statements in relation to such estates.

When estates of persons deceased have been divided during the past year, or have changed hands from other causes, the Executors, Administrators, Trustees, or other persons interested, are required and warned to give notice of such change; and in default of such notice will be held to pay the tax assessed, although such estate has been wholly distributed and paid over.

Any mortgagee or mortgagee of Real Estate may bring in to the Assessors of the town or city where such Real Estate lies, at the time specified for bringing in the list, as provided in Section thirty-eight of Chapter eleven of the Public Statutes, a statement under oath, of the amount due on each separate lot or parcel of such Real Estate, and the name and residence of every holder of an interest therein as a mortgagee or mortgagor. When such property is situated in two or more places, or when a record of mortgage includes for one sum two or more estates or parts of an estate, an estimate of the amount of the mortgagee's interest in each estate or part of an estate shall be given in such statement. The Assessors shall, from such statements or otherwise, ascertain the proportionate parts of such estates that are the interests of mortgagees and mortgagors, respectively, and shall assess the same. Whenever, in any case of mortgaged Real Estate, a statement is not brought in as herein provided, no tax for the then current year on such Real Estate shall be invalidated for the reason that a mortgagee's interest therein has not been assessed to him.

Owners and agents of ships and vessels engaged in the foreign carrying trade, are referred to Sections 8 and 9, of Chapter 11 of the Public Statutes, for the form of return required to obtain exemption from taxation upon the valuation of such property. All persons will take notice that statements of personal property must be in writing and subscribed under oath before the Assessors, on or before the fifteenth day of June, and that the Personal Property of all taxable persons must be estimated by the Board, notwithstanding any verbal statement or informal written communication to any one or more of the Assessors.—Pub. Stat. Chap. 11, Sec. 89 and 91. When a person has failed to bring in a list or schedule of all his taxable property, in conformity to this notice, no abatement of a tax assessed on Personal Estate to such person can be granted, unless such tax exceeds by more than fifty per cent. the amount which would have been assessed to that person on Personal Estate if he had reasonably brought in said list; and if said tax exceeds by more than fifty per cent. the said amount, the abatement shall be only of the excess above the said fifty per cent.—Pub. Statutes, Chap. 11, Sec. 73.

—Miss Gertrude Rogers, daughter of Mr. Moses G. Crane of Lake avenue, and Mr. William Evans Sage of Cleveland, O., were married at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening at the residence of the bride's parents, and the event was of brilliant social nature. Fully 700 invitations had been issued to the reception, which followed the ceremony, and the house was filled with a fashionable company, representing many of the prominent Newton families, and not a few from surrounding cities and towns. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. George W. Shinn, D. D., of Grace church, Newton, assisted by a brother of the groom, Rev. J. F. Sage of Cleveland. The Episcopal form was used, and the bride, who was unattended by either maid of honor or bridesmaids, was given away by her father. She was attired in white satin, cut on train, with lace garniture, and wore diamond ornaments and the usual tulle veil. She carried a bouquet of smilax. The couple stood upon a mat of daisies trimmed with smilax, and were married and received in a recess formed by a bay window and partially surrounded by potted plants and flowers. A mass of roses and other flowers covered the piano and the mantle was banked with flowers. The walls and hangings of the room were trimmed with smilax. During the reception the Germania orchestra discoursed music from a position on the piazza. The ushers were Louis A. Hall, H. P. Kidder, Edwin R. Crane and Newton Crane of Newton, and Arthur G. Hatch of Cambridge, and Hubert Wilbur of Boston. The gifts, which were very elegant and numerous, were displayed in one of the upper rooms. The couple left for Boston at a late hour and started Thursday for Saratoga. They will reside in Cleveland. The groom is a member of the editorial staff of the Cleveland Town Topics.

COLEY-LANCASTER.
The First Congregational Church at Newton Centre was the scene of a brilliant wedding at noon Thursday. The contracting parties were Miss Alice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Coley of New York, and Mr. William H. Lancaster, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Lancaster of New York. Over 1500 invitations were sent out and the church was completely filled with guests.

The floral decorations were very beautiful, those within the chancel consisting of an elaborate display of palms and hydrangeas. Wreaths of hemlock were placed upon the pews either side of the broad aisle, and a chain of daisies supplied the place of customary ribbons, extending from the rear of the church to the seats directly in front of the pulpit.

At 12 o'clock the pages, Lancaster Peter Clark and Edward Lord Clark, nephews of the bride, who were attired in the most elegant blue velvet costume, passed up the broad aisle, followed by the bridesmaids, Miss Kate Emery and Miss Maria Welch, and opened the door for the bride, who entered, leaning upon the arm of her father. She was preceded by the ushers and the maid of honor—her sister, Miss Elizabeth Lancaster.

The bride met the groom, with his best man, Dr. Arthur C. Fiske of New York, at the altar.

The ushers were Mr. Morton E. Cobb of Newton, Dr. Nathaniel S. Huntington of Quincy, Mr. Clinton Palmer, Dr. William S. Culbert, Dr. H. H. Holden and Dr. Robert H. Lyman of New York. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. J. Holmes, pastor of the First Church, assisted by his pastor emeritus, Rev. Daniel F. Furber, D. D., and Rev. Edward Huntington, Coley of Connecticut.

The bride was attired in armor silk and chiffon and carried a bridal bouquet of lilacs of the valley. The bridesmaids wore Louis Quinze coats of green tulle, white chiffon skirts and lace hats, and carried pink roses. The costume of the maid of honor was of white chiffon, and she wore a hat of white mull and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony at the residence of the bride's parents on Waverley avenue. It was attended by only the relatives and intimate friends. The floral decorations of the house were very tasteful, consisting of an exquisite display of cut flowers, arranged upon table and mantel, and a variety of potted plants, placed within the corners and recesses of the several apartments. The Germania orchestra was stationed in the hall, and furnished an elaborate musical program.

At the conclusion of the festivities, Dr. and Mrs. Coley departed on their wedding tour. They will hold a wedding reception at the residence of the bride's parents in Newton on September 21. They will reside in New York city.

BASE BALL.

NEWTONS VS NATIONAL BANKS.

The Newtons of West Newton defeated the National Banks of Boston on the former's field at West Newton last Saturday morning.

The game was very close and full of good features. Peters did some good work in the box. Fogwell and Look made many good plays for the Newtons. Thatcher, who pitched for the National Banks, was hit in the arm during the fifth inning, so Swazy was substituted and he was not in excellent condition, being somewhat lame. Burtage made a fine stop at second. Taylor and Tracy were hard hitters and did excellent work for their nines.

The National Banks would have done better if the pitcher had not been disabled. The score by innings is appended:

Innings, 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9

Newton, 0 1 3 0 2 0 1 2 6-9

National Banks, 0 3 0 1 0 0 0 1 4

Double play by Haskins and McGrath; two-base hits—Stacy 2, Taylor; passed balls—Stacy 2, Peters 4; base on balls—by Thatcher 1, Swazy 1, Peters 1; struck out—by Thatcher 2, Peters 7.

THE CITY GOVERNMENT.

SEVERAL MATTERS HUNG UP IN THE COMMON COUNCIL.

The Common Council met Monday night, with all the members present except Messrs. Collins and Sprague. Business from the board of aldermen was disposed of in concurrence, including the report against a steamer at Nonantum.

The order for the enlargement of the West Newton Engine House was laid on the table, Messrs. Dutch, Merchant and Jordan voting no.

The extra appropriation for schools gave rise to quite a debate. Mr. Forknall thought it ought to be taken from the highway appropriation, as so much was being saved there.

Mr. Dutch did not know how all these extra appropriations were to be managed as the assessors had their figures for the year made up. It seemed to him that the school committee might find some way of saving a little. He had yet to learn that Newton schools were superior to others and yet they were the most expensive of any.

Mr. Churchill said the appropriation was cut down last year, and this was only restoring it to its original figure.

The order finally failed of passage, Messrs. Dutch, Forknall, Grace and Jordan voting no.

Mr. Churchill presented a petition for the widening of Spruce street, Ward 2, signed by A. T. Sylvester, clerk of the Universalist society, J. Wesley Kimball, and thirty others.

An order was passed appropriating $40 for the laying of 36 feet of 6 inch water main on Walker street.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Mr. Richardson presented an order from the committee on fire department, providing for the putting of Steamer 2 in commission, the removal of the Chemical to the Hook and Ladder House at Newtonville, and of Hose 4 to Nonantum, as soon as the hose there is ready.

Mr. Merchant protested against the removal of the Chemical, as West Newton was the proper place for it, the location was more central, and a larger amount of territory could be protected. It was needed just where it was.

The order was passed by a majority vote.

On motion of Mr. Richardson $225 was appropriated for the purchase of a horse, and changed to Highway general repairs.

On motion of Mr. Roffe the mayor was authorized to execute a contract for a system of tile drainage for the Newton Centre playground, the cost of which, he said, would be within the appropriation of $600.

Mr. Forknall presented an order that the $2,000 for schools be taken from the appropriation for highway reconstruction and repairs.

Mr. Moulton said the highway committee had stated that they could find use for all their surplus, but he would like to know how they were going to use it.

Mr. Richardson said that the experience of former years had shown that the highway department never had too much money, but too little, and he thought that would be the case this year.

Mr. Bothfield said he hoped this order would not pass. It was the beginning of a very strange policy to take money from one department and add it to another, before the year was half gone, because of a rumor that some money had been saved on one or two jobs. He did not believe that the highway committee could do all that was necessary with the money that they had. It was a curious plan to limit a committee in this way, and he did not like the idea. The member who had introduced it was always singling out the highway committee for little stabs, for some unexplained reason. If he wanted to attack the press, why did he not do it, instead of trying to hit the papers over the heads of this committee.

Mr. Forknall said he was surprised at the charge, as it was the first time he had referred to the highway committee, as far as he remembered, which statement provoked a general smile at the member's poor memory, which evidently does not extend as far as the meeting two weeks ago, when he attacked the committee for allowing a building to be put up on city land, or in fact any other meeting of the session.

Mr. Grace said he was opposed to the order, as the highway committee needed all their money. His colleague from Ward 2 had made bitter complaints of the bad condition of the streets in his section, and any extra money saved could be used there.

The order failed to pass. The board then took a long recess, after which Mr. Forknall moved to reconsider the school appropriation order and the board concurred with the aldermen.

ALMSHOUSE.

Mr. Roffe introduced an order appropriating $25,000 for the building of an almshouse, the money to be raised by two notes, payable in 1895.

Mr. Dutch asked what was to be done with the old farm. It had been stated that it was very valuable, and why was it not sold and money raised to pay for the almshouse.

Mr. Roffe said it was the intention to sell it, but a forced sale was not the proper way to get the best results. The city would realize more by waiting. Mr. Olmsted had been at work drawing plans for the property, and when these were completed something might be done.

Mr. Moulton asked if this sum included the cost of the stable and outbuildings or just the house.

Mr. Roffe said it did not include the stable, the present sum was only for the house.

Mr. Dutch asked if a stable and outbuildings would not be needed.

Mr. Roffe said they would, but the committee had not got as far as that; the almshouse was the most important and we are preparing for that first. He should be glad to add two or three thousand, if the council desired.

Mr. Weed moved to amend to make the sum $25,000, but the motion was not seconded.

A vote was then taken and the order failed to pass by a vote of nine to three, Messrs. Merchant, Weed and Weed voting no. The board then adjourned.

I Had a Stone in the Bladder.

And my kidneys were affected. None of the means taken produced any benefit until I began the use of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y. The pain ceased—the stone having been dissolved by the action of the medicine. I am ready in public or in private to testify that my recovery is due to Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy.—F. D. Strangers visiting Newton are enthusiastic in their admiration of Farlow Park and its surroundings. It is a rare combination, a well kept, open space, three unusually fine stone church edifices, and some attractive private residences, with a glimpse of Mt. Ida in the distance.

What a chance for improvement there would be if some one were to buy the old Perry place on Galen street and the adjoining property along Williams street, and build a dozen or so of neat cottages. This is practically a part of Newton, and houses of moderate cost would be taken up at once.

Children's service at Eliot church Sunday next at 7 p. m. The church will be decorated under the direction of L. B. Gay, and potted plants to be given to the primary department. In addition to special music by the children there will be solos by Mr. Dunham and Miss Lawton and addresses will be made by Rev. F. W. Peleubet, D. D., and the pastor.

Last Friday evening a very interesting meeting was held in the Eliot church chapel. Remarks were made on the American Home Missionary Association anniversary, held in Saratoga by Rev. Geo. Wood. Mr. Thomas Weston, Esq., informed the people about the Italian settlement in Newton. Then Monsieur Bertrand of Paris, who is actively connected with the McCall mission spoke of the religious work in France.

"The Mothers' Meeting" had their semi-annual festival in the parish house of Grace church last Friday afternoon and evening. After a social hour or so in the parlors a brief service was held in the chapel, when an interesting address on "The Work of the Church in the North-West" by Rev. Geo. Buzzelle of Idaho. Supper was served in the choir room, and later on the pleasant entertainment consisting of songs, tableaux and a play. The whole occasion was thoroughly enjoyed by the large number attending.

A unique entertainment was offered last Saturday afternoon to a large company in the chapel of Eliot church, by Mrs. Tobey and some children from the Children's Home, Boston. It was under the auspices of the Newton Branch of the Hygiene and Emergency Society. Dr. Shinn, the president, explained the plans of the society and stated that the present exhibition was towards the Play Ground Fund for poor children. After this Mrs. Tobey and her pupils illustrated the processes of making the kitchen fire, washing dishes, sweeping, room cleaning, mending, door bell, making beds, etc., as all these are taught in the Kitchen Gardens in Boston. For over an hour the attention of the audience was held by the songs, marchings, tableaux and a play. The whole occasion was a very pretty exhibition, and instructive to all, but beyond all was the pleasure of seeing children who might have grown up in idleness and ignorance, taught how to earn their own living in a respectable way. Before the close of the gathering Mrs. Kate Gannett Wells made an address, explaining the plans of the Play Ground movement, and the gymnasium for women and children. A collection of $17 was made. Persons who want to add anything to this can send their contributions to Miss Buswell, secretary, Franklin street, Newton. It will make pleasant vacations for those who are well to do if they try to make the summer happier for the poor.

NONANTUM.

The officers of the Sunday School recently elected are: Superintendent, A. R. Coe; Assistant Superintendent, M. E. Cobb; Secretary, Miss Madam; Treasurer, W. E. Lowry; Librarian, Albert E. Frye.

The Sunday School anniversary exercises will take place next Sunday evening at 6.30. Hon. G. D. Gilman will address the school.

A very interesting meeting of the Newton Christian Endeavor Union was held in the North Church, Monday evening. The first 15 minutes were occupied by a hearty praise service, followed by many short testimonies. The subject of praising God. Very interesting remarks were made by Rev. Edgar Davidson, the evangelist. A quartet from the Ladies' Society gave several very pleasing selections, and a solo was rendered by Miss Gray and a duet by Misses Henderson and Worth. The floral decorations were very fine, and were the work of the flower committee of the Lowry Christian Endeavor Society.

This relates to a Dr. Belman. He was playing whist one evening with a maiden lady for a partner. She trumped his best card, and, at the end of the hand he asked her reason why. "Oh, Dr. Belman (smiling), I judged it judicious." "Judicious! judicious! judicious!! you fool!" She never again touched a card. Was it the same maiden lady who was the strong believer in homeopathy, and who one day took five globules of acetate in mistake for three? Frightened, she sent off for her homeopathic adviser—he was from home. So for want of a better, she called for old Dr. Belman. He came, looked grave, shook his head, said if people would meddle with dangerous drugs, they must take the consequences. "But, madam," he added, "I will die with you!" and lifting the bottle of the fatal globules, swallowed the whole contents—Blackwood.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

The Arena (Boston) for June has a fine frontispiece portrait of Phillips Brooks, besides portraits of Julius Chambers and B. O. Flower, editor of the magazine. Julius Chambers writes of "The Chivalry of the Press," Julian Hawthorne of "The New Columbus," Camille Flammarion of "The Unknown," and Editor Flower of "Society's Exiles." Besides these are many other valuable papers. The Arena, which opens its fourth volume with this number, has more than doubled its subscription list within six months.

"Mrs. Partington" was and will always be, more famous than her genial creator, Benjamin Penhallow Shillaber, but it was a little surprising that upon the death of the old humorist a few weeks ago, so little was said in the press concerning him. "Mrs. Partington" achieved not only American currency; she is known wherever the English tongue is spoken. In England she shares the honors with Mrs. Malaprop, and "Partingtonisms" are borrowed without credit by all the English alleged "funny" papers. In the New England Magazine for June Mrs. Elizabeth Akers Allen writes an appreciative and bright account of Shillaber, who certainly deserved better of this generation than a brief paragraph in the papers chronicling his decease, since "Mrs. Partington" lives on and seems endowed with eternal jollity and middle-age.

The subjects that have had the greatest share of attention from thoughtful men for the past month have undoubtedly been Immigration, Our Currency, the Case of the Rev. Dr. Briggs, and the International Copyright Law, which will go into effect July 1. The June number of The Forum contains discussions of all these subjects. The Rev. Dr. Briggs himself contributes a criticism of the churches for insisting on non-essential parts of their creeds. Our Congressman William MacDoo, of New Jersey, points out the intimate relation between immigration and the tariff, making an argument to show how by the exclusion of foreign goods and by the free admission of foreign workmen we play into the hands of other nations. Senator William M. Stewart, of Nevada, considers silver coinage with reference to the need of more money and makes the strongest statement perhaps that has anywhere appeared on the side of those who favor the free coinage of silver.

The first chapter of a serial story by George du Maurier, entitled "Peter Ibbetson," appears in Harper's Magazine for June. This story, which is written in the form of an autobiography, is one of peculiar psychological interest, involving many strange incidents connected with the phenomena of dreams. It is illustrated by the author in his own inimitable style, and being his first novel will attract very general attention from the beginning.

The complete novel in the June number of Belford's Magazine is "A Bargain in Souls," by Ernest De Lancey Pierson. It is well written and interesting. "The Wage System" is treated at length by Eva McDonald. A paper on "Physical Culture: a joint article headed Genius and Mortality," "The Disease of Genius" by Victor Yarras, and "Are Men of Genius Wicked?" by Frederick T. Jones; Foreign Trade and Reciprocity, by Franklin MacVeach; Popular Science, by Felix L. Oswald; Philology, by Edgar McDonald. A paper on "Matters Lyric and Dramatic" by Fred Lyster, are all interesting. Then there are stories, poetry and editorials which will engage the attention.

A paper that will attract considerable attention in Scribner's this month is a study of "Shakespeare as an Actor," by Mr. Alexander Cargill. The illustrations are reproduced from the collection now owned by Mr. Henry Irving, and many of them equal the text in interest and value. Lieut. J. D. Jerrold Kelley contributes the second article of the series upon "Ocean Steamships." The paper is also profusely illustrated. Mr. E. H. House explains "The Transfer of the Temples of Ise." "Broadway" is described in a realistic manner by Mr. Richard Harding Davis. Miss Besse A. Ficklen writes briefly on "Dream-Poetry." The rest of the number is devoted to fiction.

St. Nicholas, as advertised, is a magazine for children, but it is by no means necessary to be a child in order to enjoy every line of the June number. Such stories and such pictures are a delight to any one who is so fortunate as to own a copy. The Century Co., New York.

Short Work of a Troublesome Case. One day I was taken with Paralysis of the Bowels. The stomach and other organs lost all power of action. Although opposed to proprietary medicines, I tried Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y. To make a long story short, it saved my life. It is the best medicine in the world for difficulties of the kidneys, liver and bowels.—A. J. Gifford, Lowell, Mass.

Both the method and results when Syrup of Figs is taken; it is pleasant and refreshing to the taste, and acts gently yet promptly on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels, cleanses the system effectually, dispels colds, head-aches and fevers and cures habitual constipation. Syrup of Figs is the only remedy of its kind ever produced, pleasing to the taste and acceptable to the stomach, prompt in its action and truly beneficial in its effects, prepared only from the most healthy and agreeable substances, its many excellent qualities commend it to all and have made it the most popular remedy known.

Syrup of Figs is for sale in 50c and $1 bottles by all leading druggists. Any reliable druggist who may not have it on hand will procure it promptly for any one who wishes to try it. Do not accept any substitute.

ASSOCIATION.

OBJECT.

THE object of this association is to furnish homes to its members on an instalment plan at the very lowest cost. According to the lapses on old line insurance and one to five year orders for the past five years, fifty per cent. of all have lapsed. We find by careful investigation, a homestead costing Three Thousand Dollars can be obtained at a cost of about Eighteen Hundred Dollars to all members of this association. Our plan is this; All members pay five Dollars to join this association and as soon as this fund reaches the amount of Three Thousand Dollars, certificate holder No. 1 can buy or build a house, select his own location, and make his own contract for building, plans and specifications to be approved by the association. The members shall first give a mortgage for Three Thousand Dollars without interest, less the amount paid in by said member, and shall continue to pay his weekly instalment until his mortgage is paid up in full.

SOURCES OF PROFIT.

THE lapse element. It is impossible to hold any considerable number of persons together in any kind of an association without change; old members drop out and new ones come in, change in condition, alteration of mind, death, etc.; all contribute to exemplify this principle, and constitute an inevitable law by which the persistent members realize a large profit. All members start equal, as each one has to pay in full for his homestead, less the lapses, which, according to past five years' experience, place the lapses at fifty per cent. This will reduce the cost of each member's Three Thousand Dollar house to Eighteen Hundred Dollars, or less. Ninety per cent. of all instalments go to the building fund, ten per cent. to the general fund to pay the expenses of the association.

For further particulars apply to any of the following members or at the company office, Burnham Building, Room 11 and 12, 74 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

The Tariff is a Tax.

Every person interested in the subject of the Tariff, is cordially invited to take part in the discussions carried on in this column. Respectful consideration will be given to inquiries, criticisms, and communications of every kind, whether coming from Tariff Reformers, Free Traders or High Protectionists. Address Secretary of the Tariff Reform Club, Newton Centre, Mass.

Two Sides To It.

The McKinley Tariff bears harder on the poor man than on the rich man, as the following comparison indicates:

Rich Man's Goods: Fine cassimeres advanced 25 per cent.; broadcloth, advanced 20 per cent.; silk velvet, no advance; silk linings, no advance; silk laces, advanced 20 per cent.; sealskin sacks, reduced 38 per cent.; black silk, no advance.

Poor Man's Goods: Imitation of seal sacks, advanced 120 per cent.; cotton corluro, advanced 114 per cent.; cotton laces, advanced 50 per cent.; woollens, advanced 40 per cent.; cotton velvet, advanced 100 per cent.; cotton linings, advanced 285 per cent.; black alpaca, advanced 66 per cent.

How to Account for the Farmer's Alliance.

[From the Omaha World-Herald.]

The government puts a tariff on every article the farmer buys, and when he buys the article a part of the price is the tax the government has levied upon it. As soon as the farmer is born the government begins to tax him. If the baby has the colic and his mother gives him a dose of paregoric, the government taxes it 40 per cent, and it never lets up on the taxing afterwards while there is a cent in his pocket. Most farmers and working men wear flannel shirts for a large part of the year. At 5 o'clock he gets out of his bed and puts on a flannel shirt that is taxed 100 per cent. This costly garment, for which he paid twice what it could have been sold for at a fair profit, having been buttoned up with buttons taxed 150 per cent., he proceeds to put on a pair of trousers. They are made of coarse heavy cloth, and the tax is made correspondingly heavy, so they cost him 100 per cent. more than they otherwise would. He straps them over his shoulders with suspenders taxed 65 per cent., and proceeds to put his feet into a pair of socks taxed 120 per cent. He wears coarse, heavy socks, and he must pay about four times the tax the rich man does for elegant, thin light ones. He then thrusts his feet into a pair of coarse cow-hides, which have been taxed 25 per cent., after which he puts on a coat taxed 95 per cent. He wakes up his wife and goes out into the kitchen and starts a fire with coal taxed 75 cents on a ton, and the smoke goes up a brick chimney taxed 45 per cent.

Then he goes out and pitches hay to the cattle with a fork taxed 45 per cent. in a rack taxed 40 per cent., and feeds them salt taxed 44 per cent. out of a barrel taxed 40 per cent.

After giving slop to his pigs, out of a barrel bound with iron hoops, taxed 35 per cent., he goes into the stable, taxed 40 per cent. to feed his horses out of troughs, taxed 40 per cent.

Meanwhile his good wife has arisen and cooked his bacon, which he had cured with salt taxed 44 per cent. (no rebate) on a stove taxed 45 per cent. The old farmer came to the house, and taking a pail taxed 20 per cent., went to fetch a pail of water (water not yet taxed,) which he got from a pump taxed 35 per cent. He closed the door taxed 20 per cent., which was hung on hinges taxed 35 per cent., and was held fast by a lock taxed 45 per cent. Then he washed his hands in a tin basin taxed 35 per cent. with soap taxed 20 per cent., and wiped them on a brown line towel taxed 35 per cent. He went into the dining room, covered with an oil-cloth carpet taxed 40 per cent. His wife pulled out a table taxed 20 per cent., and spread upon it a tablecloth taxed 40 per cent. She put on it some brown earthenware taxed 50 per cent. and white plates taxed 50 per cent.; the knives and forks were also taxed 50 per cent. The glass tumblers out of which they drank milk were taxed 181 per cent., and the roof under which they sat was taxed 20 per cent.

The good wife poured coffee out of a coffee pot taxed 35 per cent., and stirred it up with a spoon taxed 45 per cent. The bill of fare was not elaborate. It consisted of coffee taken out of a can taxed 55 per cent., bacon cured with salt, taxed 44 per cent., bread made of flour taken from a bag taxed 35 per cent., and butter seasoned with taxed salt. After breakfast the farmer put on a hat taxed 55 per cent., walked over a taxed carpet which covered a taxed floor, out of a taxed door, hung on taxed hinges, and fasten with a taxed lock, into God's air, not taxed yet. He then got some wire nails, taxed 150 per cent., and taking a hammer, taxed 50 per cent., and a saw and axe, taxed 55 per cent., he repaired a pig-pen with lumber taxed 20 per cent.

After he had finished that job he went into the stable and put a bridle and harness onto his horses, taxed 35 per cent., led them out from the taxed stable to a taxed trough and pumped untaxed water for them from a taxed pump.

He hitched them to a plough taxed 1 per cent., and started to the field to put in many lovely hours preparing the ground for another crop. The wife swept the floor with a broom taxed 25 per cent., went into the best room, the taxed floor covered with an ingrain carpet, taxed 60 per cent. She got a needle, taxed 25 per cent., and threaded it with cotton thread, taxed 74 per cent. At first she thought she would make herself a dress of some printed cotton, valued at over 15 cents per yard, taxed 45 per cent., but she at last concluded to make her husband some clothes of common woolen goods, taxed 111 per cent. After sewing some hours on the taxed material, with a taxed needle and thread, sitting in a taxed chair on a taxed carpet, which covered a taxed floor she went out to work in the garden and she took a hoe and shovel, taxed 45 per cent., with which to dig up the weeds. After the long, weary day is over the farmer comes home. He feeds the pigs, chickens, horses and cattle and swine, and comes through a taxed door and sits at his taxed table once more, which is lighted with a glass lamp taxed 180 per cent.

After supper the farmer takes down his Bible, taxed 25 per cent., reads a chapter from the holy book, thanks God that he has cast his lot in the "freest country on earth" and then retires and covers himself with a blanket taxed 111 per cent.

"The years slowly pass away; the farmer grows old; the hair of his head is white as snow; his good wife is wrinkled and bent; finally he dies and he is put in a coffin taxed 110 per cent. The minister comes and reads the service of the Church, and he is carried to his long home, and over the ground his children erect a monument to his memory which is taxed 80 per cent.

"That is the way," continued the neighbor, "that we pay our government taxes. But you never get any tax receipts. If you did you could tell just what you paid and that would create a revolution inside of six months; but then these taxes do not all go to the Government. Of every five dollars of taxes raised in this way one dollar is paid to the Government, and four dollars to the millionaire manufacturers."

PLEASANT FESTIVITIES.

THE FIRST OF THE JUNE CONCERTS OF THE NEWTON BOAT CLUB.

Last Saturday the clubhouse of the Newton Boat Club, Riverside, was the scene of pleasant festivities.

During the afternoon the river was practically alive with boats between Newton and Waltham, and it required nearly the entire fleet of pleasure craft at the Newton boathouse to accommodate the club members and their lady friends.

In the evening the first of the June concerts was held, and quite a large company of society people participated. Music was furnished by Dow's orchestra of Cambridge, and dancing was enjoyed from 8 until 10 o'clock.

The dance hall of the clubhouse was prettily decorated, and the exterior of the building and grounds were illuminated with Japanese lanterns.

Three more concerts are announced for the successive Saturday evenings of the month, those of June 13 and 27 to be preceded by canoe and boat races on the river, one of which promise lively competition.

The club will make an especial effort this year to furnish interesting features, and the season will be one of the most enjoyable in the club's history. The clubhouse is now being enlarged, and a fine apartment will be fitted up in the east wing, opening into the main hall of the building.

The decorative features of the walls and ceilings will be very unique and tasteful. Other improvements to the house will be soon commenced, to include the extension of the boathouse on the front, with additional piazza space. The bowling alleys in the main hall will be made to conform to the regulation standard with a view to the winter sports, and the club will be represented in the Amateur Interclub Bowling League the coming season.

Among those present at the concert Saturday evening were: Ex-President Hubbard and wife, Mr. E. E. Hardy, Mr. Dwight, Mr. Charles Asbrand and lady, Boston, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Dennison, Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Barker, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Marble, Mr. Charles Richardson, Mr. A. R. Richards, Prof. C. C. Bragdon and ladies, Mr. Drake, Mr. W. W. Cole, Mr. Ed. Spurr, Mr. W. A. Hall, Mr. Austin Kilburn, Misses Page, Mr. C. W. Cole, Miss Osgood, Miss Fuller, Mr. W. C. Brown, Mr. C. A. Brown, Miss Edith Page, Mr. M. E. Cobb and party, Mr. E. L. Pickard, Jr., Mr. I. F. Rogers, Mr. F. P. Royce, Mr. Horatio Page, Mr. H. S. Potter, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Keyes, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Rowe, Mr. A. W. Vose, Mr. Henry Langley, Mr. and Mrs. Whittlesey.

Tennis at Newton Highlands.

Nearly all the young people of Newton Highlands play tennis, and many of them play a scientific game. One of the principal organizations is the "Hittermysit" Tennis Club. The active membership numbers about 40. This year makes its third season. A meeting of the club was held recently and arrangements made for the summer months. Three gravel and grass courts will be laid out, but the location is not yet decided upon. There is plenty of land in Newton Highlands well adapted for tennis courts, and a level plot can be easily found. The present officers of the club are: Pres., Arthur W. Tarbell; vice pres., Miss Alice Heckman; sec., Walter Nash; treas., Frank P. Levi.

The best players in the club are Mr. Tarbell and Mr. Tyler, both of whom have shown considerable skill in the game. These gentlemen have won prizes for the past two seasons. Mr. Albert Putney is another member of the club, who is regarded as an all round player. He has taken active part in tournaments and was one of the successful winners in the Newton Highlands tourney last year. The fair sex take a great interest in the fascinating sport. Miss Alice Heckman is a good player and makes havoc with the balls with her racket. Miss Etta Logan, Miss Grace Whittemore and Miss Gertrude Nelson are also good players. Many other members of the club are skilled in the sport, and it is evident that Newton Highlands possesses its fair quota of amateur tennis experts.

I suffered for more than ten years with that dreadful disease, catarrh, and used every available medicine which was recommended to me. I cannot thank you enough for the relief which Ely's Cream Balm has afforded me.—Emanuel Meyers, Winfield, L. I., N. Y.

I have been a great sufferer from dry catarrh for many years, and I tried many remedies, but none did me so much benefit as Ely's Cream Balm. It completely cured me. M. J. Lally, 39 Woodward Ave., Boston Highlands, Mass.

No Matter How Hard any druggist will try to sell you a medicine, remember he does it because he makes more money on it. Insist on having Kemp's Balsam for the throat and lungs, for there is no cough medicine so pure and none so quick to break up a cold. For influenza, soreness of the throat and tickling irritation with constant cough Kemp's Balsam is an immediate cure. Large bottles 50c. and $1. At all druggists.

The advice with each bottle of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is worth many times the cost.

The Partridge Tournament.

The season of tennis tournaments is at hand, for though winter has lingered in the lap of spring this year in a particularly exasperating manner, we cannot, in the nature of events, expect much more semi-arctic weather.

One of the events of the tennis season for Bostonians is the annual tournament given by Horace Partridge & Sons. This year it will be held at the Woodland Park Hotel, between June 29 and July 10. As usual players may expect a rousing good time.

Most of the cracks will be on hand, including F. H. Hovey and E. S. Mansfield. The latter, with Willis Farrington of Lowell, will be on the committee.

The Partridge prizes will be worth $450, and in addition several hundred dollars for the prize list have been promised by well wishers of the tournament. Last year there were 43 entries; this year there will probably be more than that number.

Mrs. Wickstaff—My dear, this ribbon you have brought home for Fido is a trifle too light. Wickstaff—All right, I'll try it over. Mrs. Wickstaff (the next day)—My dear I'm sorry, but the ribbon you have brought home to-day, is a shade too dark. Wickstaff (wearily)—Then wait until to-morrow, and I'll change the dog.—[Clock Review.

Husband and Wife

Have more than once been saved by the timely use of Kemp's Balsam for the throat and lungs, after all other remedies have been tried in vain. The Balsam stops decay of the lungs and cures influenza and acute and chronic coughs. There is no other medicine in the world that acts so promptly, certainly none that does its work so thoroughly as Kemp's Balsam. All druggists sell it. Large bottles 50c. and $1.

It won't cost you one-half as much. Do not delay. Send three two-cent stamps for postage, and we will send you Dr. Kauffmann's great work, fine colored plates from life, on disease, its causes and home cure. Address, A. P. Ordway & Co., Boston, Mass.

REINDISTRICTING PASSED.

The Redistricting bill has passed both branches of the legislature and is signed by the governor. Massachusetts is thus saved the disgrace of a gerrymander, and the bill that was endorsed by the people generally as a fair and equitable division has been enacted in spite of the efforts of Congressman Lodge, who wanted his own district made more unanimous and of numerous petty politicians who were proud to wear Mr. Lodge's collar.

The debate in the house, Wednesday, was a very spirited one, and Representative Powers of Hyde Park appears to have carried off all the honors. Messrs.
Wardwell and Olmstead lead the fight against the bill and announced the ridiculous doctrine that it was the true Republican policy to find out what their political opponents wanted and then vote against it. Such a policy can only lead to defeat, and would more often than not place the party in the wrong.

Representative Powers said he believed in standing up for the right, no matter who favored it. The legislature ordered a non-partisan division of the state, and it was made by this bill. He also said:
"This bill is something of which you will be proud, and you will be proud, too, to know that your State has taken the first step in this direction. Republicans must think of and work for the future and not rely upon the past. If you do this you will carry the people with you and win the State, and it will matter little how the districts are made. Don't put a collar round the neck of a man and then, when he starts to go ahead, pull the chain and draw him back. That is too much like the organ and the monkey, and is not the way to lead a party.
Rather lead by holding up something good and right and worth working for, and by that you will win the approval of the people."

There is no question but that Representative Powers is on the right and also the popular side in this matter, and if his principles are those he here proclaims, he is a much safer leader to follow than men whose only idea of conducting a political campaign is to "find out what our political opponents want and then work against it." No victory worth having can be won on that policy, no matter who enunciates it, and it has proved a disastrous policy in the past few years.

AN organization of the business men of Newton is talked of, and may result in some action before the year is over.
The storekeepers feel the need of some protection against loss by bad debts, and they believe that if they had an organization, with a secretary to whom all persons who did not pay their bills were reported, they would save many hundred dollars during the year. As it is now they have no means of knowing save by experience, the reliability of any customer. Any man may run in debt to all the stores in one village, and by simply removing to another village can repeat the operation there, and so on all round the circuit. A list of those who do not pay promptly would also be a great advantage, as the mere fact that such a list was in existence would have a good effect on delinquents. The great majority of Newton people pay promptly, it can be said to their credit, but there are a few, mostly new comers, who are not satisfactory customers in this respect.
Any one who started a trade association of the kind outlined above, would find all the business men eager to become members.

THE action of the Common Council in ordering the chemical engine removed to Newtonville has aroused considerable feeling in West Newton. They wanted Steamer Two put into commission, but they also wanted the Chemical, and it does not console them to be told by Newtonville people that Ward Two is the center of the city, and if the fire department apparatus is to be concentrated at any point it should be in that ward.
The order will be likely to be heard from when it reaches the board of aldermen, and there are some who predict that it will never pass that body.

Ex-Gov. LONG says he is satisfied with his political experience, and the idea of leaving his profession for politics is intolerable. He adds: "Let the party look forward and not back. There is abundance of material in it. It is in a majority in Massachusetts. It is right.
Let it select a good, fresh, clean, wholesome candidate, and he will be elected."

THE Cambridge board of aldermen voted 6 to 4 against granting any druggists licenses to sell liquor. The ground taken appears to have been that as all the druggists sold liquor indiscriminately, it was unfair to make any distinction, and so the whole batch were condemned.
Cambridge will have plenty of temperance drug stores, this year.

Some Important Points.

Ex-Alderman Pettie sends us the following letter in regard to certain proposed changes of fire apparatus, which contains points that deserve a careful consideration before any change is made. We might introduce the letter by quoting from the excellent speech Mr. Pettie made at the Newtonville fire banquet, which was not reported in full on account of the lateness of the hour. Mr. Pettie was introduced as the defeated candidate, but he scored a point on his introduction by saying that "we are told that it is by much tribulation we enter into the Kingdom, and also that there are such things as blessings in discuss," and he was satisfied to let the case rest there. This definition of his position was received with hearty applause which left no doubt of the ex-alderman's popularity with the firemen, who had been connected with him through the fire committee for many years, and his experience gives his words especial weight. His letter is as follows:

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC:—
After making a few remarks suggestive of the importance of maintaining the efficiency of the Newton fire department, on the occasion of the introduction of the "New Babcock Truck" etc., and banquet given by the Newtonville fire association, I was questioned concerning the proposed removal of the hose from Newtonville and placing it at Nonantum. At the time of speaking I did not understand that any such undertaking was seriously entertained by the city council of Newton, and I do not believe that any such action will be taken.

The reasons for not doing so are apparent in the few simple facts that I will briefly offer:
First: The city has invested in high and grammar schoolhouses, truckhouses, etc., in the very near vicinity of the truck, nearly $200,000 worth of public property. And there are nearly 1000 pupils in school 200 days in the year, some of them coming from all sections of the city to attend high school. Second: There is now stationed at Newtonville one hose company, at Newtonville one hose company and at Newton Centre one hose company. These three hose companies cover considerably more than one half of the fire risks in the city, five eighths or two-thirds perhaps.
Third: At West Newton, Auburndale, Upper Falls and Lower Falls there are now stationed four hose companies to cover the lesser risks of the city. Therefore, if Nonantum needs a hose, then let the city purchase a new apparatus for that portion of the city and it would be an increased force for the better protection of Newton and its vicinity. When we consider that the hose at Newtonville is the only medium through which water in large quantities can be quickly carried into the schoolhouse in that village if either of them should be so unfortunate as to need any such help, and the possible loss of life resulting from the delay occasioned by hose being sent in from some other place, and that the upper and southern portion of the city is already better protected than the lower or northern sections, there seems no possibility of the city fathers doing any such injudicious legislation and even if they should I confidently believe the mayor would not sanction such an order by placing his signature thereto.

GEO. PETTIE.

N. H. S. Lyceum.

A large audience assembled at the High school building, Wednesday evening, to listen to the closing exercises of the Lyceum. The teachers, members of the school board and many parents were present. President Howard Whitmore called the meeting to order, and made a brief address of welcome. First on the program was a musical selection by the Newton Centre Mandolin and Guitar Club. Mr. Peck, a member of Grace church choir, gave a song. President Whitmore then introduced Rev. Francis B.
Hornbrooke as speaker for the evening. Mr.
Hornbrooke gave a stirring discourse on the study of history full of valuable hints. After the Newtonville orchestra had rendered a solo, a unanimous vote of thanks was given to the evening's entertainers. The meeting then adjourned.

lard's property will take place here Saturday.

church fair last Saturday. Four straight bullseyes was the record of the victor, the best possible score.

Henry Ballou was taken, Sunday, for drunkenness and disturbing the peace. He is a familiar character to the court officials at West Newton.
A driver of a Boston furniture wagon was taken into custody, Monday evening, for drunkenness and fast driving.

—One of Daniel Warren's express teams caught fire from a load of bagging in the vicinity of Watertown, Monday afternoon. The Watertown fire department was called out for the blaze.
The body of the wagon was the extent of the damage. John Anderson, who was driving the team, cannot tell from what cause the fire originated.

School for Girls.

Mrs. E. J. Underhill, who was one of the most popular and successful teachers at the Newton High School, will open a school for girls in Lowell, Mass., Sept.
30, 1891. She is a thorough teacher and has the gift not only of imparting instruction, but of arousing the pupils' enthusiasm, and her success in our High school is well remembered by former pupils and their parents, and it was a matter of much regret when she resigned to accept a position in Miss Barr's school in Boston. Mrs. Underhill in Newton needs no references, but she is fortunate in being able to refer to such distinguished educators, as Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer, the former president of Wellesley College; Miss Barr, Boston; Miss Eastman, Wellesley College; Hon. John
W. Dickinson, secretary of the State Board of Education; Mr. E. H. Cutler and Mr. Francis A. Waterhouse, former headmasters of the Newton High school, Mr. E. J. Goodwin, the present headmaster and many others.

Mrs. Underhill will be assisted by competent and experienced instructors, and will give girls a thorough preparation for college, if desired.

Newton people who are thinking of sending their daughters away to school another year, can not do better than to put them under Mrs. Underhill's charge.
Particulars can be had by addressing Mrs. Underhill at 49 Nesmith street, Lowell.

Arsenic in Wall Paper.

The following simple test for the presence of arsenic is given by Prof. Calder of Brown College. If hydrochloric acid, a piece of copper wire, and a bit of wall paper containing arsenic be placed in a glass tube, and the glass be gently heated, the wire will be blackened.

A Positive Cure for Drunkenness.

A young wife had just settled in her new home. All seemed fair and promising. But one night her husband came home very late and staggered into the house. His wife was greatly shocked and told him he was ill, and to lie down at once. He did so, and in a moment or two was comfortably asleep on the sofa. His face was of a reddish purple, his breathing was heavy, and altogether he was a pitiable looking object. The doctor was sent for post haste and mustard plasters applied to his feet and hands. When the doctor came, felt his pulse and examined him and found that he was drunk, he said:

"He will be all right in the morning."

But his wife insisted that he was very ill, and severe remedies must be used.

"You must shave his head and apply blisters," she urged, "or I shall send for some one who will."

His head was accordingly shaved closely and blisters applied. All night he lay in a drunken sleep, and not-withstanding the blisters were eating into the flesh, it was not until morning he began to beat about, disturbed by pain.

About daylight he awoke to a most uncomfortable consciousness of blistered agonies.

"What does this mean?" he said, putting his hand to his bandaged head.

"Lie still—you mustn't stir," said the wife: "you have been very ill."

"I'm not ill."

"Oh, yes, you are; you have had brain fever. We have worked hard over you all night."

"I should think you had," groaned the poor victim.

"What is the matter with my feet?"

"They are blistered."

"But I'm better now; take off the blis-ters, do," he pleaded piteously.

He was in a most uncomfortable state—his head covered with sores, and his hands and his feet still worse.

"My dear," he said, groaning, "if I should ever get sick in this way again do not be alarmed or send for the doctor, and, above all, don't blister me again."

"Oh, indeed I will; all that saved you were the blisters, and if I ever you should have another such spell, I should be more frightened than ever, for the tendency I am sure, is to apoplexy, and from the next attack you would be likely to die, unless there were the severest measures used."

He had no further defense. Suffice it to say he never had another attack.

The house is 185 years old and has been known for nearly two centuries as the Griner place. Rhea of Knoxville, Tenn., to the members of the Newton Club who bowls the highest single string during the year, beginning June 1, '91 and ending June 1, '92. Members scores must be recorded by Sect. Feno. A frame will consist of two balls, but in all other respects Interclub rules will govern. Dr. Rhea was a guest recently of Mr. W. F. Hawley and while here became much interested in bowling.

—Newtonville tennis players are in the minority. Mr. E. W. Redpath has some fine courts covered with crushed stone. Grass courts are quite numerous and considerable interest is taken in the work. Mr. Ed. Page, Jr., is considered one of the best amateur tennis players. His cut serve is his strong point. Mr. Frank Adams is another good player. Mr. Ed. until some time ago was a champion in the High school tournaments in which he has taken quite an active part. Mr. H. S. Bosson is a promising player who is familiar with the fancy strokes. Mr. Austin Redpath, with his swift serve, puts up a good game, and Mr. Frank Morehouse is a lover of the sport. Among the girls, Misses Margaret and Kate Wallace and Miss Gertrude Estes play a good game.

At a meeting of the church members of the Universalist church, held June 8, the recent death of Mrs. H. P. Dearborn was referred to by the pastor, and the following expression of the esteem in which Mrs. Dearborn was held by her church associates, was adopted by a unanimous vote.

"While humbly submitting to the will of God, we the members of the Newton Universalist church deeply regret the loss of our dear and church companion, Mrs. H. P. Dearborn. In Mrs. Dearborn we recognized a woman of more than ordinary mental and spiritual gifts, who bore by her intellectual appreciation of all good things, and her sunny disposition attracted many and true friends. From our gatherings, of which she was a constant presence, we shall greatly miss her, and shall always remember with pleasure and profit her contributions to these occasions. Her death is a great loss to the church. Mrs. Dearborn was no less faithful in her place at the morning service of worship as seldom vacant. On religious subjects her words were thoughtful and reverent, and to her the things of religion were of sufficient importance to enlist her best thought and most serious attention. During the many weeks of her last and fatal illness, she fully manifested the genuineness of her nature in the patience with which she accepted an unusually great affliction, and in her loving thoughtfulness for the comfort and convenience of those who ministered to her wants. To our dear friend, Mr. Dearborn, who loses a faithful and congenial companion, and to the aged parents, who are bereft of a loved and dearly loved daughter, we send our kindly sympathy, and commend them to Him who doeth all things in love."

—Will the Boston & Albany railroad put an additional flagman at the Walnut street crossing now or will it wait until the next frightful accident has occurred before taking the step needed for better protection? Monday afternoon witnessed one of the closest shaves on record and a man's presence of mind alone saved him, probably from being seriously injured. About 5.30 o'clock, the workman's train passed through bound east and after it had cleared the crossing, the gateman, raised his gates not being aware of the rapid approach of the outward bound express which was then only a short distance from the crossing. When the gates were raised, teams began to cross and the pedestrians walked unconcerned over the planking. In less time almost than it takes to tell, the express dashed by, striking the rear of J. P. Horrigan's wagon. The rear wheels were badly wrecked and both axles sprung. Horrigan realized his danger and jumped before the wagon was struck, saving himself from being thrown out. R. Wilson's coachman, with a pair of horses stopped just in time, the express train almost grazing the animals faces as it passed rapidly along. Mr. Ross' team just cleared, ahead of Horrigan on the south side of the track and the Newton water works wagon was in close proximity to the train on the north side being about four feet distant. One or two children who were crossing had no time to spare and altogether it was a miraculous escape from an accident which would probably have been attended with very serious results. Perhaps, the road will take the hint and secure the services of an additional gateman. It would certainly be a more economical measure than paying out large sums for broken heads and limbs.

In the evening, the children's day was held, and the children, music by the Sunday school choir, assisted by the choir and male quartet of the church and the Newton High school orchestra, and Rev. F. V. Peloubet, whose words are always "in season" gave a short address, and so ended one of the happiest of children's day of the year. Lasell Notes.

A very pleasing exhibition of the work of Miss Packard's classes in the mathematical department was given on Thursday evening, June 4. This department is carried farther than is usual with schools of this class. The black-board work, the note books and the illustrative geometrical models exhibited a variety, skill and beauty that to the uninitiated was a surprise as well as pleasure. Each visitor received in departing a small souvenir appropriate to the occasion.

The Missionary Society held a special meeting on Sunday. Besides the money about to be sent to China, through Miss Clara Cushman, one hundred and fifty dollars, a much smaller sum, is designed for a former pupil who is doing missionary work in Harpoot, Turkey.

The school has been photographed in one large group. Also the military companies and many pupils have had pictures taken of their rooms.

"AMERICANS," LYNCH THEM.

MR. JACQUES' STORY OF THE MAY DAY ASSAULT IN FLORENCE.

To the Editor of the Herald:

I have just received a bundle of American papers giving accounts of our assault by a mob in Florence, and, as the accounts vary considerably and as none of them seem to represent it as seriously as it really was, I ask your permission to inform my friends through your paper exactly what occurred.

On the 1st of May it was understood that there would be a labor demonstration in Florence, as elsewhere in Europe, but we were told at our hotel that, owing to the presence of a large force of the military, there could not possibly be any disturbance in Florence.

Accordingly, about noon I went out for a drive with my daughter, a little girl of 9, in an open carriage. While driving along the Viale Principe Amedeo, one of the most respectable residence streets of Florence, a mob of several hundred men suddenly rushed out of a side street in front of our carriage. I told the coachman to turn and drive back, when we were surprised to see a similar mob pouring out of a side street behind us.

I have since learned that the two side streets both led to the Piazza Savonarola, where the mob had just been charged by the cavalry, and that the mob, at the suggestion of the leaders, was on its way to the centre of the city to raid certain clothing stores.

We were instantly surrounded by the mob, every individual of which seemed to have his hands full of large and rough stones used here for repairing the streets.

Somebody in the mob cried "Americans. Let us lynch them." (This I am told by my driver), "Death to the rich," etc.

The mob then began pelting our carriage with stones. Fortunately I had a good strong sun umbrella spread over our heads. I made my little girl get down under my arm and sheltered our heads with the umbrella as best I could. The stones struck the side of the carriage and on the head of a good American derby saved that; then the umbrella was demolished, and a stone struck my little girl two inches below the right temple.

The wound was deep and the blood soon saturated her clothing and neck, and curiously enough ran into my pocket and stained my passport, signed by James G. Blaine, requesting foreigners to allow me and family to pass safely, etc.

Meanwhile our coachman had forced his way through the crowd and wheeled into a side street and drove rapidly to our hotel, followed for some distance by the mob. My last look backward showed the mob engaged in stoning the houses along the street.

On arrival at our hotel my little girl was taken to her room and an English physician staying in the house took immediate charge of her, and fortunately stopped the flow of blood and thereby prevented the fever that he expected to follow. He said it was an exceedingly narrow escape from death.

Now, one month later, that the wound has nearly healed, we can see that it will leave a scar that will disfigure her face for life.

In the afternoon I drove to the American consulate and reported the matter substantially as above, and was assured that every action would be taken by the Italian authorities to arrest and punish the offenders. I have since learned that many arrests were made, and, as there were many witnesses, no doubt conviction and punishment will follow.

Several prominent Italian residents of Florence also called on me and expressed regrets, and assured me that the mob was largely made up of ruffians from other cities, who had come there to promote the socialistic demonstrations of May 1. As several other carriages, occupied by Italians, were assaulted on that day, I was at first of the opinion that our nationality had nothing to do with the matter, but the statements of my coachman, who leaves no doubt that the cries of the leaders of the mob which were the immediate cause of the assault, were, "Americans," and "Let us lynch them." Whether the Italian government punishes these offenders remains to be seen. They made every effort to hush up the matter, even going so far as to open and delay my telegrams, in which I attempted to communicate with my friends in America, and later the telegrams from my friends to me.

This seems to me a striking disregard of the requests of our government contained in my passport, and it is much to be regretted that it was not a favor to yours, very cordially.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

MUSIC HALL.—The Music Hall promenade concerts have proved a most gratifying success and Manager Charles A. Ellis has again won the heartiest commendation from all patrons for the admirable fashion in which he has conducted these enjoyable summer night entertainments. The programs played by the excellent orchestra have included the best selections of a popular sort, and everything has conspired to re-awaken a general interest in the varied attractions of Music Hall as an amusement resort. The large audience Monday evening enjoyed an excellent program of orchestral music under Mr. Gruenberg's direction, the list of numbers including the "Martha" and "Light Cavalry" overtures, selections from "Carmen" and "Lohengrin" and dance music by Strauss, Fairbach and Metra. The Friday evening programs will be directed by Mr. Gruenberg, and those of Saturday by Mr. Adamowski, who has drawn upon the compositions of Sir Arthur Sullivan very largely. The concerts are to be continued throughout this month, with a change in the program each evening.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Mr. Alexander Salvini has every reason to feel proud, not only on account of the size of the audiences which he has attracted to the Grand Opera House, but also on account of their quality as the very best class of theatregoers has attended his performances, and stamped his efforts with the most undoubted marks of success. "A Child of Naples" was the attraction, Monday evening, and Mr. Salvini's impersonation is highly commended. "Monte Cristo" will be presented next week, Mr. Salvini making his first appearance as Dantes.

If you decide, from what you have heard or read, that you will take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy any substitute instead.

THEY HAVE A NEW LADDER TRUCK.

NEWTONVILLE FIRE ASSOCIATION ENTER-TAINS A LARGE COMPANY OF GUESTS.

The Newtonville Fire Association entertained a large company of guests at the truck station, Tuesday evening, upon the occasion of the formal reception of a new Babcock aerial ladder truck.

The exterior of the building was illuminated with Japanese lanterns, festooned in strings from the roof to the ground. Within, the spacious truck room was gayly decorated with flags and bunting, and the tables for the banquet occupied nearly all the available space, a company of over 200 being seated when the festivities commenced, shortly after 8 o'clock. Capt. W. S. Higgins of the Newtonville truck company rapped to order, prayer by Rev. Mr. Jackson followed, and then the boys fell to and discussed the tempting viands.

After the disposition of the good things, Mr. E. H. Pierce was introduced as toastmaster. He made a felicitous speech, and then called upon Mayor Hibbard, who spoke briefly, congratulating the fire department upon the acquisition of new and valuable pieces of fire apparatus, and complimenting its members upon their efficiency.

Mayor Andrews of Gloucester was next introduced. He said that he was a stranger in Newton, having just visited it for the first time. I have had little opportunity, continued the speaker, to inspect its many pretty villages or enjoy its scenic beauties, but I hope to have that pleasure at no far distant day. I learned to-night that some of your Newton men date back their ancestry to Gloucester and I am delighted to know that she has furnished some of your representative business men. If you ever come to Gloucester, added Mayor Andrews, it shall be my privilege to afford you such courtesies as my official position will permit. I think we can make it pleasant for you, if you come. [Applause.]

In conclusion, the Mayor of Gloucester gave an amusing account of a Newton man who got overboard in that city and of the heroic measures adopted for his rescue. He expressed also, his appreciation of the entertainment and thanked the Newtonville fire ladders for their hospitality.

Alderman Crehore, chairman of the fire committee, was called upon. He said that he had prepared no speech, although the Mayor had given that impression. There is one thing, however, that I would like to say, added the speaker, and that is in regard to the efficiency of the members of the fire department. The test of the new aerial ladder was particularly gratifying to me, because it gave evidence of the skill of our men in handling that sort of apparatus. I have no speech maker, said Alderman Crehore in conclusion, and I will therefore close, thanking you for your hospitality. [Applause.]

Mr. C. G. Salisbury was the next speaker. He said that a writer in an agricultural paper had said that the most modern appliances were necessary for the extermination of vermin. This, he added, seems true of the fire department. The more modern apparatus is needed and the city has wisely recognized the necessity. The aerial ladder will prove a good investment and it is agreed that the next time the fire department is called upon to do duty, it will demand it. The expenditures for fire apparatus, said the speaker in conclusion, will be returned in the saving from losses by fire. [Applause.]

Alderman Luke was called upon as a member of the fire committee. He said that his connection with the fire committee reminded him of the story of the boy and the dog. The boy only held the dog while his comrades tied the tin cans to his tail. That, added the speaker, is my case so far as my relations with the fire committee are concerned. I simply hold the dog and Alderman Crehore, who has the test and the might, will lead the way. I always had the idea, continued Alderman Luke, that a fireman's life was rather an easy one, aside from long hours and night work. I was wrong. I went to a fire, riding with the chief, and I gathered a few impressions which I shall briefly refer to. When we started, the chief encouraged the horse to a rattling pace, which compelled me to grab him by the seat, but our progress was soon arrested at the railroad crossing, where the gates were lowered to the infinite disgust of the chief, who addressed language to the gatekeeper that a man of even his stature would not have dared to utter. [Applause.]

Many changes, continued Alderman Luke, have been made in the fire department this year, and more are likely to follow. It is in fine condition, well equipped for emergencies, and it is much to be desired and suffer in order to save the lives and property of our citizens. It requires true courage and devotion to make a good fireman, and these qualities cannot be purchased for any financial consideration. I do not speak these words for the purpose of flattery, said Alderman Luke in conclusion, but as a representative of the city I feel it my duty to express my appreciation of Newton firemen. [Applause.]

Remarks followed by Alderman Hyde, Fenn and Coffin, Councilmen Mead, Moulton, Jordan and Finkelman, ex-Mayor Kimball, Chief Parks, Chief Wallace, Chief of Gloucester, Chief Bixby, Asst. Chief Ranlett, ex-City Clerk Edwin O. Childs, ex-Alderman George Petrie and others.

The affair, which was one of the most successful which has occurred in fire circles in recent years, was carried out under the direction of a committee comprising Capt. W. S. Higgins, Capt. Waterhouse, Messrs. J. A. Wadsworth, L. H. Dyer, A. A. Savage and T. O. Nickerson.

The music during the evening was furnished by the Crescent orchestra band of Waltham. Will catered for the occasion. The "Ox" club was largely represented and many of the members of the city council and city officials were included among the banquet guests with a delegation of the Gloucester firemen, headed by Mayor Andrews and Chief Lane. Those present were:

Col. I. F. Kingsbury, A. F. Luke, F. M. Crehore, Hon. J. Wesley Kimball, Mayor Asa G. Andrews, Mayor Herman E. Hibbard, E. H. Pierce, Mr. Jackson, E. H. Dyer, J. A. Wadsworth, W. H. Mendell, W. S. Cunningham, Frank L. Taylor, J. B. Willett, John Brown, J. H. Sisson, Alfred L. Barbour, H. W. Crafts, F. E. Bass, C. Howitt Coffin, Edward W. Bailey, John A. H. Walker, E. E. Stiles, Dr. Coester, H. R. Thompson, H. H. Sacker, Jos. Byers, C. S. Currier, C. E. Roberts, James Anderson, A. R. Mitchell, Edward P. Hatch, Charles D. Cabot, John M. Suckney, N. H. Chadwick, Frank W. Gaffield, A. G. Sherman, Wm. B. Bosson, F. Harrington, F. H. Hunting, M. W. Chase.

NEWTON COTTAGE HOSPITAL.

AN APPEAL TO THE FRIENDS OF THE HOSPITAL.

The Executive Committee ask the attention of the people of Newton to the present condition of the Hospital. At no time since it was opened have the facilities been so complete and the appliances so ample for the care and treatment of sick and injured persons.

The older buildings have been greatly improved by extensive and radical changes in the methods of ventilation and in other details of sanitation. These alterations have been made under the personal supervision of the medical members associated with the Committee, after plans approved by agents of the local and State Boards of Health, so that probably nothing better in these respects can be found anywhere. Besides these needed changes the demand for additional accommodations has been met by the construction of a new Ward, containing a number of rooms for private patients. This Ward is now finished and is ready to receive patients, and thus affords a source of revenue towards the current expenses.

The Hospital property consists now of nine acres of ground, a Central Building containing Offices and a School for Nurses, a Men's Ward, The Leeson Ward for Women, The Ward for Private Patients, The Three Contagious Wards, The Morgue, The Laundry, Barn and Sheds.

The experiences of the past year convince us that however large and complete is our present outfit it is all needed by the ever increasing calls for Hospital treatment.

These alterations in the older buildings and the construction of the new Ward have cost considerable money which we hoped would have been supplied promptly, but the recent controversy over some details of management has checked for the present the flow of gifts to our Treasury.

For the first time in its history the Hospital is hampered by debt and has no funds to meet the daily expenses. We cannot think the people of Newton will permit this state of things to continue, now that the facts are known, and especially since all differences of opinion have been harmonized, and all officials hold the same hold of the work with the determination to make the Hospital more efficient than ever.

An institution that has such a noble property, that has been a model for others, that has already treated over 600 patients, that has such an excellent training school for nurses, and that has added so much to the renown of our city, must not languish for lack of funds. $7,500 are needed. Some of our citizens are able to relieve us at once of large portions of this burden, and there are many who if they will unite can soon sweep it away.

Kindly send your check, or your subscription payable in 3 months, to Geo. S. Bullens, Treasurer, Waverley avenue, Newton.

"It's a little girl baby, isn't it?" asked the admiring visitor. "I am not entirely certain," responded the Boston two-year-old, "but I believe the cradle, a shade of perplexity crossing her thoughtful face, 'whether I should speak of my infant sister as a girl baby or as a baby girl.'" WHAT IS SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors," which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Beyond the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How CAN CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. "My daughter Mary was afflicted with scrofula, a sore neck from the time she was 22 months old till she became six years of age. Lumps formed in her neck, and one of them grew to the size of a pigeon's egg. We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla, when the lump and all indications of scrofula entirely disappeared, and now she seems to be a healthy child." J. S. CARLISLE, Nauright, N. J.

To All The Boys In Newton.

GREETING: "I don't want any birds or their nests disturbed on my premises," said one. "Nor do I," "or I," "or I," "or I," said so many voices from all over the meeting, that the first speaker said, "I will write an open letter on the subject." Now, an open letter is one that every body may read, by a general handing around, or by its being printed.

Well then, natural history in all its departments is interesting, or even fascinating according to the strength of one's taste for it; and perhaps none of its many branches, beasts, birds, fishes, reptiles, insects, trees, plants, mosses, seaweeds, etc., etc., is more attractive than that of birds—themselves, their nests, eggs and habits.

But now the great point is this: Of these four particulars about birds none can compare in interest with their habits, including a thousand cunning little ways as well as their little house-building and house-keeping industries. For example, only the other day I saw a bird lose hold of a long bit of white twine, while carrying it to a tree. As the twine floated down he darted after it and caught it before it reached the ground, but when it got fairly caught by the middle he had to give it up; it was so much too long for him, and this may serve as one of the thousand illustrations. So then it is the life and doings of the birds, not their dead bodies, or their poor little despoiled houses that we want to study.

Accordingly there is springing up a new class of observers of whom Bradford Torrey, Olive Thorne Miller and others are examples, who make the lives of birds in their houses and haunts, their study. To do this, they go where the birds are, and with eyes and ears wide open note down what they see and hear. Is not this the best way, as well with feathered as with human friends? Wouldn't you rather see and speak to and tell for years than to show their mummies in a glass case to your friends? In the same way, is not it better to know robin, blue-bird, snow-bird, chickadee (bless his merry heart) and well named little king-bird chasing a crow, each in his own tree, field or grove, and with a harmless peep at his nest when there is a chance, than to see his eggs in a box, and himself stuck up, stuffed, on a wire?

But you say: "I want a collection of my own." Well there is an answer to that. Get rid of the smaller idea of private exclusive ownership at the cost of destruction of birds' nests and homes, and take in the larger idea of ownership in common with all others, of the beautiful sights and sounds of bird life.

Learn to look on all the birds of a year as your collection and your note book of observations as the memorial of it, glad and satisfied that with every new year you will add some thing new and interesting to your observations and the records of them.

Well then, natural history in all its departments is interesting, or even fascinating according to the strength of one's taste for it; and perhaps none of its many branches, beasts, birds, fishes, reptiles, insects, trees, plants, mosses, seaweeds, etc., etc., is more attractive than that of birds—themselves, their nests, eggs and habits.

But now the great point is this: Of these four particulars about birds none can compare in interest with their habits, including a thousand cunning little ways as well as their little house-building and house-keeping industries. For example, only the other day I saw a bird lose hold of a long bit of white twine, while carrying it to a tree. As the twine floated down he darted after it and caught it before it reached the ground, but when it got fairly caught by the middle he had to give it up; it was so much too long for him, and this may serve as one of the thousand illustrations. So then it is the life and doings of the birds, not their dead bodies, or their poor little despoiled houses that we want to study.

Accordingly there is springing up a new class of observers of whom Bradford Torrey, Olive Thorne Miller and others are examples, who make the lives of birds in their houses and haunts, their study. To do this, they go where the birds are, and with eyes and ears wide open note down what they see and hear. Is not this the best way, as well with feathered as with human friends? Wouldn't you rather see and speak to and tell for years than to show their mummies in a glass case to your friends? In the same way, is not it better to know robin, blue-bird, snow-bird, chickadee (bless his merry heart) and well named little king-bird chasing a crow, each in his own tree, field or grove, and with a harmless peep at his nest when there is a chance, than to see his eggs in a box, and himself stuck up, stuffed, on a wire?

But you say: "I want a collection of my own." Well there is an answer to that. Get rid of the smaller idea of private exclusive ownership at the cost of destruction of birds' nests and homes, and take in the larger idea of ownership in common with all others, of the beautiful sights and sounds of bird life.

Learn to look on all the birds of a year as your collection and your note book of observations as the memorial of it, glad and satisfied that with every new year you will add some thing new and interesting to your observations and the records of them.

There are some things that the world needs but few of. Astronomers are one of them. Perhaps there are not more than a dozen great astronomers in the world at any one time, yet the whole world finds out from them all it needs or cares to know for pleasure or for use, about the wonders of the heavens.

So, a few great natural history collections like those in Boston and Cambridge added to those in schools and colleges are enough for purposes of scientific study, while for purposes of self-cultivation in knowledge of nature, quick and exact observation, and the best of exercise, let each one's collection stay alive in their houses, where all can see their active lives rather than dead forms or plundered habitations. Thus you see, I trust, that there is a way, and a better and a best way.

Goodbye then, boys and birds, and may you both be happier and safer for knowing one another, until one of the happiest images that the mind can make shall be that of the Boy and the Bird.

BASE BALL.

NEWTONS, 14; P. E. A., 1.

The Newton Centres went to Exeter Saturday, and defeated the Phillips Exeter nine 14 to 1. The home club was weakened by the absence of its regular catcher and both pitchers. Capt. Kent essayed to pitch, and considering his lack of experience did well. Nichols and Hubbard alone hit him freely. He had good command of the ball and struck out nine men. Hatch gave him poor support. McCormick pitched with telling effect and was given superb support, Hubbard, Quackenbush and Nichols fielding with special brilliancy. For Exeter, Lighthall carried off the fielding honors. —Mr. R. H. White had over a hundred hens and chickens killed Tuesday night, some of choice breeds; Messrs. Louis A. Shaw and M. Russell also lost a large number of fowls. Dogs were the destroyers, and some means ought to be taken to reach the owners of such dogs; suspicion points to a certain dog on Skinner Hill.

—The time set for the "Daisy Festival" on June 17, is from 3 to 9 p. m. —The services at the Unitarian church were of an unusually interesting nature last Sunday morning, the Sunday school uniting with the congregation and taking part in the musical service. The church was beautifully decorated with potted plants and cut flowers, and at the close of the sermon, baptism was bestowed upon eight young children by the pastor, Rev. A. T. Bowser.

—The following item from the Burlington, Vt., Free Press will be of interest to many in this community. His many friends will be pleased to hear that Rev. H. L. —The Newtons played their sixth game of the season last Saturday with Phillips Exeter nine, defeating them by a score of 14 to 1. It was expected the boys would have to put up the strongest game thus far of the season, and they went into the game to win. Both in the field, only three errors being made, and with the "stick" they did fine work, and demonstrated the fact that they are ball players. The game next Saturday, June 13, is with the Clifton, and there is no doubt they will do their level best to take this game from the home team.

Play will be called at 3.30 p. m., and it is hoped a large number will be present to spur the boys on to winning the game.

—Indignation is felt at the condition in which the extremities of the platform to the new depot are being left. The old concrete at the ends of the platform has been torn up, and in its place the ends have been dumped, for the public to walk on. All over the village are good clean concrete sidewalks, but when one wishes to go to the depot they must patronize one of these miserable apologies, and all because the Boston & Albany will save laying about 50 feet more of plank platform. No other station in Newton or this side of Boston on this road has yet been asked to help treat the company's coal chinders, and why should Newton Centre, certainly the second best paying station on the circuit if not the first, be compelled to put up with such slovenly accommodations. Newton, Mass., West Newton, and Chestnut Hill, in addition to ample plank platforms, all have concrete drives, and no station, not even Elliot or Chapel, are given cinder platforms, but Newton Centre must have them. The plank platform is now to be finished, will not be long enough to allow passengers in the forward cars, and baggage at the rear end, of our evening trains to be unloaded on the plank platform. Perhaps the railroad authorities think that men are the only ones who use the station, and so these walks, but there are nearly as many ladies who use the station, and nothing more uncleanly could have been thought of than for them to drag their skirts through these coal chinders. It is probable some action will be taken by the citizens on this matter, and it is hoped that proper planking or concrete can be substituted.

—The most brilliant event in Newton Centre of the year was the reception given on Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Thomas L. Nickerson of Centre street, to the Castilian Club of Boston, of which she is a member. A special car was attached to the 2.35 train from Boston which was filled with prominent ladies and a few gentlemen well known in literary circles in Boston. The club relating to Spain all the decorations of the house, which were most elaborate, national colors, yellow, ribbon, Mrs. Abba Gould Woolson is the president of the club and she made some opening remarks after the ladies were seated in Mrs. Nickerson's spacious parlors, followed by a poem read by Mrs. Michael and a Spanish legend by Mrs. Mary E. Blake. Music was interspersed by the Mandolin and Guitar Club, Mrs. Daniel A. White sang "Line Mia," accompanied by them and Miss Belle S. Bassett sang "La Chacha" also with the Mandolin. Later Miss Bassett and Mrs. White sang a duet by Piusini accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Rogers. Mr. George J. Parker sang a group of three songs which were much appreciated by the guests. Miss Conforth, Mrs. Nickerson's niece, also read an appropriate poem. The whole program was well handled and very pleasant. At the conclusion of the program the guests removed to the dining room, where the food had done his best to tempt the appetites of all. All the delicacies of the season appeared in profusion and the dinner was a success. The decorations of the table, all of yellow and red, were very beautiful and elaborate. Among the guests outside of the club were noticed Mr. and Mrs. John H. Sanborn, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. S. Davis, Mrs. Mary E. Gardner, Mrs. Bassett, Mrs. Leatherbee, Mrs. Spear, Mrs. Huntington, Miss Spear, Mrs. Harry Mason, Prof. and Mrs. Thomas, Miss Thomas, Pres. and Mrs. H. C. Frost, and Mrs. George L. Hovey, and Mrs. Theodore Nickerson. Mrs. Nickerson, Judge Bishop, Prof. English, Mrs. Gross, Miss Sanborn, Mr. Nichols of Newton, Miss Kingsbury, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Mason, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Claffin and many others. The younger people stayed in the evening and were joined by many others and danced to the music of Cole's orchestra and another supper was being served at ten o'clock.

—The question of a new depot is being quietly agitated and the efforts of the gentlemen who have thus far interested themselves in this much needed object have been crowned with partial success. Three gentlemen went to the officials of the New York & New England railroad corporation recently and talked with them of the great demand and necessity of a depot at Upper Falls, worthy of the name.

—The officials demanded or whether these gentlemen proposed for the sake of accomplishing something with the "poor" corporation is immaterial, but the corporation consented that if the sum of $1000 was raised among residents of this place as part payment for a new structure they would agree to build a new depot costing about $5000.

—The citizens of the place to contribute one half the cost of a new depot and then they can have it. THE CITY GOVERNMENT.

A LONG DISCUSSION OVER A STREET RAILWAY.

The board of aldermen met Monday evening with all the members present and Mayor Hibbard in the chair. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Morris Murphy, recently convicted of assault and battery, had his appointment as special policeman without pay revoked.

J. A. King was appointed hoseman of house 2.

City Solicitor Slocum rendered his opinion on the petition of T. M. Clarke for gates on street crossing opposite Brookside avenue. He stated that under the law, if gates or a flagman were needed for the better security and protection of the public, the board of aldermen might in writing request the Boston & Albany R. R. Co. to furnish them, and if the company refused the board could apply to the county commissioners, and after a hearing they could order gates or a flagman, or both, and the railroad would have to comply.

Alderman Harbach moved that the city solicitor be requested to draw up an order requesting a flagman to be stationed at this crossing, and the motion passed.

City Solicitor Slocum also reported that the highway committee could give a license for a temporary building on city land, but they could not lease land for a permanent building.

Names were reported of those free from jury duty.

Chas. C. Harrington's claim for injuries to his daughter for fall on an icy sidewalk, by which her spine was injured, was referred to the claims committee.

D. S. Farnham sent in a communication in regard to drain on his land on Lake avenue, and gave notice that he wished it removed without delay referred to the highway committee. Papers from the common council were disposed of in concurrence. The order for transfer of fire apparatus was defeated.

NEW BUILDINGS.

N. C. Whitaker gave notice of intention to build house 45x45 feet on Hunnewell avenue; H. M. Gregg, house 27x45 on California street; Henry Brock, house 21x20 on Boylston street; N. T. Allen, house 25x30 on Webster street; P. F. Kenna, house 29x30 on River street; James Sheridan, house 18x20 on Chapel street.

Milo Lucas was granted license to build addition 20x20 on Pomroy Home, Hovey street, and M. W. Kevell to build blacksmith shop, on Watertown street.

Chas. A. Raymond of Watertown was granted license as an undertaker.

The Quinobeguin Association were granted a permit to move building from Newton Centre to Upper Falls.

Residents of Lincoln street petitioned for concrete walk and also a crosswalk.

Carl Muller was granted license for his band of six instruments to play on the public streets.

Residents of Temple street remonstrated against granting any licenses to the telephone company or others to erect poles on that street, and also asked that the poles already there be removed.

Alderman Hyde reported in favor of granting licenses to the telephone company to erect poles on Waltham, Otis, Lowell and Beacon streets, and against granting license on Winthrop, Temple and Prince streets.

Alderman Harbach said he hoped the license would not be granted. The water board had applied for a telephone, at the same rates as those already furnished to the city and had been refused, and he should vote against granting any licenses except on streets where the city needed poles for their fire alarm telegraph wires.

Alderman Hyde said the city wished to run wires on Otis street from Walnut to Murray, and he presented an order that the company be licensed to erect poles only on this street, which was passed.

Alderman Luke presented an order that the poles now on Temple street be removed.

Chief Bixby said these poles belonged to the Newton Gas Company.

Alderman Luke said that the gas company had been given a blanket mortgage to run poles and wires on any and every street of the city, by a former city government. He thought there should be some way to regulate them, but he moved to table this order for the present, which was done.

Geo. L. Pearson and Johnson & Keyes were granted express licenses.

Chas. Robinson and Chas. I. Travili asked for concrete walk on Chestnut street, south of its junction with Highland street, and the latter asked for two street lamps on Valentine street.

L. A. Kimberly and six others asked for concrete walks on Winthrop street.

Alderman Harbach presented an order authorizing the mayor to execute a deed for the exchange of 18,000 feet of land on Waban Hill and explained that it was same order passed last year, but the city solicitor thought that it should be also passed this year. The order was passed.

Alderman Fennor presented an order authorizing the highway committee to expend the appropriation of $250, not assigned to any special work, for the construction of drains and culverts.

Alderman Harbach objected to the order and said when the committee had a job to do they could present an order naming amount they wanted; that was the practice hitherto. The order was killed.

Alderman Hyde presented the usual order for the ringing of bells, and displaying of flags on the Fourth of July; passed.

On motion of Alderman Sheppard, D. S. Farnham was given leave to withdraw on his petition for damages for use of his land for the emptying point of city drains.

NEW TURN OUT.

Alderman Fennor presented the petition of the Newton Street Railway, for a license to construct a turn out on River street, east of Pine street, and also to take up either the turn out on River street or the one on Parsons street. He said that this was found to be necessary to enable the cars to make close connections at the turn outs and make fifteen minute time.

An order was passed appointing Monday evening, June 29th, for a hearing on the petition.

REPAIRS ON PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

Alderman Hyde presented an order appropriating $5000, to be charged to this year's taxes, and added to the appropriation for public property. He stated that it was impossible to put the public buildings in proper repair with the present appropriation, which was already half gone. Even with the sum asked for only absolutely necessary work can be done.

Alderman Sheppard seconded the order, and said a great deal needed to be done on the school buildings, the one at Lower Falls calling for at least $1500.

Alderman Fennor said that two years ago Alderman Chadwick had said that $12,000 was the least sum on which the buildings could be cared for, and yet last year only $10,000 had been appropriated, although he had added several school houses and fire department buildings.

The order was passed.

On motion of Alderman Luke an order was passed, appropriating $500 for additional clerical work in the city treasurer's department.

An order was passed adding $11.49 to the $140 appropriated for memorial day expenses.

On motion of Alderman Luke the city treasurer was authorized to issue 50 one thousand dollar water bonds, and 100 one thousand dollar sewerage bonds, to run till 1911.

$130,300 was appropriated for city expenses during the months of July, August and September.

Alderman Coffin, chairman of committee on bath houses, reported that the bath house on Bullough's pond would be open the 17th.

SEWER AMENDMENTS.

Alderman Sheppard presented the sewer ordinance amended in many particulars, and it was referred to the ordinance committee. The amended ordinance will be found on page 7.

On motion of Alderman Fennor the board went into executive session. The report of the street railway hearing will be found in another column.

WALNUT STREET RAILWAY.

COUNSEL FOR BOSTON & ALBANY ASKED SOME POINTED QUESTIONS.

The hearing on the petition for street railway location on Walnut street, between Newtonville and Newton Centre, called out a large number of prominent citizens, and all but one were heartily in favor of the road. The general sentiment seemed to be in favor of granting a location to any company that would agree to build at once, as the road has become a public necessity.

President Morse appeared for the Newton Central Street Railway Company, and said he wanted the road, but his company did not want the location unless they had a grade crossing, as they wished to run cars direct to Newton and West Newton. The Garden City Company, he understood, did not want the crossing. They might have the perfect storage battery system, and he hoped they had, although he doubted whether the perfect system had yet been perfected. The Central Street Railway was practically the Newton Street Railway, the latter road owning 2-3 rds. of the stock, and he was willing to say frankly that the new company was formed because the old company's charter prevented its securing a crossing from the board of aldermen. He also described at some length the beauty of having a street railway on the side of the street, as was done in Macon, Ga., in which road he was interested. As for storage batteries, Mr. Mitchell's road intended to put in a ground wire, so that when the storage battery system proved a failure they would be already to use the trolley system without digging up the streets. He also spoke of the sharpness of some ore, in tucking into the charter of the old company a provision that the road should not cross the B. & A. at grade, probably some person specially interested. He did not believe in postponing the matter till the grades were separated, as that would put it off a great many years. He could have built the road in three months, but had been informed that he had better wait until after the street had been sewered.

Mr. A. L. Mitchell spoke for the Garden City Company, and said the ground wire was only a precaution, but they had every confidence in the storage battery system. He hoped no road would be granted a location on the side, as that would be preposterous. Probably his road could make some arrangements for a transfer.

Mr. Morse said it would cost about one half to build a road on the side, to what it would in the centre. He owned the old Harris estate, with a long frontage and he should ask to have the road on the side in front of that, and he intended when he got rich enough to build a residence there. He also regarded iron or steel posts as a failure and should refuse to put up any more. They caused constant leakage, and were more dangerous than wooden poles.

Mr. Mitchell said the house Mr. Morse would build would be some 250 feet back from the street, so that a railroad on the side would not be bad for him.

Mr. Samuel Hoar appeared as counsel for the Boston & Albany, to remonstrate against any grade crossing being granted. It would be a great danger to the travelling public and to the people of Newton. He was not surprised at the confession of Mr. Morse that his new company was only gotten up to evade the law, as such a thing might be expected of a man who boasted of owning the "Old Harris place" and was going to make his home there. (Laughter.) He called attention to the accident at Brockton and the one in Cambridge, from electric cars at grade crossings. A street railway grade crossing should be prohibited on a four track road, and as a director he should vote to separate the grades at the very next meeting. If the grade crossing was granted, he hoped to see the day when some satisfactory solution of the grade crossing problem would be found, and the grades could be separated, but until then street railways should be prohibited from crossing. The cross rails at the crossing would be a constant danger. And he dwelt at some length at the terrible danger to the public. The Boston & Albany only sought to protect its tracks against foreign invaders. In response to a question he said that the road would never consent to sink their tracks as proposed by Newton's city engineer.

The Mayor asked if the road did not profess to be anxious to avoid disaster, and to take proper precautions. Mr. Hoar said it did, and after Mrs. Estey's death he had stationed men to count and 1020 people had dodged under the gates at that crossing.

Mayor Hibbard asked if he called those poles gates, and if he thought they furnished adequate protection?

Mr. Hoar said, yes they are gates.

Mayor Hibbard. It does not take much effort to smash through them.

Mr. Morse said he was reminded of the saying that sinners only differ in degree, by Mr. Hoar's arguments, and he thought the aldermen were the only proper tribunal to decide about the crossing. It was easy to get a legislature to pass such laws as the railroad desired, but with such a body as the Newton aldermen it was a different matter. The last board had been afraid to either reject the petition or grant it, and so had done nothing although it was their legal duty to take some action.

Mayor Hibbard suggested that last year's board had only followed the action of the Newton street railway on River street (laughter.)

Ex-Governor Claflin spoke at some length in favor of a street railway, and he rather favored the storage battery system, but in Newton we only want one road and not opposing roads. The road was a public necessity. It pleased him to hear the counsel of the Boston & Albany talk about the danger of grade crossings. He supposed the company's conviction on this matter was growing, but it had not shown any effects as yet. He would like to ask Mr. Hoar if he thought one man sufficient for the Walnut street crossing. The case of Mrs. Estey was a rough case of slaughter, and it was only by the good luck of the people that more fatalities did not happen. The worst crossing in the city, and the railroad company keep one man of about seventy, to protect it. Three trains and sometimes four pass the crossing at once. Two tracks are all Newton needs, and the other two are for the benefit of the Boston & Albany. He would call Mr. Hoar's attention to two other dangerous crossings between Newtonville and West Newton, which do not have even a flagman, Newtonville ought to have a tunnel, under the tracks.

Alderman Sheppard asked Mr. Morse if the company sustained him in saying the road would not be built if a grade crossing was refused.

Mr. Morse said it did; the B. & A. would not separate the grades at this point, in spite of Mr. Hoar's threat, and the property in the square would be ruined if separation was had in any other manner than by sinking the tracks.

Mr. Frank Edmunds of Newton Centre said he did not care which company got the location, so long as a road was built. Even if no crossing was given, it would be better than now, when we have to go some nine miles to get a distance of two; and double fares would be much greater than the fare by the Boston & Albany.

Mr. Huestis spoke of the serious intention of the storage battery company to give Newton a good road.

Mr. W. B. Young spoke of the general desire of people on Homer street, and along the line for the road; more than two-thirds of the property owners and abutters desire it, and some 100 acres of land would be opened up.

Mr. Henry Ross spoke of the necessity for a street railway for those desiring to visit the cemetery, but he hoped it would not be built on the side of the street.

Mr. Young thought the road should be on the side of the street which was less than 50 feet wide.

Mr. Hunt of Newtonville said he had been waiting nearly three years for the road, and he would like it at once. In Rochester, N. Y., all the roads are on the side, and real estate men say that houses next the railway rent for 20 to 25 per cent. more than those on the other side of the street.

Mr. Nelson Brown spoke against any road on Walnut street, and hoped if one was to come there it would be the storage battery road.

Mr. Samuel Ward spoke for the road, and said it was a necessity for high school pupils, whom the trains did not accommodate.

Mr. Pattee of Newton Centre also favored the road as a necessity, especially for the girls in the high school.

Ex-Alderman Grant said that personally he was opposed to the road, but he recognized the fact that it was a public necessity, and he hoped the best thing possible would be given, which he thought was the storage battery system. He hoped it would be in the centre of the street.

Mayor Hibbard asked what he thought of the grade crossing.

Mr. Grant replied that the people crossing the tracks took all the risks now that they would encounter if they were in a car.

Supt. Henderson spoke of the Fitchburg crossing in Waltham, and showed how the care used by the conductors would really add to the safety of the crossing, after which the hearing closed.

After all, the best way to know the real merit of Hood's Sarsaparilla, is to try it yourself. Be sure to get Hood's.

A little girl was sitting on the floor when the sun shone in her face. "Go 'way! go 'way!" she cried, striking out at it. "You move, dear, and it won't trouble you," said her mamma. "I s'ant; I dot here first, said the little one." —[Healthy Home.]

L. H. CRANITCH,

NEWTON TARIFF REFORM CLUB. The Tariff is a Tax.

Every person interested in the subject of the Tariff, is cordially invited to take part in the discussions carried on in this column. Respectful consideration will be given to inquiries, criticisms, and communications of every kind, whether coming from Tariff Reformers, Free Traders or High Protectionists. Address Secretary of the Tariff Reform Club, Newton Centre, Mass.

In Defence of the Tariff.

It is painful to find the McKinley tariff assailed by some of its original supporters as not answering the ends it had in view. Those ends were to raise the prices of goods generally in the country. The single free trade feature about it, in the case of sugar, was devised in order that there might be room for a greater increase in the prices of goods generally. We feel it a duty, therefore, to certify that protection does protect in this instance. It protects a very few at the sacrifice of a great many, it is true; but there is still that protection which it was agreed by such advocates of this kind of protection as President Harrison and Maj. McKinley must raise the price of the goods protected. If there shall seem to be an exception to this, it must prove but temporary, and owing to the great depression of business which seems to have been coincident with the operation of the tariff. It is not fair to charge upon the tariff itself that it is not to be relied upon to do its promised work of raising prices. There will be no cheap man in a cheap coat under it, to use the language of President Harrison, when it gets into operation, because, as President Harrison plainly intimated, here the McKinley tariff may be relied upon to prevent a cheap coat and many other cheap things being attainable.

Increased Imports.

Consul General Mason at Frankfurt, Germany, reports increased exportations to this country from all but two consulates in Germany. The exceptions are at Dusseldorf and Kiel, respectively, where the decrease is due to a falling off in the exports of steel, caused by the fact that since the miners' strikes in 1888 the high price of coal in Western Germany has raised the cost of steel manufacture to a point at which the German manufacturers find it difficult to hold their footing in the American market.

So even the falling off in steel is not attributable to the blessed McKinley law. From 13 consulates in his district the exports to the United States were $33,454 greater in the three months following the enactment of the McKinley law than during the corresponding quarter of the previous year, although "the shipments of the December quarter in 1889 had been exceptionally heavy and had been followed by the large speculative exports which preceded the adoption and enforcement of the new schedule."

Mr. Mason adds: Elsewhere in Europe the same results have been realized, even in a more marked degree. Even in Australia, where widespread ruin was foretold as the result of American tariff legislation, the returns for the quarter just past shows a net increase of $1,684,898.97 over the exports to the United States during the corresponding quarter of 1889. Berlin shows an increase for the same period of $204,180.70; Lyons, $452,418.21; Basle, $393,711.70; and so on the decrease in one consular district, whenever such decrease occurs, being thus far uniformly more than overwhelmed by the increased exports from an adjoining one.

The Destructive Tariff.

We now have the testimony of a staff correspondent of the leading high tariff paper in the country to the destructive effects of one item in the McKinley law. "I. N. F." Ford we believe is his name, who last year wrote an interesting series of letters from South America, begins a letter to the New York Tribune from San Luis Potosi, Mexico, February 27, published May 8, as follows: "The Compañia Metalurgica Mexicana, which is another name for the Kansas City Consolidated Smelting and Refining Works, is establishing here a complete modern plant for the reduction of ores of all grades." Here we get through a high tariff paper a glimpse of a large American industrial concern which has been driven to a foreign country by the McKinley bill. Mr. Ford is frank enough to state the facts fully and relieve us from the necessity of drawing inferences or dragging candles of truth out from under bushels of words. He says: "This is one of four smelters brought into operation by recent tariff decisions and legislation in the United States." This, then, is one of the effects of the new tariff for which a sub-committee of the Senate finance committee is searching. We commend to the Senators this whole letter published in the chief organ of McKinleyism. "At Monterey," he continues, "the Nueva Leon Smelting Refining and Manufacturing Works are already in operation, having been rapidly constructed since the exclusion of low grade ores from the United States."

Much of what Mr. Ford writes is so important that we will not try to abridge it. Republicans may discredit the testimony of Democrats and tariff reformers, and even of business men, but they can not discredit this testimony from a member of the Tribune's staff and published in the Tribune.

The operation of the lead ruling and the new tariff may have been beneficial to certain industrial interests in the United States. That is a question which cannot be intelligently discussed from the latitude of Mexico. What is very plain here is that legislation has operated to restore one of the Mexican industries which had been supplanted by American competition. Before railways were built and connections made with the United States smelting centres Mexican ores were largely reduced in a crude and primitive way at the haciendas. Within a few years this domestic industry has been virtually abandoned since the Omaha, Kansas City and other Western smelters have been purchasing ore on a large scale in Mexico. Now the Mexican furnaces are expected to take all the ores of the country and to reduce them more economically than the American smelters. The old industry of the haciendas is to be brought back in consequence of the exclusion of ores containing iron and lead from the United States. It is restored, moreover, to a large extent by the employment of American capital in the Mexican smelters. In the effort to shut out a certain class of low grade fluxing ores, the United States has driven its own smelters into Mexico to build up a national industry, by which all classes of ores will be reduced there.

ASPECTS OF CHRISTIAN TRUTH.

PRESIDENT WARREN'S PARABLE AND ADDRESS TO LASSELL GRADUATES.

Rev. Dr. William F. Warren, president of the Boston University, delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of Lasell Seminary in the Congregational church, Auburndale, Sunday morning. The preliminary services consisted of the invocation by Rev. Dr. Cutler, scripture readings by Rev. Dr. P. Loubet, prayer by Rev. T. W. Bishop, and singing by the Amphion male quartet and a chorus choir.

President Warren took his text from I. Timothy, 1, 15: "Faithful is the saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners."

There was once a large Bible class, said Rev. Dr. Warren, and its leader was no ordinary man. During the progress of the studies of that Bible class this text was considered. It contained truth enough for weeks of study; it contained the kernel and essence of the gospel in the assertion that men were sinners and that Christ came to save them. In order to approach a full understanding of the words which Paul spoke in his first epistle to Timothy, the leader of the Bible class selected five of its members, who were requested to write papers, giving their respective views of what was needed in order to save sinful men and how Christ met that necessity.

The first paper was presented by a journalist, and in answer to the questions he stated that the great need of mankind was Jesus Christ was sent as a teacher and savior was religious light. Christ came into the world for that end, as he himself said, "to bear witness unto the truth."

The second paper was presented by a schoolmaster, who said that in the pursuit of his profession it was his duty to form and transform character. It was that, he said, that Christ had to do in order to save the human race. Christ, he added, came to show us the beautiful luster of holiness, and to give us a living exemplification of a sinless life. It was light that was needed, and to give that light the living, inspiring power of a pure character was essential.

The third paper was presented by an ex-Governor. He commenced with the interrogatory: "What is meant by sin and saving sinners?" Sin, he said, was a disobedience of law, and the penalty must be a just punishment. To free the transgressor without punishment, he added, would be to invite further transgression, and to make no distinction between good and evil. This idea is exemplified in Christ's saving work. In order to save sinful men, he saw the necessity of some effective substitute for their dire punishment as transgressors of God's law, and in coming into the world to save sinners, Christ furnished that needed substitute.

The next paper was presented by a judge. He agreed with the ex-Governor that a substitute fulfillment of the law was needed for human salvation, and that it was by such substitute obedience that Jesus Christ saves sinners. He could not feel, however, that the ex-Governor had placed this substitute upon the true ground. To him it was a mere administrative expedient. It was more, said the judge. The satisfaction rendered by Christ was not merely satisfaction rendered to public sentiment; it was a satisfaction to the one absolute and eternally holy. "The thing needed, in my opinion," said the judge in conclusion, "for the saving of sinful men was a satisfaction of that perfect justice which stood embodied in man's divine judge, and the thing which Christ did for human salvation was precisely in the rendering of that satisfaction."

The fifth and concluding paper was presented by a thoughtful Christian woman, who said that what was needed for human salvation was life. Sin, she said, had separated our race from God, and Christ re-united God to our race, he abolished death and brought life and immortality to light. This living Christ is ours forever. He made himself so when he said: "Because I live, ye shall live also."

The teacher of the Bible class, in summing up the views in the papers presented, said that all views were right in their conclusions. "Christ," he added, "is the light, example, surety, life and expiation for the world, and you must endeavor in your researches to find the way into the more perfect vision of the ever fuller and richer truth."

"Young ladies of the graduating class," said Rev. Dr. Warren in conclusion, "my chapter from the history of a Bible class is ended. Some of you already suspect that it is no history at all, but a significant parable. It is so. The Bible class is the great church of Jesus Christ; the wise teacher is the Holy Spirit of which Christ said, 'He shall guide you into all truth'; the different essayists are the great church fathers, theologians and teachers called to give to their Christian brethren the fruits of holy meditation upon themes divine; the diversity of the essayists' views teach us that in bringing out the manifold aspects of Christian truth all varieties of human endowment of human experience, and even the variations in the spiritual life of men and women, are utilized by the Supreme Teacher for the building up of his people in truth and love."

"The great lesson of the parable is the lesson of earnestness in the study of divine truth, charity in the estimation of the views and convictions of our brethren, and hope and love in view of the infiniteness and variety of God's thoughts and ways. Let us treasure his love, who gave and evermore is giving himself for us."

Class Day Exercises.

Very clever and interesting they certainly were, and enjoyed by a large gathering of friends and relatives of the sweet girl graduates. The first part of the evening's program was given in the large hall of the gymnasium, which was packed to its fullest extent. The exercises began promptly at the hour appointed, 7.45.

The hall was prettily draped and decorated. Above the platform hung "191"

This was brought by the girls in solemn procession, and proved to be a handsome affair of golden brown and pale blue satin, bearing the class motto, "To thine own self be true."

The girls looked very charming in black Oxford caps and gowns over white dresses, and each carried in her left hand as they all marched up the centre aisle, a little fan-shaped screen of sweet peas with which she hid her face from the view of the audience.

The first number of the program, a dainty little affair tied with a knot of blue and bronze silk, was a piano quartet, by Kowalski, played by Misses Sargent, Shellabarger, Thresher and Johnson.

The class president, Miss Nan S. Peabody, made the opening address, which took the form of a brief greeting and some clever allusions to the work of the course.

She thought that the military drill had trained them so thoroughly in obedience that the command to love, honor and obey might be safely omitted in their after lives.

Great progress had been made in the study of the "Law of Love," and as to their other intellectual attainments they, the class members, were fully satisfied, and referred all interested in obtaining further information on this point to the faculty.

Miss Peabody also read a letter from the honorary member of the class, Mr. William J. Rolfe, the well-known Shakespearean scholar and critic, who was, unfortunately, detained at home by illness.

Mr. Rolfe described himself as the only boy in this group of girl graduates and very proud of the honor. He was also the class baby, having been adopted into the class one short year before.

After expressing regrets at his absence and inability to give the address for which he was set down on the program, he said that had he been allowed to preach a little sermon in the time allotted to him he should have taken for a text the class motto, which he had himself had the honor of selecting.

He then went on to show how this motto summed up the whole philosophy of life; for to be true to one's self was to make the best of one's self, mentally, morally and physically, and to be true to others and to God, which was the ideal Christianity.

The letter closed with a warm "brotherly" greeting to his "classmates" from the learned professor.

After a pianoforte solo by Miss Nellie Johnson, the class history was given by Miss Susan C. Richards, a pretty resume of the more salient and especially of the more laughable points in the history of the class.

This, as well as the "Prophecy" by Miss Sarah B. Harvey and the very clever "Class Rhymes" by Miss Nettie F. Woodbury, also the "Charge to 192" by Miss Lucy H. Roberts, were greatly appreciated by those "to the manner born," who laughed heartily over the bits and jokes at the expense of those they knew so well.

Other numbers on the program were some really remarkable guitar music by Miss Maude C. Snyder, who is the leader of the Guitar Club in the college; a pianoforte solo (Raf) by Miss Helen H. Thresher; a fine recitation, "An Idyl of the Period," by Miss Marie Shellabarger; vocal solos by Miss Nan S. Peabody and the class song, the words and music of which did credit alike to the musical and poetic genius of Miss Lucy E. Sargent.

This closed the indoor exercises, after which came those on the lawn, where amid the glare of red torches the class tree was planted, Miss Jessie A. Benton giving the oration. The text books were burned, with an elegy by Miss Susanne S. Baker, and the effigy was hung under the charge of Miss Sarah M. Winsor.

I have been a sufferer from catarrh for years. Having tried a number of remedies advertised as "sure cures" without obtaining any relief, I had resolved never to take any other patent medicines, when a friend advised me to try Ely's Cream Balm. I did so with great reluctance, but can now testify that after using it for six weeks I believe my cure. It is a most agreeable remedy—an invaluable balm.—Joseph Stewart, 624 Grand Ave., Brooklyn.

GRADE CROSSINGS.

The appearance of the counsel of the Boston & Albany Railroad to protest against granting a location to any Newton Street Railway Company across their tracks at Newtonville was a cool proceeding, in contrast with the weather. What are the streets of Newton for, to accommodate the people of Newton, or the express trains of the Boston & Albany? As Governor Claflin said, Newton people do not ask for their through express and freight trains, or for the two extra tracks to accommodate them. Two tracks would suffice for the business of Newton.

Mr. Hoar was subjected to a pretty sharp cross-questioning. He said that for some secret scheme of their own Newton men had endeavored to have the grade crossing law amended, thus insinuating that it was not a proper proceeding. Mayor Hibbard very peremptorily brought Mr. Hoar to his senses by demanding what he meant? He had the grace to apologize, and say that he meant nothing objectionable. Outside lawyers who visit our board of aldermen have to be on their most respectful behavior, under the present mayor, and it is very amusing to see how quick they learn the lesson.

The shameful lack of protection at the Walnut street crossing was brought very forcibly to Mr. Hoar's attention, and it is possible that some improvement may come of it, even without waiting for the slaughter of more Newton people. It is fully as dangerous as the Centre street crossing at Newton, where two men are employed constantly, and where fatalities are almost daily averted by this means. It is no uncommon occurrence to see a train standing at the depot, while a fast express thunders by on each of the through tracks. The same thing occurs at Newtonville, where most of those getting off the train have occasion to go to the post office or the stores, and with the gates down for five and even ten minutes at a time, it is no wonder they crawl under them. There is only one gateman who can do nothing but "holloer," no matter what the danger may be.

The crossing opposite Brookside avenue also received some attention from the witnesses and earlier in the evening the City Solicitor had been requested by the board to make a formal demand on the Boston & Albany company for a flagman. It is getting to be a popular crossing, and is also a dangerous one. The same thing ought to be done with the Greenwood avenue crossing, and the so-called "gates" ought to be furnished, as well as the flagman, in order to furnish anything like protection for the people.

Mr. Hoar seemed to have forgotten that the company's plea of its great desire to do away with the Newton crossings was the chief reason it gave in the legislature of '90, why it should be voted so many millions of stock. He seemed to think the change of grades was something in the dim future, and talked of it as a problem whose solution had not yet been discovered. He did say, however, that the company would never adopt the only feasible means of changing the grades, that of sinking the tracks, so that they could be bridged. This may have been only a threat, to deter Newton people from taking any immediate action, as any other way of changing the grades would inflict great damage on Newton property, or it may have been a notification that the company do not propose to do anything in the matter. The bill that would have helped Newton and other cities was defeated in the last legislature, in which corporation influence was strong. It certainly looks as though now that the road had obtained its free gift of stock, it had lost all interest in Newton crossings.

Nevertheless, it is a pertinent question to ask, why in view of all these things, the board of aldermen should listen to the Boston & Albany's remonstrance against giving the street railway a grade crossing. If the Boston & Albany thinks it is dangerous, it could stop all its express trains at Newtonville and send the conductor ahead to see that the track was clear, just as the street railway company proposes to do. The street railway would seem to have just as much right on a crossing as any foreign corporation.

MONDAY and Tuesday broke all previous records for extreme heat, and with the mercury at 96 in the shade the vacation season was forcibly brought to mind. Nevertheless the shore resorts are said to have been even hotter than Newton, and some of them report as high as 100 in the shade. Tuesday and Tuesday night was the most uncomfortable portion of the hot week, and the east wind that began to blow at 6.30 a. m. Wednesday was welcomed as a great relief. No one will say anything against our east winds now, even if they bring a change of over 30 degrees in a few hours. The lawns in many parts of the city are burned brown by the sun, and it will take generous rains to restore them. The strawberry crop and summer vegetable have been suffering for lack of rain, and Newton farmers felt rather blue until the storm of Wednesday and Thursday.

EX-CONGRESSMAN GREENHALGE spoke at a Republican meeting at Waterbury the other night, and among other witty things he said that he could not furnish both sides with arguments and brains. Judging from the flippant character of most of Mr. Greenhalge's speeches the truths of this remark is only too evident. His ambition seems to be merely to say smart things, and to leave "arguments and brains" to others. Nevertheless he has his uses in a campaign, for he is always amusing, but he should be always accompanied with a speaker who has the art of convincing his hearers, and who can look at and discuss the issues with an appearance of sincerity. The latter are the kind of speakers who make votes.

THE BOSTON TRAVELLER has changed hands again and is to be run more in the interest of temperance reform and of the public schools. Rev. A. E. Winslip retires, and there are numerous other changes which seem to be for the better. Traveller readers will miss Mr. Winslip's bitter partisan editorials, but judging from the samples already furnished they will have instead a sane and sensible discussion of public questions, aside from the reforms specially advocated, which will benefit the readers. The new management starts off well and is heartily endorsed by such prominent Newton men as Rev. D. L. Furber and Rev. H. J. Patrick.

THERE seems to be no question that a street railway between Newtonville and Newton Centre is regarded as a public necessity, whatever may be the kind of electric motive power used. Only one man appeared to oppose the granting of the location, and probably had it not been for the extreme heat of the evening, the crowd in favor of granting the location would have been much larger, as many men had promised to be present and to speak in favor of granting the location. Some means of transportation between the two sides of the city is a necessity, as the fares on the Circuit road are practically prohibitory.

NEWTON'S postoffices partake of the general growth of Newton, as is seen by the announcement that the business of the Newton and Newtonville offices has increased enough to call for an addition of $100 to the salary of the former and of $200 to that of the latter. Postmaster Morgan now receives $2,400, and Postmaster Turner $2,300.

THE board of aldermen left to-day at noon for Milford, where they are to inspect the storage battery system of propelling street cars. A car has been placed at their disposal, and it is said that the Aldermen will not take even a motorman or conductor, so as to get a perfectly unprejudiced opinion.

BROOKLINE has just sold some four per cent. bonds at par, and the Chronicle seems to think it is something worth crowing over. If Newton had to sell bonds at par, we should keep very quiet about it, but perhaps such a result is looked at differently in Brookline.

In a Minute.

"Don't fret; I'll be there in a minute." But, my friend, a minute means a good deal, notwithstanding you affect to hold it of no consequence. Did you ever stop to think what may happen in a minute? No. Well, while you are mulling over a minute for yourself and one for me, before you get ready for the business we have in hand, I will amuse you by telling you some things that will happen meantime.

In a minute we shall be whirled around on the outside of the earth by its diurnal motion a distance of thirteen miles. At the same time we shall have gone along with the earth on its grand journey around the sun, 1,080 miles. Quick travelling, you say. Why, that is slow work compared with the rate of travel of that ray of light which is just now reflected from that mirror. A minute ago that ray was 11,100,000 miles away.

In a minute over all the world about eighty new-born infants have each raised a wail of protest as if against thrusting existence upon them, while as many more human beings, weary with the struggle of life have opened their lips to utter their last sigh.

In a minute the lowest sound your ear can catch has been made by 990 vibrations, while the highest tone reached your after making 2,228,000 vibrations.

In a minute an express train goes a mile and a street car 32 rods; the fastest trotting horse 148 rods, and an average pedestrian has got over 16 rods.

Each minute, night and day, by the official reports, the United States collects $639, and spends $491. The interest on the public debt was $96 a minute last year, or just exactly equal to the amount of silver mined in that time. The telephone is used 595 times, the telegraph 136 times. Of tobacco, 625 pounds are raised; 3, and part of it has been used in making 6,673 cigars, and some more of it has gone up in the smoke of 2,132 cigarettes.

But I am afraid that you will forget that we are talking about a minute, sixty seconds of time. No? Well, then, every minute 600 pounds of wool grow in this country, and we have to dig 61 tons of anthracite coal and 263 tons of bituminous coal, while of pig-iron we turn out 12 tons, and of steel rails 3 tons.

In this minute you have kept me waiting 15 kags of nails have been made, 12 bales of cotton have been taken from the fields and 35 bushels of grain have gone into 149 gallons of spirits, while $66 of gold have been dug from the earth. In the same time the United States turned out coin to the value of $121, and 42 acres of the public domain have been sold or given away.—Cleveland Press.

The inundation of 1701, which swept away a great part of the old Tyne bridge, Newcastle was long remembered and alluded to with emphasis as "the flood." On one occasion Mr. Adam Thompson was put into the witness box at assizes. The counsel, asking his name, received for answer, "Adam, sir—Adam Thompson." "Where do you live?" "At Paradise, sir." Paradise is a village about a mile and a half west of Newcastle. "And how long have you dwelt in Paradise?" continued the barrister. "Ever since the flood," was the reply, made in all simplicity, and with no intention to raise a laugh. It is needless to say the judge asked for an explanation.

"That's the worst case av struttin' in borrowed feathers that I ever saw," said Mrs. Grogan, as Mrs. Clanty went out of the front gate. "Phwat did she want?" asked the husband. "She com clear over hear to get the loan av me pillows."—Ex.

Miss Flicker. "Have you read 'The Eldest of Eight'?" Miss Flight. "No, I'm not up in modern literature." Miss Flicker. "But that isn't modern literature. My father used to read it aloud when I was a child." Miss Flight. "Oh, but I'm not up in ancient literature, either."

It is certain that Japan will come to the Chicago Exposition with an extensive exhibit. Half a million dollars is the lowest sum mentioned as an appropriation. Trade between the United States and Japan aggregates more than $2,000,000 a month or $25,000,000 a year. Our chief imports from Japan are silks, tea, rice and camphor. Kerosene oil is the principal article Japan imports from this country.

"She has given up spiritualism since she married Farrar." "Because he objected to it, I suppose?" "Yes; for when she went to a table-rapping, Farrar began to get messages from his first wife.—Life.

The ceremony was performed amidst a goodly number of relatives and friends under the beautiful trees which shade the spacious lawn of Capt. Trevitt's residence. The ceremony which was in the Episcopal form was interestingly performed by the bride's pastor, Rev. John Thorpe, assisted by Rev. Mr. Hotchkiss of Cambridge, Mass. The bride was attended in a handsome costume of white tulle, she carried in her hand an elegant bouquet of white roses. The best man was the groom's brother, Albert, and the bride's sister, May was maid of honor. Four bridesmaids attended the couple being two cousins of the bride, the Misses Trevitt of Wilton, and Misses Marion Dinsmore of Nashua, and Alice Stuart of New York. The guests were presented to the bride party by the four ushers, Messrs. C. W. Davidson and E. B. Jones of Newtonville, Mass., W. George Campbell, Boston, Mass., and W. A. Guild, Milford, N. H. —In a letter from Troutdale, Colorado, under date of June 10th, W. E. Higgins gives this account of his vacation: "Starting from Denver our party, consisting of Mrs. W. S. Higgins, her son Roger, and myself, and a party of friends found ourselves on our way to Morrison, the nearest railroad station to Troutdale, a summer resort. The ride was very enjoyable, as there was plenty of country scenery to occupy our attention. Arriving at Morrison, the stage was ready to convey us to our destination. The stage road was once a Ute trail from their reservation to Denver, and later was used by the Leadville miners in transporting silver ore. The view from the road was magnificent, as it wound round the mountains on the very edge of the steep decline. At first the ride was through Turkey Creek Canyon. Anyone who has not been in the Rockies cannot imagine anything near to what a canon is. Looking upwards as far as one can see is a solid wall of rocks, and looking downwards the creek can be seen looking like a silver thread, six or seven hundred feet below. Here, too, is "Lover's Leap," which Longfellow describes so vividly. We next turn into Palmer Gulch, and see the marvelous rock overhanging the road, and which looks as if the slightest puff would send it crashing into the creek below. We soon see signs of life, and expect to see a wild level of the sea. My brother and I have come to the settlement of Evergreen. Here we see ranches with cattle grazing in the fields; the maple, that bird always found around the house, and the fine fields of grain. We are coming to Troutdale, as we can see the smoke from the chimneys in the cañons. The settlement consists of twenty-six log cabins, and is surrounded by mountains, yes, by the Rockies. The genuine Rocky mountains! We have been here now almost two weeks, and have had only one rainy day, and we are seven thousand nine hundred and ninety-five feet above the level of the sea. My brother and I have caught a young owl and intend to make a pet of it. We have all the fishing one could ask for, as the creek and lake near us are full of trout. Mountain climbing is a good exercise and we practice it a great deal. We wish all our Newton friends were here to spend the summer, and can assure them that come that they will have a hearty welcome.

Gore, Esq., Boston manager. The party are entertained on the cars during the entire trip of ten days.

—The past year has been one of the most successful years of the West Newton English and Classical school, considering the numbers, or the widely separated homes of the students, or the high character of the patrons of the school. One hundred and seven students have been connected with the school the past school year which closed the 16th inst. The students come almost wholly through present and former pupils, their parents and other friends, hence they advertise little being obliged constantly to refuse applicants for want of accommodations, notwithstanding the admission of one family, "The Ames's," where the goodly number of the younger pupils were cared for by Miss Allen.

—The Flower service at the Unitarian church last Sunday was one of great interest both to the school and congregation. The church was very beautiful in its decorations. At the assembling of the pupils Mr. Jaynes had an acknowledgment to make of the reception a few days previous of a valuable gold watch from the N. H. Club, which he presented to the school. The devoted services which he has given to the school. The singing by the children was unusually fine. Miss White also sang "Consider the Lilies," in her most lovely style. A pleasant feature of the musical service was the singing by a choir of little boys, which preceded and followed the presentation of the children to the altar for baptism.

—In this ward there are several good tennis courts, those of the Neighborhood Club being the best. A number of the "good players" mentioned in Leon avis, Joseph J. Davis, Fred Pratt, Herbert Felton and E. O. Blanchard. The Neighborhood Club has a tennis organization, made up of skilful players. The club has laid out three excellent gravel courts. Mr. E. F. Woods is considered the best player in the club having won the first prize in the club tournament last year. For several years he has won prizes in the county league tennis matches. He uses the Lawford stroke which he regards as most effective. Mr. C. J. Drayton ranks as a good best player, having been defeated lately by Mr. Woods. He is also an active member in the Longwood Club. He has a good serve and plays well. Other good players in the club are: Mr. J. W. Lunt, Mr. J. Q. Bird, B. Day, C. C. Pond, B. S. Palmer, E. A. Adams, G. A. Frost and G. H. Phelps. In doubles Messrs. Travels and Palmer and Hall and Pond make good teams. Mr. and Mrs. Hall are the best mixed man and lady players in doubles. The club conducts a tournament every holiday during the season.

Visitors to Boston should not fail to visit the warehouses of Paine's Furniture Co., 48 Canal St., opposite the Boston & Maine Depot. These warehouses with nearly five acres of open space, contain rare and curious furniture from every part of the world. It is as interesting a visit to an Art Museum and far more practical in its results.

They are helping themselves and will be happy to receive any contributions to assist them to finish their studies.

—The pupils of Lasell Seminary held a tennis tournament Monday forenoon on the grass courts on the seminary grounds. There were seven entries, all for singles, namely: Miss Lurr and Miss Hathaway of Lincoln, Neb.; Miss Tait, Miss Conon of New York; Miss Eddy of New City, Mich.; Miss Morse of Litchfield; Miss Flogg of Texas. The game was best three out of five and Mr. John Bragdon acted as umpire. The committee in charge of arrangement were Miss Lamson of Chicgo, Miss Hane and Miss Meuns of Ohio, all expert tennis players. In the first round Miss Lurr defeated Miss Tait, 3-2; Miss Conon defeated Miss Hathaway, 3-1; Miss Morse defeated Miss Eddy, 2-0. Miss Bragdon then played with Miss Lurr, winning, 3-1. In the second round, Miss Morse defeated Miss Conon, 3-1. Miss Morse now played with Miss Lurr for the final for the championship, Miss Bragdon winning, 3-1. Miss Morse showed some very pretty tennis and Miss Lurr was excellent in handling the racket. The prize was a beautiful gold-lined silver cup. It was presented to Miss Lurr, who some very happy remarks, by Principal Bragdon at the afternoon exercises in the chapel.

It was a happy thought of a lady of a neighboring city to supplement her winter's lectures with a visit to the Old Ladies' Home of her city, to read a paper on a poor woman who struggled, endured, and conquered amid great difficulties. The old ladies, who evidently were much pleased with the lecture, had a new subject of conversation for some time after. That the oldest inmate of the Home, who was very deaf, might gratify her desire to know, the lecturer handed her for perusal each page of the paper. The next oldest woman, eighty-one years of age, also very deaf, much enjoyed the lecture by holding her trumpet close to the speaker. Are there not other lecturers who can spare an afternoon for the pleasure and instruction of the shut-in residents of our Old Ladies' Homes.

JEALOUSY IN MID-AIR.

Loud exclamations leaped from a thousand throats. The balloon had just started.

Like a falcon whose eyes the hunter has suddenly uncovered, it fled straight up into the azure space, borne away with lightning speed. Now the heads of the two aeronauts could barely be distinguished at the edge of the car.

Leaning over the slight oar side, they watched the forms and dimensions of terrestrial objects diminish and fade away below them. What was that vague white-and-azur heap streaked in every direction by black lines? Was it Naples? Yes, Naples, which they had just quitted—a city reduced to the proportions of a bee-hive. But to the right, to the left, before, behind, what a marvellous horizon! Vesuvius was there, sleeping in its lair; the jagged line of the Apennines, and on the other side, as far as the eye could reach, the sea, the vast blue sea, sparkling in the broad sunlight.

Suddenly, amid the profound silence of the azure space, a woman's voice resounded, clear as the tinkling of crystal.

"Oliver," said she, "your hand!"

"Here it is, Lea," answered a man's voice.

"Thank you," said the woman, who straightened herself up, closing her eyes with a shiver.

The man raised his head and glanced at his companion, who, very pale, had seated herself upon a light bamboo stool.

"What is the matter with you?" he inquired.

"I was afraid," said she. "I felt dizzy, as if I were falling; but it is over, she added, passing her delicate gloved hand across her eyes.

"Do you regret your whim?"

"No, certainly not. But a first experiment may unsettle the nerves. Oh, I will insure myself to rest easy on that score."

The man, standing erect, contemplated her. She was charming in her close-fitting tourist costume, with the jaunty masculine hat coquettishly placed upon her golden hair, fastened at the nape of the neck, and the pallor which increased the brightness of her black eyes.

The young woman contemplated her companion, whose manly visage, which had a mustache expression, was framed by a thick and closely-cut blonde beard. As she saw he was frowning she said to him in her turn, in her musical voice:

"And you? Why have you that gloomy air?"

He did not answer the question, but, leaning a trifle over the edge of the car, said:

"We are ascending too rapidly!"

And seizing a rope which hung within reach of his hand he gave it a pull. Almost instantaneously the young woman felt the balloon slacken its speed, then stop, and finally move in the opposite direction.

"Are we descending for good?" she asked.

"No," replied Oliver. "Presently we shall ascend again."

"When?"

"When I wish. I have only to close the valve which controls the gas. Do you see this rope I hold in my hand? It regulates our course."

"And if it should break?"

"It will not break; it is strong. But, if, by a miracle, it should happen to disappear, we should be lost!"

"How?"

"The balloon is sufficiently charged with hydrogen to carry us to the regions where the air cannot be breathed. We should be asphyxiated."

"Happily it would take two miracles, it seems to me, for the rope to be double, is it not?"

"It appears to be double now, but in reality there is only a single rope. Lean over the edge of the car a little. Do you see that ring up there? The rope passes through it and its two ends I hold in my hand. They are tied together, but a cut from a knife will suffice to separate them. See! Now the two ends are free. I have but to pull one of them, when the rope will slip through the ring and fall at my feet, and we are off for the grand voyage!"

He had suited the action to the word. The rope had fallen at his feet. He coiled it about his arm and hurled it into space.

The young woman had risen, trembling, with a frightened look.

"Oliver," she cried, "what have you done? Are you out of your senses?"

The young man looked her full in the face and said in a very calm tone:

"I am not out of my senses."

"Then what do you want?"

"I want what is going to happen. I desire that we shall die together, here in the broad heavens, far from that earth I cursed since you there appeared to me such as you are, since the mud of which it is formed bespattered the idol of my superstition adored in you."

The young woman stared at him in amazement and terror.

"Oh, do not protest!" exclaimed Oliver. "Every feint is useless. In a word I will convince you of what I say. For two days past I have known you were deceiving me, that you were listening to another suit. Yes, a fool, a fop, that Count Moreno, who followed us from Venice, whom we found in Milan, in Florence, in Rome; whom you caused me to receive as a travelling companion; to whom I have daily extended my hand, imbecile that I am, and who must have had many a hearty laugh with you at my innocent confidence. Yes, I know all this! How did I discover it? You care very little, no doubt, I have followed you, I have played the spy upon you. The confession does not humiliate me in the least. It was imperative for me to know, and I do know with such certainty that I feel my eyes burned by the fiery points of the evidence."

"And it is you who have done this to me, you nobility, purity, the ideal, even—for you were all that to me, and you know it—and more, if possible; a sort of divinity before whom I knelt my respectful and submissive love—for I loved you thus, to the point of sacrificing everything to the absolute worship I had vowed to you, everything. But what need have I to repeat all this to you? Do you not know this as well as I? Since we left New York, six months ago, have I not been devoted to you—have I not been constantly the submissive slave of your caprice? You wished to wait, you said, until the period of mourning for your dead husband had expired before bestowing upon me your hand in marriage. And what has been the result? You have determined to break our engagement, to cast me off, and become the wife of an Italian nobleman!"

"Your role has been difficult to play, but you have filled it like a consummate actress! You, for whom love was but poetic aspirations, ethereal dreams, soaring into the azure space; you, whose siren voice, with its vibrating melodies, sang to me the delights of an infinite ecstasy, of an ideal flight into the blue heavens like the flights of the swallows and eagles! Well, your dream is realized and you are going to live it out until it kills you! You are caught in the trap of your own whim, for it was you who yesterday took the notion of buying this balloon from the aeronaut who was going to ascend in it, and of departing in it with me. Seasonable caprice, was it not, to worthily finish the Neapolitan carnival? It was my revenge you offered me. I seized it. And now it is to another vengeance I deliver you, to that of the azure space jeered at by your poetic falsehoods, to that of the heavens mocked by your sacrilegious irony!"

"Ah! they avenge themselves cruelly, these impassive judges! Do you know what punishment they will inflict upon me? They will hang me from the neck of the air, too rash, made the experiment. They were found in their car, rigid and cold, their visages swollen, the blood having flowed from their ears, their eyes, and their mouths! Such is the end that awaits you. Soon a red foam will heighten the carmine of your lips and red drops will hang from your eyelids from your delicate ears, while your beautiful eyes will weep tears of blood!"

The young woman had straightened herself, seized by convulsive trembling.

"You will not do that, Oliver!" she cried. "It is too horrible! I do not want to die that frightful death!"

Oliver had crossed his arms upon his breast.

"If I wished to prevent it, I could not do so now!"

She sprang upon him, and tore from him the knife he yet held in his hand.

"But with this," cried she, "I can cut open the balloon!"

She raised her eyes to the round bulk of the aerostat.

"Try," said Oliver coldly.

She grasped the ropes, put one foot on the edge of the car, and strove to raise herself by the strength of her wrists. But dizziness overcame her, and she fell backward, breathless. The knife, escaping from her hand, went whirling through the air.

She remained a moment as if annihilated.

"See," said Oliver, in a mocking voice, "the scorching southern sun is heating the balloon, and dilating the gas. We are making rapid headway!"

He looked upward, contemplating the azure heavens with an ecstatic smile.

Suddenly, while he was speaking, the young woman uttered an exclamation of joy, and a flash of hope illuminated her visage. Slowly, quietly, she put her hand in the pocket of her dress, drew from it an object which she concealed, then abruptly raised her arm and two explosions resounded.

"You have reckoned without your host!" cried she, with a laugh of triumph. "Some American women never travel without a revolver, and they are right."

Cut through and through by the two balls, the balloon was already beginning to descend.

"So be it!" said he. "We are over the open sea. Blue for blue, we shall still die in the azure."

The balloon was visibly collapsing. Its speed became terrible. Oliver himself, choking, closed his eyes, and amid the silence of the empty heavens the balloon pursued its dizzy descent.

NAPLES, February 28th, 1884.

MY DEAR OLIVER:—I sent to inquire about you this morning. They informed me you were better. I am delighted to hear it. I am also better. You certainly will learn this with pleasure. I have given a few bank notes to the fisherman who picked us up and took us ashore in his boat—both in a swoon, as it appears. Here is a poor fellow who can say, without speaking metaphorically, that fortune fell down to him from the heavens! Travelling in your company, my friend, is decidedly too dangerous. I begin to believe that one day or another you would bring me bad luck. Excuse this superstition, hatched in my brain in this class land of the Lettatura, and permit me for the future to pursue alone my journey in the country of romance. My dear assassin, I am, without too much autosism, yours, L.E.A.

NEWTON BOAT CLUB FESTIVITIES.

A SERIES OF RACES, FOLLOWED BY A CONCERT AND DANCING.

The boathouse of the Newton Boat Club at Riverside was the rendezvous Saturday afternoon of one of the largest gatherings of the season, and the river between Newton and Waltham was filled with boats and canoes carrying their burden of pleasure seekers.

The special attraction was a series of races under the auspices of the boat club over a course about one-half a mile long, extending from the boat house bridge down the river to the clubhouse of the Boston Canoe Club and return.

The racing commenced at 4 o'clock in the 18-foot canvas canoe class, in which were two entries, Drake and Burroughs, and Richards and Cole, the former pair coming in first.

In the two-oared boat race, Higgins won first prize and Richards second.

In the cedar canoe race there were three entries, Potter and Angier, Higgins and Lawrie, Cobb and Page. It was the most exciting race of the series and was hotly contested to the finish line, Potter and mate and Cobb and mate reaching the stake at the same time. The judges decided the race a tie and it will be paddled over again June 27.

The prizes were presented at the concert in the boathouse in the evening by Mr. Sydney Harwood. The first prizes were enamelled pins bearing the letters "N. B. C." and the second prizes were club flags bearing the same inscription.

A large number of society people attended the concert. The musical program was rendered by Dow's orchestra of Cambridge. Dancing was enjoyed from 8.30 until 10 o'clock.

The clubhouse and grounds were prettily illuminated with Japanese lanterns. The third concert in the series occurs at the boathouse next Saturday evening.

Got hay-fever? Some says Johnson's Anodyne Liniment will cure it. Try it and report to us.

It won't cost you one-half as much. Do not delay. Send three two-cent stamps for postage, and we will send you Dr. Kaufmann's great work, fine colored plates from life, on disease, its causes and home cure. Address, A. P. Ordway & Co., Boston, Mass.

It was a great disappointment to many as extensive plans had been made, many of which will be carried out if the weather prove favorable on Saturday.

—The Saturday Evening Gazette has this notice of the slaughter of hens at Chestnut Hill by dogs: "The eminent merchant, Mr. R. H. White, has a fondness for hens and chickens, of which he had collected many rare varieties upon his elegant estate at Chestnut Hill, and from which he derived much pleasure. It was, therefore, a sad blow to him to find that he has some enemy who was miscreant enough just before dawn one morning last week to let vicious dogs into the chicken enclosure which destroyed two or three hundred of these innocent little creatures. Such a malicious devilry as this is almost incomprehensible. It is to be devoutly hoped that this villain will be discovered and be made to suffer the extreme penalty of the law. A coat of tar and feathers in addition might prove salutary."

—The Newtons played their eighth game of ball this season with the Boston Athletic Association, Wednesday last, defeating them by a score of 13 to 8. It was very evident from the make-up of the B. A. A. team that they came out to win, having strengthened their nine by the addition of Lake the change catcher of the Boston League team. The Newtons had the odds against them as they had to play without Hubbard or Warren, but those who were in the game were on their mettle and would not be beaten without a desperate struggle. The disagreeableness of the day did not seem to dampen the ardor of those on the grand stand as they stayed to the end of the game. Game next Saturday will be at Melrose, Mass., with the Melrose team and it is understood no effort will be spared that will enable them to even up with the Newtons. May good luck go with the boys.

BASE BALL.

NEWTON, 13; B. A. A., 11.

The Boston Athletic Association base ball nine went to Newton Centre Wednesday afternoon, and were defeated by the Newtons in a close game. The features were the effective pitching of Sherman, who held the visitors down to six hits, and the good stick work of the home club. The score:

Didn't Know Adam.

As Artemus Ward was once traveling in the cars, dreading to be bored and feeling miserable, a man approached him, sat down and said:

"Did you hear the last thing on Horace Greeley?"

"Greeley? Greeley?" said Artemus. "Horace Greeley? Who is he?"

The man was quiet for about five minutes.

Pretty soon he said: "George Francis Train is kicking up a good deal of a row over in England; do you think they will put him in a bastille?"

"Train? Train? George Francis Train?" said Artemus, solemnly. "I never heard of him."

This ignorance kept the man quiet for about fifteen minutes, then he said:

"What do you think about General Grant's chance for the presidency? Do you think they will run him?"

"Grant? Grant? Hang it, man," said Artemus, "you appear to know more strangers than any man I ever saw."

The man was furious. He walked up the car, but at last came back and said:

"You confounded ignoramus, did you ever hear of Adam?"

Artemus looked up and said: "What was his other name?"

"Now, my dear pastor, I do hope you will pardon me for bothering you so long with my own family cares and anxieties."

"My dear madam, don't mention it. It has not bothered me in the least. While you were talking I was thinking of my next Sunday's sermon."—Fic-gende Blaetter.

THE CITY GOVERNMENT.

THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN HOLD A SPECIAL SESSION.

Both branches of the city council met Monday evening, the aldermen holding a special session. Messrs. Harbach, Coffin, Fenno, Luke and Sheppard were present and Mayor Hibbard presided.

After the reading of the records of the last meeting, Mayor Hibbard appointed Officer John Ryan to be sergeant of Police, dating from July 22 at a salary of $1200 per annum. He was appointed to the force in 1879, and has a great record as a policeman and soldier. He participated in the principal engagements of the Army of the Potomac during the civil war and as a member of the 7th U. S. Cavalry was in Gen. Reno's division at the time of the Custer massacre and commanded the detail that buried the remains of the gallant general after the battle of the Little Big Horn.

City Solicitor Slocum reported on the question of acting on the petitions of the Central Street Railway and Garden Street Railway, presented last year, that new petitions were not necessary, and that it would be perfectly proper to grant locations on those petitions, provided another hearing was given, with due notice thereof, the recent hearing not having the legal notice.

On motion of Alderman Fenno, a hearing was appointed for Monday evening, July 6 at 8 o'clock. This hearing will probably be a purely formal affair, as the ground was thoroughly gone over at the recent hearing.

The petition of Chas. L. Upham for license to alter a building on Cherry street, by an addition of 6 by 6 feet, to be used as a stable, was referred to the license committee and a hearing set for Monday evening, June 29th.

Rev. H. J. Patrick requested that no permits for poles on Winthrop street be issued.

Mrs. W. T. Hill gave notice of intention to erect a house 24 by 30 on Otis street, and also asked for license to build a private stable for four horses, 30 by 40 feet; referred to license committee and hearing appointed for June 29th.

E. S. Rollins sent a communication, claiming that the erection of the High school gymnasium damaged his houses in the vicinity; referred to public property committee.

Geo. Hill asked for concrete sidewalks on Hunnewell Terrace.

Mrs. E. P. Brown gave notice of intention to erect a house on Hollis street, and requested permission to use a portion of the sidewalk; referred to the superintendent of streets.

Geo. Strong asked for license to build a private stable on Tremont street, 25 by 48 feet; referred to license committee and hearing appointed for June 29th, at 8 o'clock.

On motion of Alderman Fenno, orders were passed for concrete sidewalks for J. E. Breton on Garden and Pearl streets; J. W. French on Gramere street; Chas. E. Strout on Highland street; and E. A. Pope on Hunnewell ave., H. B. Parker, crosswalk from Mill street at junction with Walnut, for repairs of sidewalk in front of the estate of J. H. Nickerson on Washington street, and in front of the Engine house at West Newton.

The board then after a recess adjourned.

The Common Council.

In the Common Council the order appropriating $500 additional for the public property committee was inquired into by Councilman Moulton who wished an explanation of the need for extra money.

Mr. Roffe in answer said the buildings were badly out of repair and the neglect in former years from a lack of sufficient funds made action now imperative. It would take fully $2,000 to repair the Lower Falls schoolhouse alone, while other buildings needed large expenditures.

Mr. Moulton hoped the appropriation would be sufficient to provide proper heating at the Hyde school which was closed all the severe part of the past winter on account of being insufficiently heated.

Mr. Roffe agreed that the Hyde school was suffering for attention, but did not see how $5,000 was to cover all repairs desired.

Mr. Dutch asked if the appropriation called for would be sufficient to finish the alterations now pending at the Pierce school, and was answered in the negative.

The order was adopted in concurrence.

On the additional appropriation of $11.40 for expenses last Memorial Day, Mr. Dutch said when the bill came to the committee for approval, it was thrown out because of an understanding that a commission was paid the stable keeper who supplied the carriages, and carriages hired outside, and the committee thought this a sufficient reason for discarding the bill.

Mr. Moulton said he was a committee of one at the time to procure the carriages. He knew nothing of the trades in previous years but he did this year, and it seemed proper for the party taking the contract to have a commission on outside carriages. No one stable keeper in the city can furnish all the carriages to transport the city government Memorial Day, and when Mr. Spear who took the contract, was asked what he would have to pay to get first-class carriages, he said $8 and would not do it unless he received $9. Since Mr. Spear got the contract, other stable keepers had evidently been saying they would have furnished all for $8. He thought the committee was placed in a bad light by this attack.

Mr. Dutch replied that he did not know whom he was hitting when he brought up the question and was sorry if he had injured the gentleman's feelings. He did not believe in paying out so much money ($140) for the city government to ride around the city and carry a bouquet and should hereafter vote against such expenditures.

The order passed.

The list of jurors was tabled until the next meeting and no action was taken on the order from the alderman refusing to change Chemical A to the truck house.

On the order on repairing sidewalks on Washington street, Mr. Dutch thought it very strange no attention had been paid by the committee to his request to repair the crosswalk near his store. It was the worst crosswalk in West Newton and a petition put in by him had received no attention.

Mr. Richardson asked when he put in such a petition.

Mr. Dutch said he had not put one in for that walk.

Mr. Roffe presented a petition that Union street, Ward 6, be extended in a straight line to Station street, which was referred to the highway committee.

All other business was in concurrence and the lower branch adjourned.

The thirty-first annual graduation exercises of the Newton high school took place in the high school building, Newtonville, Tuesday. There was a large attendance of the friends and parents of the pupils and the usual representation of the school board and city council. The decorations were simple, the platform being devoid of special ornamentation and the principal display consisting of festoons of bunting, crimson and white, the class color—festooned on the side walls.

The class insignia, '91, was displayed in silver numerals on a crimson velvet banner and the class motto occupied a commanding position in the rear of the stage. Its language, depicted in crimson lettering on a canvas background, seemed to please the spectators who were evidently in sympathy with the sentiment, "Not For Ourselves Alone, but For The Whole World."

The exercises commenced at 10 o'clock with a prayer by Rev. R. A. White, followed by a violinello solo by James Stagg Philbrick.

THE SALUTATORY

Was then pronounced by Miss Elizabeth L. Smith, who said:

"It is with sincere pleasure that we welcome you, our parents and friends, and with you to join in these exercises which are to close one epoch in our lives and to begin another."

It is with mingled pleasure and regret that we have come to this, our graduation day—with pleasure, because there is a certain charm in leaving our powers, in looking forward to fresh attainments in life, and in our entering upon the experiences of manhood and womanhood; with regret, because there is also something sad in leaving the harbor and steering for the open sea, and in bidding good-bye to old faces and associations."

"When we compare with the United States those countries where the government does little or nothing for the mental culture of its citizens, we get some idea of what great privileges, are ours, and what responsibility, in proportion to the privileges, lies upon us."

"The best way in which we can show our gratitude is not by words spoken here today, but by doing our best in the years to come, and by striving to use for God and our fellow-men the talent which has been given us."

"Our graduation day would not be complete without the presence of you who have been our faithful instructors during the past four years; and so we welcome you with feelings of gratitude which cannot be expressed in our hearts. With what patience and wisdom you have guided us, none know better than ourselves, and we shall not soon forget how much we owe you. Life is our great school in which we are all learners; and if our future teachers, experience, whether with joy or sorrow, deal as gently of us, and as helpfully fit us for our final graduation, we shall indeed have cause for gratitude."

After the salutatory, an original declamation was delivered by Fletcher Barker Coffin whose topic was "Election of U. S. Senators by the People." His delivery was excellent and the presentation of the ideas demonstrated considerable thought in construction. His appearance was very natural and self-possessed and the young speech maker's efforts received merited recognition, a hearty round of applause greeting his closing words.

Miss Emma Josephine Tyler next read a well written essay on Wordsworth, Tennyson and Browning, whom she delineated as the three teachers of men, preceding the rendition of a piano-forte number, "Valse Caprice." Rubenstein, by Francis Elizabeth Hildreth, who displayed considerable ability in technique and expression.

Arthur Wilson Tarbell declaimed upon "American Political Ideas," and made a very favorable impression as a young orator. His sentences were well rounded and he managed to bring out his points with commendable emphasis.

Miss Mildred Hunt's interpretation of Tennyson's Message, "In Memoriam," followed the declamation by Tarbell and preceded the rendition of the soprano solo, "The Song That Reached My Heart," by Miss Cora Ellen Davis, who has a sweet, sympathetic voice of considerable range and power.

Holmes Whitmore gave his ideas of the "Power of the Press," concluding the editorial utterances of the 19th century American journals and their English contemporaries. The English papers were superior in editorial tone, he thought, and the American journals, in his opinion, defective on account of inaccuracies and partisanship. The declamation was well received and was certainly well delivered and of thoughtful tone. It was followed by a clever essay by Miss Elizabeth Ella Parker whose subject was "Literature As a Criticism of Life"—Silas Marner.

THE ORATION.

The class oration was delivered by Samuel Tyler who said:

"This century in many respects is without a parallel in the history of the world. By its wonderful progress in science, and its vast acquisition of material wealth, it surpasses the hopes of the most visionary prophet of the past. To such a degree have men come to regard worldly gain as the end of life, that we are said to be living in an age of materialism."

It is at such a time, that we bid farewell to our school, and find opening before us greater opportunities and broader fields of action. Today, as we look forward into the future, it is with confidence and hope, although innumerable dangers and difficulties must be overcome before we can realize our loftiest expectations. In striving against these dangers and difficulties, some principles of action are necessary, which, if followed, will enable us to achieve a more perfect fulfillment of our highest and noblest aims."

One such principle we have in our motto: "Not for ourselves alone, but for the whole world." What does this mean? Absolute self-forgetfulness? An utter disregard for all our own interests? Certainly not! Not for ourselves alone! That is—while having that self-interest which enables us to improve our opportunities, and which prevents our life from being but a vain sacrifice, we should remember that our desires must not be wholly centered in ourselves; that we live in close relationship with our fellow-men; that our lives, obscure though they may be, will have their individual influence upon the world, and that it is our bounden duty to make this influence an ennobling one."

Now in this, have we chosen a principle of action, which can truly be said to voice the spirit of this century? No!

We have seen that the inclination of the present is toward materialism, and if this be true, it is toward selfishness, every aim in the things about us, tending to make its followers individualist and worshippers of mammon. Are we then content that we have not been mistaken, in thus adopting a guide, a principle, which we know is hostile to the tendency of men in general? In trying to answer so important a question, let us consider more fully the great beliefs of today, which are moulding the lives of men."

The first is that of the man who regards the right of the individual as sovereign. What the ego wants it is right that it should have, regardless of others. In this desire, the individualist sees the only true guide by which his life should be governed. Having no duties toward his fellows, recognizing a common interest no more than if he were the sole inhabitant of the globe on which he dwells, he goes through life, a menace to the world, the personification of selfishness, and the embodiment of that spirit, which scorns the vital truth, that man is essentially social in his nature."

The second belief is that known today as the Positive Philosophy, "which accepts as the foundation of moral utility or the Greatest Happiness, and holds that actions are right, in proportion as they tend to produce happiness, wrong as they tend to produce the reverse of happiness."

"Poor vaunt of life, indeed, Were man but formed to feed On life, to solace and to feed, Such feasting ended, then As sure an end to men."

The third and last belief is that which embodies the teachings of Christ, that light which shone forth, when society was in the lowest depths of corruption and vice, when the old faiths had been shattered, and men were groping about in blind despair for some rock on which to rest, and which raised the world from such a condition, to the vastly higher plain of Christian civilization."

These, then, are the world's faiths, and there can, I think, but little difficulty in deciding that we were not mistaken in our choice, when we were guided by the world's arrayed against the spirit of our motto; for we surely cannot accept the first belief, that of selfishness, nor the second, containing, as it does, principles that are fundamentally wrong. In the spirit of Christianity alone is found the light we are to follow, and we cannot be mistaken if our guide draws its inspiration from such a source."

Thus, classmates, instead of being in error, we have adopted an ideal of life, the influence of which the world is in the greatest need. Confronting us are the problems of labor and capital, wealth and poverty, upon the solution of which depend the fate of our nation—problems that can be solved neither by mere legislation, nor by the application of some abstraction of political economy; but which can be met successfully, when men come to realize that their lives must be ordered in reference to the rights of their fellows; when the world of business is accorded by the feeling of friendliness rather than of hostility; when a desire that is more exalted than a political office is regarded as a sacred trust; in short, when the world is in profound recognition of the teachings embodied in "the sermon on the Mount."

Then, and then only, I believe, will labor and capital work in harmony; will wealth be more evenly divided; will the terrible poverty, and ignorance, and crime of today begin to disappear; and will the world be bathed in the sunlight of peace, shining from Him who taught while on earth, the vital truth of a common humanity."

THE CLASS HISTORY.

Miss Amy Wires, the pretty historian of the class, commenced her account of the record of '91 by alluding to its first year in the high school which she said passed happily to a close, a time of quiet growth which ended all too soon. Continuing, she said: "We entered our second year of school work, no longer strangers in a strange land, but filled with the true home-feeling for the dear old N. H. S. Freed from those 'little disadvantages' of the freshman year, and working with familiar tools, we found that our daily tasks grew pleasanter and still more pleasant. Our junior year proved, on the whole, a most enjoyable one, we found that hard work may go hand in hand with pleasure. Speaking in a general way of the work of the fourth year and closing of its influences and memories, the fair historian of the class spoke these concluding words: "As we look back today on the threshold of independent life, many are the half-serious half-happy thoughts which flit through our minds, many are the half formed plans for the future. Let us not think too much of the 'success' which we are to 'attain'—this is beginning at the wrong end of the problem. Let us rather have an ideal, the higher the better, or which we are willing to work with our whole strength, and the 'success' will take care of itself. "In our after thoughts of these happy school days, there is little danger that we shall fail in our patriotism for the class of '91. Long may it live! But let not class distinction detract from our regard for the school as a whole, the dear Alma Mater to whose high standard we owe so much."

"And now, dear classmates, the inevitable 'good-bye' has come; and since we must say it, let us put our whole hearts into it; let us hold our hopes for a happy future, our love and friendship for one another, and our kind wishes for the school, the teachers and the schoolmates whom we leave behind. Thus may it be turned into a happy word, a 'God bless you one and all!'"

Following the class history, a violin solo was rendered by Mary Moody Fyffe and the diplomas were then presented by Chairman J. Edward Hollis of the school board, who made brief introductory remarks before bestowing the coveted certificates of scholarship to the graduates. He commenced by saying I bring to you the congratulations of the Mayor, who, because of pressing business, was unable to be here this morning to present these diplomas. I am much impressed, continued the speaker, with the exercises of today. The quality of the work shows that you have given attention to your studies. You now start out into the world, and you will often look back upon this event with intense feeling. Some of you will follow one path and some another. The friendship and social ties which you have formed here, however, will not be broken. While some go to college and to the Institute to continue their course of study, others will go to the counting-room and factory, there to find new fields of usefulness. Here in your school days the rudiments of your future life have been founded. You have learned the true meaning of study, intelligence and wisdom, and not in vain for your acquired knowledge will always, I am sure, reflect credit on each member of your class and upon the school. I hope you will proper in the future, remembering the maxim that in the lexicon of youth there is no such word as fail. After the presentation of diplomas, the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Amos E. Lawrence. The following declamations and essays announced on the program were not delivered:

"The Indian Question, Wilmon H. Sheldon; "Hawthorne's House of Seven Gables," Fannie I. Leonard; "Shakespeare's Julius Caesar," Grace M. Denison; "Webster's Bunker Hill Oration," Daniel C. Greene, Jr.; "Jacobite Songs," Mary M. Fyffe; "Wordsworth, Tennyson and Browning, a study," Nellie R. Nickerson; "The Election Bill," Howard Whitmore; "The Rise of the Novel," Frances E. The Granite State Building ASSOCIATION.

OBJECT.

THE object of this association is to furnish homes to its members on an instalment plan at the very lowest cost. According to the lapses on old life insurance and one to five year orders for the past five years, fifty per cent. of all have lapsed. We find by careful investigation, a homestead costing Three Thousand Dollars can be obtained at a cost of about Eighteen Hundred Dollars to all members of this association. Our plan is this: All members pay five Dollars to join this association and as soon as this fund reaches the amount of Three Thousand Dollars, certificate holder No. 1 can buy or build a house, select his own location, and make his own contract for building, plans and specifications to be approved by the association. The members shall first give a mortgage for Three Thousand Dollars without interest, less the amount paid in by said member, and shall continue to pay his weekly instalment until his mortgage is paid up in full.

SOURCES OF PROFIT.

THE lapse element. It is impossible to hold any considerable number of persons together in any kind of an association without change; old members drop out and new ones come in, change in condition, alteration of mind, death, etc., all contribute to exemplify this principle, and constitute an inevitable law by which the persistent members realize a large profit. All members stand equal, as each one has to pay in full for his homestead, less the lapses, which, according to past five years' experience, place the lapses at fifty per cent. This will reduce the cost of each member's Three Thousand Dollar house to Eighteen Hundred Dollars, or less. Ninety per cent. of all instalments go to the building fund, ten per cent. to the general fund to pay the expenses of the association.

The Drawback Humbly.

Mr. McKinley and his friends have told us with great unctious how American manufacturers by means of the drawback on foreign materials are enabled to sell their productions abroad. Even if that were true it would not be entirely satisfactory to have American productions sold cheaper to foreigners than to our own people. But the "Drawback" is a humbug, as the following evidence shows:

What Manufacturers Say About It.

"It will be easily seen that many of the difficulties would be avoided by the possession of an elastic conscience which would enable one to keep a little crude iron on hand, to swear by, and to furnish the nails for foreign shipment from his regular stock of nails made from American iron. In the absence of such a valuable possession, however, I found there was nothing for me in the foreign business, and so surrendered it to others. Several concerns had a clip at this foreign business off and on, but most of them retired from it after one or two experiences."—Prominent Nail Manufacturer.

"As a matter of fact, when prices of metal in Great Britain were 30 per cent lower than here, exporting under Revised Statute 3020 was a failure, as I knew to my cost, having thoroughly tested it. The thing that I can obtain cheaper than all rivals in other countries is labor, and I am free to admit that our system of protection cheapens labor. Comparing such European favors as I have personally visited with mine, I have satisfied myself that every working man to whom I paid 25 per cent more wages gave me 50 per cent more service in return. This is my real indefeasible advantage, although our tariff system bears harder upon the agricultural implement manufacturer than almost any other of its many victims."—A. B. Farquhar, of Pa. Agricultural Works.

"All the goods that we make in Canada, and shall make in England and Germany, could just as well be made in Rhode Island, were it not for the fiscal policy of this Government. Employment could be given to thousands of workmen here in the manufacture of goods for the foreign market, if we were not hampered by a high tariff. * * One of the principal reasons that induced us to establish the English plant is the worthlessness of the drawback clause in the McKinley bill, which makes it next to impossible for a manufacturer to take advantage of it. In order to get a drawback on exports made of imported raw material on which a duty has been paid, a manufacturer is put to more trouble and bother than the drawback is worth. * * We use imported raw material from different countries, and to keep track of all the different kinds, with the dates and places, would involve endless work and trouble. * * We shall send a part of the machinery in our Eddy street mill to Leeds, and a part to the German manufacturers to be established soon. In this way we shall give employment to labor abroad, that we should be only too glad to employ at home, were it not for the embarrassments which the McKinley tariff imposes upon us."—President Angell, of the American Screw Company.

The Actual Modus Operandi.

Nothing will show better than the following specific regulation the actual steps that must be taken before a rate of allowance can be obtained. In this case all the materials were imported, and the product was such that they actually appeared in the article and were therefore capable of measurement.

The articles were ladies silk-plush garments and were made in the city of New York from imported woven fabrics. "The quantity of the materials will be ascertained as follows:

"The exporter will be required to give to each style of garment manufactured for export a number, which shall always represent the same garment in style, quality and quantity and materials used, and to furnish for the use of the appraiser a statement including a cut of the garment, showing the bust, waist and skirt measures and length thereof, and the quantity of plush and lining entering into the manufacture of each size and style of garment, and the percentage of absolute necessary wastage. The collector and appraiser will each designate an officer to inspect the process of cutting and making the finest of each style of garment manufactured for export, who will report to the collector and appraiser respectively, their findings as to the size, the quantity of materials used, the measurements submitted, the percentage of wastage, etc.

Each export entry must, in addition to the usual sworn statement of the manufacturer and foreman, be accompanied with a special invoice to be furnished by the exporter, describing by number the garments mentioned in the entry and specifying the style, number, bust, waist and skirt measure, length, quantity of plush and lining and percentage of wastage in each style and size of garment and any other measurements of particulars which may be required by the appraiser to identify the garments exported with like garments of the same style must be originally examined by the officers.

One package, and as many more as the collector may deem necessary from each exportation after all the packages covered by the entry shall have left the immediate custody of the exporter, will be designated to be sent to the appraiser, with the invoice for examination and report as to the quantity and value of the plush and lining used, and identification with the garment as described in the statement originally submitted by the exporter. The exporter will be required to pay the necessary expenses of transportation of the merchandise to the appraiser's stores and thence to the place of shipment."

All the above operations must be gone through with, to determine the rate of allowance of drawback only. It is needless to say that no goods were exported in accordance with it. Such are the difficulties which must be met by the manufacturers before they can get from the Treasury Department a rate of allowance. It is the first step that must be taken.

The total number of rates of allowance given by the Treasury Department and in operation in 1887 was 103. Many of these are merely duplicates as the following shows:

Barbed wire made by Washburne & Moen, from steel rods and spelter with an allowance of 94 pounds of steel rods and 6 lbs. of spelter per 100 lbs. of wire. Barbed wire made by the Pittsburgh Wire Company, from galvanized steel wire with a wastage allowance of 2 per cent.

Barbed wire made by A. S. Hilliard & Co., from wire of Bessemer steel with no wastage allowance.

Barbed wire made by Oliver Wire Co., from steel rods and spelter with an allowance varying according to the size of the wire of 100 to 104 pounds of rods and 4 to 6 lbs. of spelter per 100 lbs. of wire.

Barbed wire made by H. W. Oliver, Jr., with an allowance of a wastage of from 1 7/8-100 to 3 3/10 per cent according to the size of the wire made.

Barbed wire made by Washburne & Moen, with an allowance of 80 lbs. of wire and 17 lbs. of rods per 100 lbs. of the exported article.

Since the McKinley Tariff went into effect, and therefore under the new regulations based upon it issued by the Treasury Department only few rates have been fixed.

In all this list the only rate fixed upon woollens goods was for hammerfelt for pianos made by Mr. Alfred Dolge, upon glass, for ornamented glass made from plain glass imported, and bottles used in export of beer made from imported barley, hops and rye. The bulk of the rates were upon tin plates, manufactures of iron, wire, nails, lumber, sugar and cartridges.

MERCANTILE SHORTCOMINGS.

HOW THEY ORIGINATE AND HOW THEY MUST BE CORRECTED—PRINCIPLE AND RIGHT METHODS MUST NEVER BE OVERLOOKED.

The Boot and Shoe Recorder in its last issue, says: "A wish has found expression that we publish some remarks made before the Merchants' Club of Boston by one of its members, Mr. J. R. Leeson. We take pleasure in doing this. It is well to recall first principles; they are never old."

REMARKS OF MR. J. R. LEESON TO THE MERCHANTS' CLUB OF BOSTON.

Commerce is the traffic in commodities, resulting in the interchange of products which supplies the human race with the necessities, the luxuries, the embellishments of life. The surplus of one region is transferred to every other region of the earth; the fabrications of the brain and the hand to every place where exists a waiting recipient. It is the province of the merchant to feed and clothe mankind, to beautify the habitations of the poor and rich alike, and to minister to every need of the human family, physical, artistic or intellectual. The true merchant is the servant of his kind; he anticipates and supplies the requirements of all sorts and conditions of men. He who would rule must serve; for it is the inevitable law, as the poet has written, "power to him who power exerts;" and so truly, we find in all times the merchant, who is the world's water-carrier, has been the leader in all works of philanthropy, the benefactor, the savior, the support of governments, the patron of the arts and the sustaining staff of all professions. All faithful performance of duty reacts upon the doer of the work, producing capabilities of mind and heart to which the slothful or the scoffer cannot attain, and every quality of work induces its own especial mental aptitude.

So our greatest thinker writes of the "punctuality and precise dealing which commerce creates." These are among the many excellent traits which are strengthened and perhaps developed in the work of the merchant; precision, reliability, kindness, firmness, are of the very essence of the successful merchant. And may we not look at the other side of the picture; at the extreme sharpness, the duplicity, the pusillanimity? For it must be confessed that, apart from the ordinary weaknesses of our kind, the merchant is exposed to temptations peculiar to his calling; one of these has been portrayed by Emerson in his characterization of the mercantile spirit of modern England. He writes: "There should be temperance in making cloth, as well as in eating. England is agitated at the disclosure of the fraud in adulteration of food, of drugs, and almost every fabric in her mills and shops. In true England all is false and forged; 'tis not a supposition want of probity, so much as the tyranny of trade which necessitates a perpetual competition of underselling, and that again a perpetual deterioration of the fabric."

These sentences touch the causes of what would seem to be the prevailing shortcomings of the mercantile life of today. Our merchants do not lack honesty. On the contrary, they have a high sense of honor, exceeding, as the record shows, that possessed by the merchants of any other country or age. We are accustomed to think and speak of the high-toned merchants of England. The British economical writer, Muthall, however, shows that from 1881 to 1884 while the average dividends in bankruptcy were, in Great Britain, thirty-two per cent, the average of the United States in the same period was fifty per cent. A distinguished statistic of our country has given it as the experience of an extensive distributor of merchandise over a series of years, that the net losses from bad debts were less than one quarter of one per cent. If you will permit a personal reference, I would state that the result of a somewhat extended experience in the commerce of the United States and Great Britain is confirmatory of the figures given by Muthall and others. The philosopher before quoted seems to have struck us in the weakest part of our armor. We Anglo-Saxons are eager to excel; we feel the stimulus of attraction with our neighbor; we must keep pace with him, we must go ahead of him, and also distance our own past record. This spirit of emulation is good; it has been the incentive to some of the greatest deeds of history, but unless it have the sobering influence of principle, and a rigid adherence to right methods, it will surely carry us beyond that charming mean where equity guides and fair dealing holds the reins.

It is to be feared that the loose habits of the young drummer have invaded the counting house. That enterprising young gentleman is ready at a moment's notice to guarantee anything which the cupid of a smart buyer may suggest; the boy's thoughtless phrase "I bet you" soon becomes "I'll warrant it." "I guarantee it." The slipshod method invades the office and the factory, and before the extent of the mischief is realized, we find ourselves guaranteeing the most impossible things, and warranting without stint or measure. To keep pace with the stream, we stand ready to affix to invoices any date which it may please the fancy of our clients to suggest. As a natural outcome of such departures from correct standards of commercial procedure on our part, it is found that bargain and sale are nothing but empty air, to be blown hither and thither according to the fancy or exigencies of supposed purchasers. Contracts are repudiated, orders cancelled, goods returned, damages claimed with the coolness and assurance of a vested right. With our warrants and guarantees we have sown the wind; it is any wonder that we are reaping the whirlwind? These, gentlemen, I take it, are the prevailing errors and dangers at present affecting our mercantile practice. What is the remedy? Shall we degenerate into the ignominious condition of "every man for himself, and the devil take the hindmost?" On such a matter we may count as of little efficacy general trade agreements. The evil had its origin in the individual drummer, or the single firm; and we may safely apply the homopathic doctrine that "like cures like," begin at the foundation, and make up our minds each of us that the true medicine is within our own keeping. It is just here where we perceive the value of such organizations as this Merchants' Club. Man is cheered by the countenance of his friend; and while we may not sign a written bond binding ourselves to do thus and so, it is possible for us to give assent to a stated proposition. The good old adage is still potent amongst us: "a man's word is good as his bond"; and if we resolve to conduct our affairs in the future in accordance with equitable, commercial practice, there will be none to say us nay, and we shall soon experience the truth of the saying, of the sage, that nothing is so easy as doing things right. Surely these few words ventured upon this topic are trite enough, and there can be nothing new in them to any of us; but experience shows that the obvious points are chiefly overlooked or forgotten, and this must be my excuse for detaining you at all upon such a well worn theme.

A Trip to Kentucky.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC:

A trip to the southwest is not an every day occurrence and may furnish some of your readers with interesting facts. It is often the case that one has to go away from home to get the news of his own section, so we learned the news in this iron district, that iron was first made in this country in Saugus, near Lynn, Mass., in 1645.

Our party composed of 98 business men left Boston in a tourist car, so fitted up to be our home for ten days. We eat, sleep and live in these cars with a great deal of comfort, passing through New York, a corner of Pennsylvania, crossways the whole length of Ohio to Cincinnati. We arrived in the night, consequently had rather a dim view of the Suspension bridge over which we passed into Kentucky and on to Louisville, where we stopped an hour or more for supplies. We take on a ton of ice which is the ordinary supply for each twenty-four hours, bread, oranges, lemons, vegetables, etc.; being all aboard we started for Dawson, Ky., where our first stop is made to see the coal mines. Here along the side of the road are ranged all sorts and kinds of wagons, some drawn by horses and some by mules, a motley collection. We have great sport seeing what will get the best team, but we find there is not much choice. In these conveyances we ride through rough roads (wishing for softer seats) through fields and woods, until we arrive at the new coal mines just being opened, a seam of bituminous coal 7 1/2 feet high appears and to amateurs, of a fine quality, which they say it is. All the way along through Ohio and Kentucky we find iron farms, wheat cut and stacked ready for the thrasher. Corn from one to two feet high; potatoes in blossom and peaches ripe and ready to eat. The new city of Grand Rivers is reached after a few hours' wear at Kattawa, while our party take a ride to see the fine residence of Col. Anderson, a noted engineer in this section, and one who was of great assistance to our Union Army during the "late unpleasantness" at Central City. We meet another noted union man, and one whom we are glad to honor, Col. Sandusky, proprietor of the Sandusky House, Central City, Ky. While our party tarried here (about an hour) the freedom of the house was offered to us all. Col. S. was a valuable guide to Gen. Grant's and the other armies which passed through this section of the country. Grand Rivers is beautifully situated between the Cumberland and the Tennessee Rivers, is systematically laid out, and has several industries already in operation, brick works, lumber yards, saw mills and quite a large iron foundry. A large iron furnace is nearly completed, capable of turning out about 100 tons of pig-iron every twenty-four hours. The city has six general stores, real estate and insurance offices, weekly paper and foundations for two churches, four hotels and two saloons furnish accommodations for strangers; as we live on board our cars we need not patronize either. To inspect the iron mines we were on Wednesday taken down the railroad by train where beside the road we found apparently inexhaustible quantities of very pure ore; huge boulders of solid iron ore 20 feet high are seen and in the short tons, more of the same metal are visible after inspecting several more openings we find shady places and have a lunch of crackers, cheese and lemonade. Then follows an entertainment by about twenty colored boys employed in the mines; they bring out their banjos and harmonicas and have a variety of dark songs and dances. The hat is passed around and about $25 contributed for their benefit.

Friday we had a delightful sail down the Cumberland and Ohio to Paducah, where we are greeted by booming cannons, shrieking whistles and loud cheers. As we land on the shores of the great river the city is extended to the party, electric cars, private carriages, etc., free as water.

How we spent the day the enclosed clipping from the Paducah Standard will tell.

Tomorrow night we start for home, we have had a fine time, a splendid trip, good company and have seen very valuable property.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co.

Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

It won't cost you one-half as much. Do not delay. Send three two-cent stamps for postage, and we will send you Dr. Kaufmann's great work, fine colored plates from life, on disease, its causes and home cure. Address, A. P. Ordway & Co., Boston, Mass.

THE HOUSE SEWERS.

The sewer committee have decided to begin at once the work of laying the connections from the sewers to the houses, so that when the streets are once put back into good condition they will not have to be torn up again, and this will be a popular move. The process of laying the sewer is not a pleasant one, for residents on the streets to be sewered, but the inconvenience is unavoidable, and the important thing is to make the period of dirt and discomfort as short as possible.

The city does the work of laying the house sewers and also the cellar drains to the cellar wall, at cost, and under proper supervision, and applications should be made at once to the Water Registrar. No one can avoid using the sewers, as the Board of Health will compel such action as soon as the sewers are opened, so that delays will avail nothing. It will be much better to have all the work done now, while the streets are torn up, so that when once they are put into good condition there will be no need of digging them up again, and the city can once more enjoy its streets.

There will probably be a great rush of applications, and those who make them first will be the fortunate ones. Work will probably begin first on Bacon and Nonantum streets, Nonantum place and a portion of Washington street, as the sewers are laid there, and will be carried on to other streets as fast as the sewer contractor finishes his part of the labor.

ANY one who reads the Alliance papers discovers much to his surprise that the third party is very much in earnest. A Reform Bureau has been established which is sending out weekly letters to the newspapers, and the boast is made that the Alliance is doing a fine circulation among the farmers and the men of the country. For instance, a recent issue contains an article on the mortgage burden of the country, in which the claim is made that the census shows that there is a mortgage on four out of every five of the homes of the people, with a sum total that is appalling. Another article attacks the combinations or trusts, and prints a list of seventy-two large combinations and 418 small ones, formed to mark up the prices of all commodities, one of which is the recently formed Window Glass Trust. The article says that when the profits rise so as to make the managers ashamed, then they water the stock. The articles are written in a plain, matter of fact style, and the Alliance will probably have a greater effect on future elections than the managers of the old parties expect.

Such articles as these make people think, and even if the real condition of things is exaggerated, the facts are bad enough to cause a widespread revolt against the old managers and a search for relief by means of new men and measures.

It looks as if the aldermen meant business with regard to a street railroad from Newtonville to Newton Centre, as they have investigated the Milford storage battery railway, and will also visit the Danvers railroad. The City Solicitor has informed them that there was some informality about the last hearing, in regard to the notice given, if they wish to grant a location, and so to have everything legal, they have appointed another hearing for July 6th, which will probably be only a formal affair, as the case was very fully set forth at the recent hearing. It is reported that the aldermen were not fully satisfied with the Milford road. No car was turned over to them for their exclusive use, and they did not find the cars they rode on capable of as fast movement as they thought desirable. The Storage Battery people, however, say that it was not a fair trial, and that on the Beverly & Danvers road will be shown just what their motor is able to accomplish. The Storage Battery is the ideal system, but there is no doubt about the success of the trolley system. The West End Company, it is said, is experimenting with a new motor, which it might pay our street railway men to look up.

AUBURNDALE people have set a very generous example to residents of other villages, by contributing one thousand dollars towards the new ward at the Cottage Hospital. The list of contributors are given elsewhere, and it shows that if large sums can not be obtained, there are many people willing to give small sums, and this is an even better way of raising money as it gives more people an interest in the hospital. The Auburn-dale fund had the advantage of having a very energetic and persuasive committee back of it, and other wards should make a note of this, if they wish to raise money.

CONGRESSMAN LODGE made a speech at Lynn, last night, which gives further evidence of the widening breach between him and one of his formerly most faithful supporters. He said: "In the state contest we want to get a good candidate, and it lies with the Republicans of Massachusetts to select a man who will lead the party to victory, but not a man who selects himself. This is not a year nor a time for self-nominating candidates." Now it remains to hear from Speaker Barrett.

Two of the GRAPHIC's readers describe their journeyings in this issue. One congratulates himself that while people in Newton were sizzling during the recent hot spell, he had found a cool retreat in Nantucket, one of the most charming of summer resorts. The other describes his visit to the promising coal and iron mines in Kentucky, with a company of Boston business men.

The Boston & Albany managers have finally been convinced of the dangerous nature of the Walnut street crossing, and a flagman has appeared there this week. The recent narrow escape from a wholesale fatality probably had something to do with this, and the petition for a street railway location may have helped matters.

The ordinance on Sewerage, published last week, was the amended ordinance, proposed by Alderman Sheppard. It has been referred to the ordinance committee and will be considered by them, in their discussion of the changes which will have to be made in the ordinance that has been adopted.

The Milford Journal flatters itself that General Draper could have the nomination for governor by acclamation, if he would take it but the Journal does not take into account Speaker Barrett and a host of other candidates.

School Board Proceedings.

At the meeting of the school committee Wednesday evening the resignations of Miss Gertrude Blackmer of the Hyde school, Miss Harriet Coburn of the Waban school, and Miss Helen A. Davis of the Thompsonville school, were received and accepted. These teachers were appointed: Miss Lelia Deuel assistant in the Hyde school, at a salary of $500 per annum; Miss Mary A. Tenney, first assistant in Thompsonville school, maximum salary; Emma A. Richardson, assistant in Mason school, at a salary of $550 per annum. Miss Theodora Chase was transferred by promotion from the Oak Hill school to the Waban school, Miss Harriet Brooks from the Mason to the Hyde and Miss Kate Chapman by promotion from the Hyde to the Adams school. Miss Nora Taft of the Pierce school was granted leave of absence for one year, on account of ill health.

Allen and Greenoughs Latin Grammar and Burkes American orations, by for use in the high school, and the superintendent instructed to purchase 30 of the latter work. For department expenses of the current month the sum of $13,304.12 was appropriated. A request from Miss Calkins representing the Social Science Club, for the use of a room in the Jackson schoolhouse in which to teach English to Italians during the summer was refused. The city council was requested to partition room 14 in the high school building during the vacation in order to secure three additional recitation rooms. The board adjourned until Wednesday evening, Sept. 9.

"Don'ts" for Wives.

Don't disturb your husband while he is reading his morning or evening paper by asking foolish questions. He may be reading the latest scandal or divorce suit, but he is just as much interested as though it were foreign news or market reports. Be patient, and when he comes across anything he thinks you can comprehend, perhaps he will read it to you.

Don't communicate unpleasant news or ask a favor before eating. The heart is not easily touched when the stomach is empty.

Don't ever tell a man he is good looking. Some other woman probably will, some time, and in that case he won't know that her opinion concurs with yours. He carries a pocket hand-glass now, and he will shortly become addicted to pajamas.

Don't ever tell a man he has pretty legs. Men who have been known to bear up under facial compliments fail completely when they realize their legs are noticeably good.

Don't put the morning paper at the bottom of the pile, and don't have more than a dozen different places for the buttonhook.

Don't impose upon your husband just because he is good enough to assist you a little in your housework. Don't leave the stove-handle in the red-hot stove, and don't ask him to empty the ash-bod. Draw a line on the ash-bod, and don't run a free horse to death.

Don't gather up all his receipts and notes that he has put carefully away on the sitting-room table and tug them in the fire the moment his back is turned.

Don't monopolize every hook in the closet. Graciously tender him one nail for his very own—and then in mercy hang your "Mother Hubbard," your pelicans, your shopping-bag, and your bonnet some other place.

Don't be inexplicit in giving directions. When you ask him to go upstairs for your port-monnaie, tell him it is either on the table, or in the further corner of the left-hand side of the upper bureau drawer, or in the pocket of your brown dress in the closet. He will have no trouble in finding it—if you can tell him just where it is, especially the pocket.

Don't ask him where he has been the moment he enters the house, or where he is going if he starts out for a walk before breakfast. It nettles him, and men hate to have such pointed questions sprung upon them. Besides that, we live under a free flag.

Don't ask him to walk the floor with the baby half the night. A man who tramps industriously around a billiard table three nights in the week or buys an admission ticket to the opera can't be expected to be on duty at home the other three nights. Have mercy on him and give the man an opportunity to recuperate.

Don't waste your breath in useless vituperation against his favorite chum. Cultivate the chum yourself—ostensibly—when your husband is not around, and matters will assume a different aspect.

Don't put pins in your curl-papers or let your crimping-plate dangle on your forehead. They are abominations and feminine implements to warfare that men despise.

Don't leave hair in the comb, or your neck-curls where they will stick to the comb. Don't put a long hair on the soap or in his tooth brush—purpose-ly.

Don't mend his hosiery with cotton having knots in it larger than a pea.

Don't scold him because he leaves ashes in his pipe. One of the privileges of a married man is to leave an old pipe full of ashes in just the position to empty the contents on the window-sill or the mantelpiece the moment it is touched.

Don't indulge in flights of temper when your husband suggests how his mother did it. If he objects to having eggs boiled in the kettle, and prefers them washed previous to cooking, endeavor to please him by indulging him in his fancies. In the meantime bring your sons up as carefully as you can, and when they are married you yourself will doubtless be held up as an example of virtue; and revenge is sweet.

Don't be too prodigal in the use of kindling wood. There is no fruit of his toil that man guards as jealously as he does his kindling wood. He would faint put it where thieves break not through and steal. So, just because you have free access to it don't burn up enough to last a week in a day.—Chicago Herald.

Students of geography have noticed the regularly curved northwestern boundary line of State of Delaware. It describes an arc of a circle. A writer in American Notes and Queries explains this unusual form of boundary by saying that the deed by which Delaware was transferred from Pennsylvania, there was ceded "all the land for 12 miles around New Castle." This description was taken literally, and a part of a circle was drawn, with the centre at that ancient city.

A Period of Preparation. The Managing Editor—"Mr. Faber, where is Mr. Gushable?" The City Editor—"He's taken a day off to load up with English and French adjectives." The M. E.—"Why?" The C. E.—"To be ready for the sweet girl graduate season."—Pittsburg.

"I suppose it is something of a tribute to one's beauty when a gentleman rises and gives one his seat in a car," said Miss May Ture somewhat proudly. That depends," said Miss Keene; "in some cases it is a mark of respect for age."—New York Press.

—The Congregational church was the scene of a pleasant wedding Wednesday evening, when Miss Grace Helena, daughter of Judge Henry H. Mather, and Mr. William Coggeshall of Melrose were united in marriage. The church was tastefully decorated for the occasion, tropical plants being arranged upon the pulpit platform, and a variety of beautiful cut flowers placed upon the reading desk. The walls of the church were hung with festoons of smilax, from which were suspended wreaths of daisies, and the chandeliers were entwined with smilax and trailing vines. The bride party entered the church at 5.30 o'clock, the bride being led up the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She was preceded by the ushers, the bridesmaids and the maid of honor, the latter wearing a white dress. The groom and his best man entered from a side aisle, meeting the bride at the altar, where the ceremony was performed by Rev. Calvin Cutler, pastor of the Auburndale Congregational church, assisted by Rev. A. G. Hale of Melrose. The maid of honor was Miss Edith Kimball of Auburndale, and the best man Mr. Eugene H. Mather, brother of the bride. The bridesmaids were Miss Susan Coggeshall and Miss Evelyn C. Coggeshall, sisters of the groom. The bride was attired in white flannel fringed and chiffon, en train, a long tulle veil secured with orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of duchess roses. After the wedding a reception for the family and near friends was held at the residence of the bride's parents on Fern street. The newly wedded couple received in the parlor, and were the recipients of the usual congratulations. The groom's present to the bride was a beautiful necklace and gold locket, containing a diamond of rare quality. After the reception, the couple departed on their wedding tour. Upon their return they will reside on Floral avenue, Newton Highlands, where they will be at home Tuesdays in September. A pleasant feature of the wedding was the opening of a wedding cake 28 years old. It was made for the wedding of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Mather-Marshall, in 1863.

Women and Ladies.

There have been some amusing instances of the word lady, which custom has decreed to mean social culture instead of its original meaning, "lady-giver."

A girl waiter in a large hotel in an eastern city approached a guest with this query:

"Has any other lady taken your order?"

"There was equivalent to the politeness of the little girl who surprised the family by announcing:

"Mamma, the swill lady is at the back door."

There is a story of the mistress of a fashionable house who, on being left without any servant, answered the door bell and was confronted by a stout girl, who asked:

"Are ye the women that wanted a lady to work for ye?"

When Harriet Martineau visited America, she asked the warden of a prison reformatory in Tennessee to show her the woman's ward. The answer is embalmed in history.

"I am very sorry, ma'am, that I cannot accommodate you, but we have no ladies here at present."

A minister who was very polite changed a portion of Scripture to read: "Ladies and gentlemen created He them," and a lecturer who cared more for the sweet phrases of politeness than for the statements of the truth, rung this query upon an astonished audience, as he discoursed on the characteristics of women:

"Who were the last at the cross? Ladies."

Who were the first at the sepulcher? Ladies."

But even he was outdone by the exquisite divine who, as he concluded marrying a couple, said gallantly:

"I now pronounce you husband and lady."

A Fine Building.

George—"What a fine building that is across the way."

Charles—"Yes, Yes, but the owner built it out of blood, the aches and groans of his fellow-men; out of the grief of crying children and the woes of wailing women."

"Ah! A rum-seller, of course."

"Oh, no, he's a dentist!"

Never fear to bring the sublimest motive to the smallest duty, and the most infinite comfort to the smallest trouble.

Nantucket as a Summer Resort.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC:

Nantucket, June 17, 1891.

During the late heated term, I was fortunate enough to be on a visit to the island of Nantucket. I will give you a few facts in regard to the wonderful climate of this lovely island that is anchored in the broad Atlantic, 30 miles from the nearest land. Old ocean rolls all around it, so that whichever way the wind may come, it must be blown across the water, and the temperature reduced before reaching the island. During the summer, south and south-west winds are the prevailing ones, and those come directly from the broad Atlantic. No malaria or miasma in those winds. In fact a visit here is like a voyage at sea, without any of the discomforts of being on ship-board. While the good people of Boston, Newton and vicinity were from the 8th to 17th of June sweltering with heat with the mercury in the nineties and over, the highest reading of the thermometer here was 76 degrees, on other days during that time, 74, 73, 72, and 75 degrees. It is an awful hot day here if the mercury reaches 80 degrees, no matter how hot the day, as soon as the sun sets, down goes the mercury to 60 degrees, and a good night's rest is assured. This evening (17th) they have a fire in the fireplace, and not uncomfortable either with the mercury outside at 55 degrees. It was so cool and comfortable here, that I could hardly realize the fact that only 100 miles away people were suffering and dying with the heat, and thermometer registering 90 and 100 degrees in the shade. Western people have found out that Nantucket is a good place to go to in the summer, there are a great many here from Louisville, Kansas City, St. Louis, Cincinnati and other western cities, also from all parts of New York and Washington, D. C.; even San Francisco is represented.

The late Judge Breckenridge of St. Louis who died so suddenly at Detroit a few weeks since, had his summer home here. He was a man who believed in doing good to his fellow man, and will be greatly missed here where he was well known, almost as much as he will be in his former southern home. He owned the O'Connor mansion so called, being the house built by the late Charles O'Connor, the celebrated New York lawyer, who came here after New York physicians had given him up as incurable, then he came to Nantucket and lived here 10 years, after being given up by his doctors.

This island is 25 miles long and 8 miles wide, crescent shaped, in its palm days when a hundred whole ships left its port, it had 10,000 inhabitants, but now has but 8,500. During the summer it has from 15 to 20,000 visitors, there are seven good hotels besides a great number of nice private boarding houses. Churches of all denominations, Episcopal, Unitarian, Orthodox, Methodist, Baptist and Catholic. Any one who have sailing or riding. A ride across the moors which are covered with a great variety of wild flowers in bloom is a treat, and then the fishing which is fine, blue fishing being the best sport; the "skippers" of most of the boats are men who have been in the employ of "Uncle Sam" at the several life savings stations on the island, so they understand how to handle a boat in rough as well as fine weather. It is the best place for bathing on the New England coast, as the Gulf stream comes nearer to Nantucket than any other point on the coast. Bathers can stay in the water here an hour if they wish to do so, and not feel a chill, the water is so warm. Some people who come to Nantucket act as if they had come to an unknown country, and here is where they make a great mistake, for there is a great deal of wealth and culture on the island, people here who have visited nearly every known port in the world, and can give visitors a great deal of information. They tell a good story here of a party that came from very near the "heart of the Commonwealth" just after arriving at their hotel, the landlady went into the parlour, and entering into conversation with one of the ladies, asked her where they were from. She replied, "Oh we are from the United States." She had been at sea for two and a half hours, so thought they had left "Uncle Sam's" dominion far behind them, they say the above is true. As a watering place, it is a gem, and is rapidly and one reason for it is this. There is not the style there is at Newport, people come here for rest and comfort, and to do as they please, and here they find rest and comfort. I am surprised that the people of Boston and vicinity do not visit more, and build their summer homes here by the sound of the sea. If they come once, they will come often to old NANTUCKET.

—The Newtons were defeated in the game of ball last Saturday by the Melrose team, score 8 to 6. The boys played a very play game and stood a good show of winning in the ninth inning when they had one man out, but in excitement and desire to win they risked too much in coaching Bowen and Quackenbush in from second on hits made by Quackenbush and Harry Bates both being thrown out at the plate.
The boys batted finely having nearly three times as many total bases as the Melrose team, but holding errors gave the Melrose team a lead in the first inning they could not be passed. Bates pitched a fine game only allowing Melrose five high hits.

and made some beautiful stops. Game next Saturday will be with the Millers of
